Notes from Milville.

Our Millville correspondent writes:—On Thursday Nov. 17th, quite a large number of our village folk drove to Maplewood, five mile distant to witness the marriage of Mr. Wm. P. Smith and Miss Lizzie Johnston. Miss Johnston has been carrying on a general dry goods and grocery business in this place for about a year, but wishing a change has settled down to married life. A very large number of friends were present, and the marriage service was conducted by the Rev. B. Trafton, pastor of the F. B. church, in that place. After the congratulations of the friends had been gone through with, they gathered around a well spread table, laden with many good things which were well taken care of. Many good wishes follow the young couple in their starting out in life..... Mr. D. Gilman was here Saturday gathering up men and teams for the lumber woods in Quebec. Mr. Gilman has for a few years carried on business in this place, and is missed this winter very much.....Church services were conducted on Sunday by Rev. J Noble in the morning, and Rev. A. Trafton, F. B. in the afternoon.....The weather for a few days has been very warm, and the plow has again been to work.

Under an Assumed Name.

Says the Charlottetown Examiner: "The St. John Telegraph, a short time ago, stated that it was believed there that the black mare Nellie T. which trotted and took good positions in the 3-minute and 2.50 races at Woodstock and Fredericton was none other than the black mare Maud R., record 2.40¼, owned by W. F. Robins, of Charlottetown. Mr. Robins informs us that the Telegraph was correct in supposing that Nellie T. and Maud R. were one and the same, but says he was not in any way responsible for the contemptible trick. He says that several months ago he placed his mare in the hands of "Al" Slipp and Lee of Truro for training, and that during the summer they wrote him repeatedly about the mare's success at Fredericton and Woodstock, but never so much as hinted that they were sailing under false colors—that the mare was trotting under an assumed name. Had they done so he would at once have called a halt and exposed the whole proceeding. He feels quite sore over the contemptible business and will probably give Mr. Slipp a piece of his mind at the first opportunity."

A Question of Wine Sauce.

Somebody played a mean trick on Mr. Pitts the other day. While he was absent in St. John, the Temperance Journal of which he is editor and proprietor, was issued to its patrons, who were horrified to find in a prominent position in the paper, a recipe for making wine sauce. Mr. Pitts however has straightened the matter out. He entirely repudiates the recipe, and wishes it understood that he "does not indulge in puddings or pies, or any other kind of pastry flavored with liquors." We can readily understand Mr. Pitts' annoyance at the occurence, but the mistake was quite a reasonable one. Mr. Pitts prints four papers at his establishment, and is it not probable that he made the clipping for the Reporter, or the Religious Intelligencer, or the University Monthly, all of which come from his printing office? We do not think Mr. Pitts should be so severe on the recipe. Its offence seems simply to have been, that it bobbed up serenely in the wrong place, choosing a field of readers where it could do the most business.

Nashwaaksis Doings.

Our Nashwaaksis correspondent writes:—The young people of Nashwaaksis have organized a sort of Mutual Improvement Society. It is well attended and promises to fulfil the requirements of such a society. A very efficient executive committee have the matter of arrangements in hand, and although the society has only been in existence two weeks, there are quite a number of members in attendance, beside a larger number of visitors. The society meets weekly, on Friday evenings in the hall.....McFarlane's Carriage Factory which has turned out during the summer quite a large number of carriages with a larger number of good heavy wagons, is now making extensive preparations for winter work. Mr. McFarlane intends making up a goodly number of sleighs and pungs this fall. The work is of superior quality, as well as the material used.....Thompson's Grist and Carding Mills have had a very busy season. There has been a good supply of water, and the mills have been going every day and part of the night. A large quantity of grain has been ground, besides a considerable amount of carding done. In addition to the grinding and carding there is a department for fulling cloth, under the management of a gentleman from Nova Scotia.

A Queen Hotel Incident.

There was intense excitement around the Queen Hotel stables this morning, when it was discovered that the stop cock of the water works in the cellar had burst, innundating the cellar to the depth of several feet. It is in that department that Mr. James Christie, who is an enthusiastic pig fancier, keeps his stock, and when the flooding was discovered, the first thought of Mr. Edwards, Mr. Christie, more particutarly, and the entire hotel staff, was for the safety of the swine. Donning a pair of long rubber boots and an improved diving apparatus, Mr. Edwards made his way to the flooded district, and went prospecting for pigs, while Mr. Christie and his lieutenants stood nigh to receive the corpses. The water, however, had not done its work. The pigs were thoroughly saturated, so was Mr. Edwards, before he got through the job, but their swineships after a large amount of vigorous paddling around the cellar, closely followed by Mr. Edwards, were rescued from a watery grave, and the Queen Hotel boarders from an indefinite quantity of premature pork. Mr. Burchill, the Water Works Superintendent, whose assistance was called in to restore the water pipe to its original condition, says it was great fun to see Mr. Edwards on the trail of the swine. The only disaster was the loss of one rubber boot.

The University Lecture Course.

(To the Editor of the Farmer.)

SIR,—In an item which appeared in the Gleaner of Saturday last, we, or the students generally, are blamed for neglecting to announce the postponement of the lecture, which (according to the Gleaner) ought to have been delivered last Friday night. It also states that many citizens were inconvenienced thereby.

Now Mr. Editor, while we do not, as a rule, notice every statement, however unreliable, which appears in that paper, we feel that in this matter it is but just to ourselves and to the public, that the facts of the case should be known. Any inconvenience which may have happened to the public on this occasion, was not caused by us, but by the incorrect statement published in the Gleaner that the next lecture of the course would be delivered on last Friday. At the conclusion of our first lecture, it was distinctly announced by Dr. Harrison, as afterwards distinctly twice told to the Gleaner man by one of the students, that Mr. Parkin would lecture on "Imperial Federation," on the evening of Friday the 25th inst. Why the Gleaner did not make its statement in accordance the facts we do not know. Of course we ought to have corrected the statement, and would certainly have done so, had we observed it in time. We do not care, however, to be made responsible for the Gleaner reporter's mistakes. The burden would be too heavy for our shoulders, and moreover, when he tries to lighten his load at our expense, we do not propose to allow it. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space,

We remain your obedient servants,

J. B. SUTHERLAND,
D. L. MITCHELL,
C. P. STEEVES.
Committee of Management for the U. N. B. Lecture Course.

Fredericton Choral Society.

The members of the Choral Society met on Tuesday evening in the Council Chamber of the City Hall, for the transaction of business. It was unfortunate that appointments on the same evening for other meetings, prevented many of the members from attending. Much interest was, however, manifested by those present in the welfare of the society, and the hope confidently expressed of a large increase of membership during the present season. The members present constituted themselves a committee to endeavor to interest as many as possible in the society and extend its membership. A deputation was appointed to wait upon His Lordship, the Metropolitan, and the Lieutenant Governor, to respectfully request their acceptance of the offices of Patron and President of the society, respectively. It was also resolved to invite the city choirs, and as well, the choirs of St. Marys, Gibson and Marysville, to meet the members in consultation, with a view to a more perfect organization of the society, and its establishment upon a permanent basis. That such a society, permanently established in Fredericton, and prospering, would be a boon to all time lovers of music, and an addition to the prestige of the city generally, can scarcely be doubted; and if, through the exactions of modern culture, the imparting of a knowledge of music be becoming more and more a necessary feature of education, in no surer and more ready way could such a knowledge be promoted, the ear cultivated, quickness and accuracy in reading acquired, and correctness of musical taste attained, than in the practice which the Choral Society contemplates of the composition of the great masters of sacred music.

The Choral Society has been and will continue to be under the kind and able leadership of Prof. Bristowe. The fee for membership in the past has been a quarter dollar a month, but it is contemplated to reduce this. It may be mentioned that last year, at the cost of one dollar and a half, each member receied twenty-two musical lessons comprising in them such instruction as in no other way could have been obtained.

THE GRAND LAKE TRAGEDY.

The uncertainty surrounding the deaths of Tower and Elliott.

Capt. Sypher says he that was at Grand Lake the Sunday the funeral of the late Wm. Elliott and Wm. Tower took place and was present, and he found the real cause of the men's death appeared to be about as much of a mystery as ever. The boat which contained the dead bodies of the men was found in the vicinity of one mile from McMann's which, which would leave the impression that Elliott and Tower had rowed after leaving the steamer May Queen close on five miles, as it is estimated the distance between "The Range" and McMann's wharf is six miles. The boat was nearly full of water, and both oars were found some distance from the boat. Tower had no hat on and Elliott's overcoat was in the bottom of the boat. How the boat came to have so much water in it, Capt. Sypher says, can't be satisfactorily explained. The night the two men in question left the May Queen the weather was very mild and the water perfectly calm. The boat was a light one and if one of the men had fallen out, he could not, it is believed, have got in again without upsetting it, as both are heavy men. Capt. Spyher says as far as he could learn the only witnesses at the inquest were the four men who found the bodies, some of whom swore that they saw the boat floating in the lake and could tell there were bodies in it. They also swore that the May Queen must have passed in the vicinity of three hundred yards of the boat on the morning it was discovered. As far as could be learned the last persons who saw the two alive were men in the employ of the May Queen, and people are of the opinion that some of these should have been brought forward by Coroner Stewart to prove the time Elliott and Tower left the boat, and in what condition they were when they started on their fatal row. The whole matter might have been easily cleared up by the coroner calling on mate Colwell, the bar tender, or some other persons who saw these men just before leaving the steamer.

A LOVER'S STRATAGEM.

How a rural swain disposed of a rival.

A young countryman who had long loved a girl who lived a mile or two from him was nearly in despair about winning her hand, and was on the eve of selling out and leaving the country, as the girl had refused him three times, and it was out that she was engaged to another fellow. Our hero had noticed that his rival and the girl would walk in an old meadow field, nearly every afternoon, and he grew madly jealous. In his cattle he had a young bull that was always mad with everything but his master, because he was an especial pet. Now Dave, as he called the bull, was to be the object with which to satiate his revenge. He would turn him into the meadow, hide himself and see his rival tossed like a football. So, one afternoon, calling to Dave, who would follow him like a dog, he repaired to the meadow let the fence down and turned the bull in. He then strolled off, and walked around as miserable as a man could be who was committing an evil deed. An hour or so later he heard the deep mutterings of the bull and, hastening to the meadow fence, he saw Dave about twenty yards from the couple, pawing dirt and shaking his head. The man was trying to get the girl to run, but she was so terrified that she could not move. The bull made a dash and the fellow ran shrieking for the fence. The bull dashed on after the flying fellow, while our disconsolate young man, having jumped the fence, rushed to the girl as the bull dashed on after the fugitive rival, and catching her in his arms, told her that such a coward was unworthy of her. As Dave saw his young master he left off pursuing the other man, returned and went to licking his hand, while the indignant girl vowed she would never more speak to a man that was afraid of a cow. She soon after married Dave's boss.

A NEW RIFLE NECESSARY.

The German Army forced to discard the recently adopted repeater.

Hardly had the vast army of Germany completed its armament with its new repeating rifles than it was found that the latter were so completely inferior to weapons of smaller calibre that an entire change was imperatively necessary. A new pattern has been decided upon, and the manufacture of the new rifle is to be carried on with the utmost energy. The magazine rifle now to be discarded, was perfected only last spring, and the reserves were but recently called out for the first time to learn its use. The inadequacy of the rifle only came to light during these courses of musketry instruction to the reserves. Its defects are partly inherent to the riffe itself, and partly to the ammunition hitherto in use. They become especially apparent when compared with the repeating rifles which have been adopted by France, Russia, Austria and England. The chief fault of the German repeater was its heavy calibre of eleven millimetres as against the eight millimetres of the French. Germany could not adopt this small calibre at first, owing to the fact that she lacked both suitable powder and bullets. It is only recently that she has succeeded in producing a powder of six times the strength of that hitherto in use, and in inventing a kind of steel coating for the bullets which will prevent the rapid leadening of the barrel. A great advantage of the new powder in connection with the small-calibre bullets, is its superior penetrating effect. The bullets will pierce three horses, one beside the other. They will penetrate steel plates of thirty millimetres in thickness, whereas the present rifle pierces only a five millimetre steel plates. The German military administration considers it absolutely necessary to introduce the improved weapon as soon as possible. The expense will be enormous as the existing rifles cannot be altered as was the case with the magazine rifle.

The Greatest Art Publishers.

A word about Raphael Tuck & Sons, whose famous publications go all over the World.

(New York World.)

If a dozen ordinary men were asked to name the greatest painter now living, the chances are that they would give a dozen different answers. Anybody, though, particularly any artist, will tell you that the house of Raphael Tuck & Sons are the greatest art publishers in the world. There can be no doubt of that. Their publications are before you, no matter where you find an art dealer's establishment. Their largest house is in London, but they have others almost equally extensive in Berlin, Paris, Leipzig and New York. Their headquarters in this city, by the way, is in charge of Mr. Samuel Gabriel, at No. 298 Broadway, where the firm's latest productions can be viewed. The collection there displayed of reproductions of the most noted works of all the modern masters is worth going far to see. So extensive have Messrs. Raphael Tuck and Sons' operations in America become that Mr. Adolph Tuck will visit the New York agency about the middle of next month and make arrangements for still further extensions.

The factories of Messrs. Raphael Tuck & Sons at Leipzig employ an army of more than three hundred experienced designers lithographers and transferers. Besides this they have their own paper and card board mills, where are prepared the materials for their art printing. Altogether the firm employs more than one thousand people in their printing, cutting, embellishing, finishing, packing and shipping department. They send their publications all over the world. These consist in large and handsome oleographs for framing purposes, artistic studies for painting and drawing, circular and shell plaques, wall pockets, &c., for wall, mantel and cabinet decoration; Christmas and New Year cards, and a thousand and one artistic notions designed to beautify the homes of those who have learned to appreciate the beautiful. Messrs. Raphael Tuck & Sons may truly claim to have done more to render art popular than any other publishers in the world. They have reproduced and sold at popular prices all the paintings in the world-famous Berlin gallery, and the works of some of the eminent foreign and American artists. In Christmas and New Year cards alone Messrs. Tuck & Sons annually print more than 2,000 designs. Among their latest novelties is an exquisite line of Porcelain Studies of superior quality and thickness and bevelled, and each inclosed in a wooden safety box, guarding it against risk of breakage in transmission through the mail. All the designs are by well known artists, and the best that has been thus far brought out is the portrait of Mrs. President Cleveland, generally acknowledged to be the best picture of her extant.
