☞ OFFICE — Queen Street, Fredericton, opposite Post Office.

The Brayley House was entirely destroyed by fire, which broke out shortly before 3 o'clock Sunday morning. It apparently originated in the rear of the lower flat of the building, for when first discovered, smoke was seen coming up through the floors of the Hotel on the second flat. The firemen who responded promptly to the alarm, found great difficulty in handling the fire. The building was a mass of flames inside, and being a case1 one, it was dangerous to approach. Before the flames were subdued, nothing was left of the fine Hotel, but a smoking mass of ruins. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips saved comparatively little of their clothing or furniture, and the guests of the hotel were unfortunate. Among the latter Prof. Belliveau of the Normal School, was the greatest sufferer. He lost a valuable library and all his clothing. Escape by the front door was entirely cut off before the inmates of the Hotel were awakened, and they got out by the rear. Mr. J. H. Barry was compelled to make his exit by jumping from his window to the roof of the kitchen. Mr. Phillips had $1,750 insurance on his furniture in the Imperial, John Black Agent. The building itself was insured for $4,800 in Mr. Morrisons and the Messrs. Richards' offices. It was built in 1856, for J. W. Brayley, but for a number of years has been owned by John Penny of Halifax.

One of the stores on the ground flat was occupied by Elijah Clarke, boot and shoe dealer. A portion of his stock is saved, but his loss is considerable. He is covered by insurance in Mr. Morrison's offices. The next building below the Brayley, owned and occupied by J. R. Howie, tailor, was slightly damaged by fire and water.

Mr. Howie claims that a lot of his ready-made clothing was stolen during the fire, but the Chief Engineer, who was personally in charge of the firemen in Mr. Howie's building, and who placed Corp. Carney, of the Military School, on guard at the door, when first entering the building, the latter remaining at his post until after six o'clock, assures us that it was impossible for any goods to have been taken out of the building during the fire. Mr. Howie's loss is covered by insurance in the Messrs. Richards' offices.

Ald. Moore, Chairman of the Fire Committee, was of great assistance at the fire Sunday morning, aiding the firemen by suggestions and acts.

Mr. Howie,s building was on fire again at 1 o'clock this morning, the origin of which is a mystery. The flames were extinguished, however, before much damage was done.

The Newcastle correspondent of the Chatham World in referring to the curling match last Thursday between Fredericton and Newcastle, says that it was a close game, and better play was never witnessed in the rink there: that skip Crocker was warmly congratulated on having beaten a rink (E. H. Allen's) which for a long time has been looked upon as invincible, and that the Fredericton curlers, who are used to victory, bore their defeat well, and showed themselves equally well able to sustain defeat as they have twice proved themselves, in contests with Newcastle, to bear victory.

The Canadian voyageurs who took General Wolseley's boats up the Nile arrived at Queenstown, Ireland, on the 18th inst., and embarked at once for home. They speak disparagingly of the boats used by Wolseley's expedition in its journey up the Nile and declare they were decidedly too frail for such service. In pulling them over the cataracts it frequently happened that their stems would be torn out and during the ascent of the river 30 boats were damaged so that they are no longer fit for use. Ten of the voyageurs' party were drowned in the Nile, two died of fever and two were killed on the railway in Egypt. The Canadians complain of the severe heat in the Soudan and say they suffered a great deal from sore eyes and blisters.

The Furness Line steamer Newcastle City, which sailed from Halifax, on the 12th inst., for London, with general cargo and 152 head of cattle, returned to port Thursday morning for repairs, having encountered a heavy gale when 200 miles southeast of Sable Island. The cattle were torn from their pens and dashed against the sides of the ship and the steam gear with great violence. Their horns, necks, backs and legs were broken and brains dashed out. They were piled up in a heap four and five tiers high, and were swept overboard in sixes and tens at a batch.

There was an exciting row in one of the the corridors of the House of Commons at Ottawa last Friday afternoon, when Mr. Landry, M. P., for Montmagny, Quebec, cowhided Charles Langelier, a French journalist, for making charges in his paper, L'Electeur of Quebec, against his (Landry's) character. Langelier admitted having written the article, at which point Landry struck him with a cowhide whip. The attack was followed up, until Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, Minister of Customs, and Hon. Mr. Chapleau Secretary of State, rushed from their seats in the House to quell the row. Trudel, Chief of Quebec Harbor Police, who is a friend of Landry, stood by urging the latter on, calling upon those present not to interfere, as Langelier, who is a more powerful man than Landry, deserved all he was getting. The Sergeant-at-Arms was then sent for by the Minister of Customs who dispersed the crowd of members, Senators and spectators, who had assembed to see the fun. Langelier states that his reason for not resenting the attack, was that had he done so or struck Landry, a member of Parliament, within precincts of the House, he could have been arrested and held in custody according to old English practice until Parliament prorogued. While Langelier is a larger man, it is stated that his opponent under any circumstances would be too much for him. Those who witnessed the affray describe it as exceremely ludicrous to see little Landry chasing his man down the lobby. Landry was subsequently fined $20 in the police court for the assault.

Humphreys' Veterinary System.

No well-informed person denies that the ownership of animals involves the obligation of their proper nursing and care when sick. It is generally admitted that the common mode of the treatment is cruel as well as wasteful in life and suffering. But before you condemn us show us a better system. Now this is precisely what we propose to do. "HUMPHREY' HOMEOPATHIC VETERINARY SPECIFICS have been in use twenty-five years, and the testimony of respectable horse and stock owners of the results are entirely satisfactory. The medicines are suited to almost every possible disease among domestic animals, and can be given without the slightest trouble. They are not poisonous nor destructive of health, but cure in far less time than any other remedies. The system of treatment is free from intricacy or difficulty, one that tells the owner just what to do and how to do it, and while safe and satisfactory in results, it secures the animal from all cruelty and unkindness. Moreover it affords the best chance for their recovery and renewed usefulness." We think we are acting in the interest and for the benefit of our animal friends, who can not speak for themselves, when we cordially indorse HUMPHREYS' HOMEOPATHIC VETERINARY SPECIFICS.

The Shooting of Major Vince.

A most Peculiar Accident.

The Woodstock Press furnishes the following particulars of the accidental shooting of Major Vince, already referred to in the FARMER:—

"For some time the affair was clouded in mystery, and many conjectures were formed and rumors floated. Nothing of a suspicious nature was seen in the vicinity, and no cause whatever could be assigned for the shooting until Tuesday, when the following facts were made public: F. H. J. Dibblee has a silver plating shop on Regent street, the front of which is directly in range with Richmond street, and about 100 yards from where Mr. Vince was walking when wounded. That day a self-cocking revolver had been left with Mr. Dibblee for sale. Just about the time of the arrival of the train, as Mr. Dibblee was preparing to go home, he noticed the revolver lying on the workbench, and thought he would examine the lock before he left the shop. He had not the slightest suspicion of there being any load in it. He found the lock would only half-cock, and turning the muzzle towards the light, in range of Queen street, he looked in the barrel, which was but a short distance from his face, and again tried the lock. To his great surprise there was a report, and a bullet was discharged, which passed so close to his head that some of the powder struck his nose. He thought the elevation had been sufficient to carry the bullet out near the eaves of the building. Mr. Dibblee did not hear of Mr. Vince's injury till more than an hour later, and, on hearing the circumstances, it at once occured to him that the injury might have been caused by the accidental discharge of the revolver in his shop. He examined his shop and found a pane of glass broken in the winnear where the accident occured. Mr. Dibblee at once went to Mr. Vince and related what had happened in his shop."

The Sentinel says that later developments show that Major Vince had even a more narrow escape than was at first supposed Mrs. Vince found that the bullet had not only passed through her husband's arm, but that it had also passed through his clothing, striking against a thick pocket book in his breast pocket whence it had dropped into his overcoat pocket where it was found. Had it not have been for the pocket book the shot, would in all probability have proved fatal.

It is needless to say, adds the Sentinel, that Mr. Dibblee feels very deeply the circumstance.

THE IMPERIAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY.—The London Insurance World says: the balance sheet of the Imperial puts the paid-up capital at £700,000, but of this amount no less than £400,000 is capitalised profit, so that the dividend of £8 per share is, in fact, not 12, but 32 per cent per annum on the actual amount (£25) paid up. No wonder the shares sell at six times their nominal value.

One of the gayest dancers on the floor at the Legislative reception at Augusta, Maine., the other evening, was Hon. Hannibal Hamlin, who let but very few of the dances glide by without participating in them. He was enquiring for the lady with whom he danced in Augusta forty-nine years ago! It was difficult to believe that the gentleman who moved about with so much agility had been associated with Abraham Lincoln as Vice-President of the United States.

Everyone at Birmingham, Connecticut has been excited in consequence of a strange marriage between Harry Baldwin, a young clerk of 22, who is employed in the general store of Frank D. Jackson, at a salary of about $400 a year, to Mrs Charlotte Canfield, a widow who has already passed her 75th summer, and who is possessed of a snug little fortune of about $200,000. He alleges that he marries the old lady for pure love. As soon as it was known that the knot had been tied, all the drum corps and bands in town turned out, playing joyous tunes, such as, Come haste to the wedding, etc. The streets were illuminated brilliantly, and shouts of joy went up for the throats of men and boys. They rang the church and fire bells and assembled in front of the house where the wedded parties were, and the groom came out on the front steps and disbursed funds to treat the crowd.
