Secretary of State Evarts has invited the co-operation of the Governments of Great Britain, Germany, Norway, Sweden and Denmark to assist in the task of suppressing polygamy in the United States, by warning emigrants that the practice will not be permitted in Utah. It is manifest that the British Government, for example, cannot deprive a man of his liberty unless he has violated an English law. The whole question is surrounded with difficulties. If a British subject goes to British India and adopts one of the creeds of the natives, he may marry a plurality of wives and live with them in India. The same is true if he goes to Turkey, Morocco, or any other country where polygamy is legal. The fact that it is prohibited in England would not make it legal for the Government to detain in the country a subject of the Queen because he has polygamous intentions. And how should these intentions be known? The fact that a man believes in polygamy does not necessarily prove that he will marry at all, much less that he will take to himself more than one wife. As regards women, their case is even more difficult. The Morman creed does not allow a female adherent to be married to more than one husband at the same time. The matrimonial "intention" of each unmarried Morman woman emigrating to this country is presumably to become the "first wife," if she cannot be the only wife of her prospective husband, and in this there is nothing criminal.

The attention of English tennant farmers is being directed to Canada as an emigration field. The Liverpool Courier points out that weeks before Lord Derby suggested that there were openings in new countries, English farmers had anticipated the counsel and migrated to the Dominion. The process of thinning the agricultural ranks has commenced. The tide of emigration has not been very strong so far, but there are abundant signs that the exodus now inaugurated will greatly increase in volume before many months have elapsed. The Courier mentions that great anxiety is now manifested with respect to the amount of sucess which those who have already come to this country are likely to accomplish. A tone of confidence is reported among the emigrants themselves. There is every prospect that a considerable proportion of the English tennant farmers who will leave the shores of the mother country will settle in the Dominion and assist in its agricultural developments.

Soon after the Œcumenical Council had pronounced by acclamation the dogma of Papal infallibility, there was a falling off in the contributions familiarly known as "St. Peter's Pence." As years went on, until the death of Pio Nono, eighteen months ago, a steady diminution continued, and at last they dwindled down to a comparatively insignificant sum. Since the accession of Cardinal Pecci the pence have been coming in to the Vatican with the profusion of former years. For the seemester of the present year terminating on June 30th, the amount yielded exceeded by $180,000 the proceeds for the corresponding seemester of 1878. The present Pope has cut down the expense of his household from $4,000 a month to $300, and has effected important economies in other directions. His thrift has made an excellent impression upon the Catholic world.

English correspondents who were present at the battle of Ulundi, agree that Lord Chelmsford displayed skill and boldness which deserved the success then achieved. Mr. Forbes, of the London News, says:—"Lord Chelmsford's soldierly coolness and decisive clear-headedness in action go far to redeem the passiveness and peevish vacillation which are his characteristics when no battle is raging. One might wish him a military Rip Van Winkle, only wakening to direct a battle." Public feeling in England is gradually becoming less severe regarding his failure in the early part of the campaign.

Mr. Sothern, according to the New York Star, omits no opportunity to impress his guest, the Duke of Beaufort, with the grandeur of American institutions. They were at Coney Island a day or two ago, and in the course of their rambles came upon the captive balloon. "What a monster it is!" exclaimed his Grace, eyeing the big bag with undisguised interest. "Monster!" repeated Lord Dundreary, contemptuously; "you ought to see a New Jersey mosquito after a hearty meal."

Westminster Abbey has been kept hitherto for English statesmen and soldiers, and men of letters who have done good service to the State. Is it now to be turned into a menagerie of exiled pretenders whose ill fate and whose foolish ambition have induced them to embark their precarious fortunes in an adventure conducted by Lord Chelmsford? The Abbey was not made for such as these, and the erection of a bust of Prince Napolean in that sanctuary should be strongly protested against.—London Weekly Dispatch.

Some sensation was caused at the House of Commons two weeks ago by the discovery that some wag had posted up in one of the principal corridors a clever drawing of Lord Beaconsfield as a domestic cat with nine tails. The likeness was excellent, and the nine tails were supposed to represent war, slavery, bankruptcy, imperialism, and other evils which have been associated with the policy of the present Government. The drawing was in its way quite a work of art.

Some of the victims of the Glasgow Bank swindle, pine and die, and the papers occasionally refer to those who have gone to an untimely grave. R. Callwell of Inverness, was a year ago worth $350,000. His 30 shares in the bank made him penniless at 70 years of age, and he was lately found dead in his bed.

There arrived at New York during July 12,710 emigrants. During corresponding period of 1878, the total number arrived was 8,689. The arrival of immigrants during the fiscal year ending July 31, 1879, was 103,245, against 74,139 during the previous fiscal year.
