A MODEL LOVE-LETTER.

Breach of promise cases usually produce laughter; especially when the love-letters are read is the risibility of the court excited. We have been favored from a thoroughly reliable source with a letter which was not read the other day when a cause for breach was tried in one of the inland counties. Had it been, perhaps the damages given by the jury would have been more than they were—viz., $5,000. We print the epistle more as a warning than an example. It ran thus:—

My dear Miss M.,—Every time I think of you my heart flops up and down like an excited eel in a lime basket. Sensations of an unutterable joy caper through it like young kittens on an out-house roof; and thrill through it like broken bottles on the top of a garden wall through the tight trousers of a nocturnal thief.—As a gosling swimmeth in a mud-puddle, so I swim in a sea of glory. Visions of ecstatic rapture thicker than the hairs of a blacking brush, and brighter than the eyes of a humming-bird's pinions, visit me in my slumbers, and, borne on their invisible wings, your image stands before me, and I reach out to grasp it, like a pointer snapping at a blue-bottle fly.—When I first beheld your angelic perfections, I was bewildered, and my brain whirled round like a bumble-bee under a glass tumbler. My eyes stood open like the doors of a country town, and I lifted up my ears to catch the silvery accents of your voice. My tongue refused to wag, and in silent adoration I drank in the sweet infection of love as a thirsty man swalloweth a tumbler of iced lemonade-and-sherry. Since the light of your face fell upon my life, I sometimes feel as if I could lift myself up by my bootjack to the top of the church steeple and pull the bell rope for morning school. Day and night you are in my thoughts. When Aurora, blushing like a bride, rises from her saffron-colored couch: when the sparrow pipes his tuneful lay in an apple tree: when the chanticleer's shrill clarion heralds the coming morn: when the awakening pig ariseth from his bed and grunteth, and goeth for his morning refreshments: when the drowsy beetle wheels to droning flight at sultry noon-tide: and when the lowing herds come home at milking time—I think of thee: and, like a piece of gutta percha, my heart seems stretched clear across my bosom. Your hair is like the mane of a chestnut horse powdered with gold, and the brass pins skewered through your waterfall fill me with unbounded awe.—Your forehead is smoother than the elbow of an old coat. Your eyes are glorious to behold. In their liquid depths I see legions of little Cupids bathing, like a cohort of ants in an old Wellington boot. When their fire hit upon my manly breast, it penetrated my whole anatomy, as a charge of bird-shot through a rotten apple. Your nose is from a block of Parian marble, and your mouth is puckered with sweetness. Nectar lingers on you lips like honey on a bear's paw: and myriads of unfledged kisses are there ready to fly out and light somewhere, like young birds out of their parents' nests. Your laugh rings in my ears like the jew's-harp strain, or the bleat of a stray lamb on the bleak hill side. The dimples on your cheeks are like bowers in beds of roses, or hollows in the puffy paste of apple pies. I am dying to fly to thy presence and pour out the burning eloquence of my love as thrifty housewives pour out hot coffee.—Away from you I am as melancholy as a sick rat. Sometimes I can hear the cockchafers of despondency buzzing in my ears, and feel the cold lizzards of despair crawling down my back. Uncouth fears, like a thousand minnows, nibbling at my spirits, and my soul is pierced with doubts like an old cheese is bored with mites. My love for you is stronger than the smell of Battersa mud butter, or the kick of a young cow, and more unselfish than the kitten's first caterwaul. As a song-bird hankers for the light of day, the cautious mouse for the toasted cheese in the trap, as a lean puppy hankers for new milk, so I long for thee. You are fairer than a speckled Dorking hen, sweeter than a raspberry tart fried in treacle, brighter than the plumage of the head of a Muscovy duck. You are brandy and water, with lots of sugar in it.

If these few remarks will enable you to see the inside of my soul, and me to win your affections, I shall be as happy as a wood-pecker on a cherry tree, or a coach horse in a green pasture. If you cannot reciprocate my thrilling passion I will pine away like a poisoned flea, and fall from a flourishing vine of life, an untimely branch; and in coming years, when the shadows grow from the hills, and the philosophical frog sings his cheerful evening hymn, you, happy in another's love, can come and drop a tear and catch a cold upon the last resting place of yours affectionately, "H."

The verdict should have been $25,000 at the very least.

Arabian Laughing Plant.—In Palgrave's "Central and Eastern Arabia," we are told some interesting facts concerning this singular plant. The active principle appears to reside principally at its seeds. These seeds, when powdered and administered in full, judicious quantities, produce effects similar to those produced by the celebrated laughing gas of Sir Humphrey Davy. The person to whom the drug is administered laughs, sings, dances, and conducts himself in the most extravagant and ludicrous style.—After an hour of this intense excitement he falls asleep, and upon awakening is totally unconscious of anything that he said or did while under the influence of the drug. It is a common joke to put a small quantity into the coffee of some unsuspecting individual, in order to enjoy a laugh at his antics, and it is said that when judiciously given it has never produced any evil consequences. An overdose would be dangerous. The plant which bears these berries grows only in Arabia. In Kaseem it hardly attains the height of six inches above the ground, while in Oman it has reached the height of three or four feet, with wide-spreading limbs. The stems are wood, and when stripped of the bark have a yellowish tinge; the leaf is of a dark green color, and pinnated, with about twenty leaflets on either side, the stalks are smooth and shining, the flowers are yellow, and grow in tufts, and the anthers numerous.—The fruit is a capsule, stuffed with greenish padding, in which lie imbedded two or three black seeds, in size and shape much like French beans. Their taste is sweetish, but with a peculiar opiate flavor. The smell is overpowering, and almost sickly.

Praying for "The One Under the Bed."—A correspondent of the Exeter News-Letter tells the following story:

"A good Methodist minister who was stationed in a town not more than ten miles from Exeter, was about to enter the house of one of the first families of his charge; as he passed the window he noticed that one of the females secreted herself under the bed. After entering he perceived that things were rather cool and the conversation, which was mostly made by himself, uninteresting; so he concluded after a brief stay, to pray with the family, as was his custom, and leave. He therefore commenced by alluding to the heads of the family and some of the prominent members, and wound up in a very fervent appeal in behalf of the remaining members,—especially the one under the bed."

CURE of BRONCHITIS.

SMITHFIELD.

J. C. Chamberlain, Esq.—This is to certify that about three years ago I became afflicted with Bronchitis, which lasted about eighteen months.—I was so afflicted for the want of breath that it was very difficult for me to speak, and in the night time frequently throwing the clothes off and raising in the bed to keep from strangling. I tried three of the most eminent physicians in the County of Northumberland for about a year without receiving any benefit. In fact I continued getting worse all the time. At last I was advised to try the Great Shoshonees Remedy. I bought a bottle and took it, and when it was about finished I began to feel a little better. I continued to use it until I had taken three bottles, when, to my satisfaction, I found that I was as well as ever I had been previous to my illness, and have been so ever since.

Wonderful Cure of Lung Disease.

Brooklin, April 5th, 1870.

J. C. Chamberlain, Esq.,—Sir,—This is to certify that my wife was very low with Lung Disease. The Doctor had given her up. He said her lungs were tuberculed and medicine could not help her. As a last resort, I purchased a bottle of the Great Shoshonees Remedy. At the expiration of two days, her symptoms were decidedly better. She continued to improve so rapidly that by the time she had taken one bottle she was able to sit up.. By the continuance of the remedy she was perfectly restored to health.

You may may publish the facts for the benefit of those similarly afflicted.

OFFICERS.

Clarence H. Clark, Philadelphia, President.
Jay Cooke, Chairman Finance and Executive Committee.
Henry D. Cooke, Washington, } Vice Presidents
E. A. Rollins, Philadelphia, }
Emerson W. Peet, Phila., Secretary & Actuary.

That the National Life Insurance Company of the United States of America is the most popular company in this country is evinced by the fact that in the first twenty months of its existence it received about 12,000 APPLICATIONS and issued 10,000 POLICIES, a much larger number than was ever issued at the same period of its existence by any other life Insurance Company in the world.

That it is the most secure company is proven by its Capital of $1,000,000. That it is honestly, correctly, and scientifically managed is guaranteed by the character and skill of its owners and managers, who, in addition to their integrity and ability, are influenced by pecuniary interests. Its rates of premium are as low as is consistent with entire safety. Its plan is entirely free from any complications of notes, interest, &c., or uncertainties and disappointments of dividends, &c. Its contracts are definite, clear, and impossible to be misunderstood or misrepresented. Its policies contain all of the promises made by the company, and are exceedingly liberal. All the advantages and privileges which can be safely granted to the insured are given by this deservedly popular and strong company.
