Miscellaneous.

A pedagogue in Indiana, who was "had up for unmercifully welting the back of a little girl," justified his action by explaining, that "she persisted in flinging paper pellets at him when his back was turned.—This is no excuse. The Town crier once taught school up in the mountains, and about every half hour had to remove his coat and scrape off the paper wads adhering to the nap. He never permitted a trifle like this to unsettle his patience; he just kept on wearing that gaberdine until it had no nap, and the waps would not stick, But when they took to dipping them in mucilage he made a complaint to the Board of Directors.

"Young man," said the chairman, "if you don't like our ways, you'd better sling your blankets and git. Prentice Mulford tort skule here more'n six months, and he never said a word agin the wads."

The T. C., briefly explained that Mr. Mulford might have been brought up to paper wads, and did'nt mind them.

"It ain't no use," said another director, "children hev got to be amused."

The T. C. protested that there were other amusements quite as diverting.

The third director here rose and remarked, "I perfeckly agree with the Cheer; this youngster better travel. I consider as paper wads lies at the root of popillar edycation; ther a necessary adjundk uv the skuil system. Mr. Cheerman, I move and second that this yer schoolmaster be shot."

The T. C. did not remain to observe the result of the voting.

CONSCIENCE.—Conscience is a strange and wonderful companion. As a guide, she is wonderful and kind, if you but follow her guidance, if you but listen to her admonitions, if you heed her warnings. She will cause you to lie down in green pastures, and to walk beside still waters. As a friend, she is faithful and true—always, If you but listen to her admonitions, if you but heed her counsel, she will make you happy and peaceful through all the day long, and when you lie down at night, she will make your sleep peaceful and sweet, But if you turn from her warnings, if you disregard her counsel, if you despise her guidance, if, against all her true teachings, you do commit crime, then she becomes at once, a bitter, a terrible, a biting enemy. She is armed with a whip of scorpions; she lashes and lashes, until the victim writhes and writhes and dies. Her eyes of lightning send out their flashings, and scorch and wither and burn their victim, until he speaks or dies, She has a voice of thunder, and in the day-time and in the silent hours of the night, in your house, in the street, wherever you may be, she speaks to you in those tones of thunder, and you quail and shrink before her voice.

It is not extravagant to say that civilization in this country is now a century behind what it would have been, if ardent spirits had never been known amongst us. I do not mean that civilization whose only evidences consist in a few prodigies of learning, or a few great masters of the elegant arts, with a small metropolitan circle of courtly gentlemen, while all around is passion and ignorance and superstition. All this, where this is all, is but mockery. But I mean the civilization which consists in a love of order and of duty. and in that recognition and sacred regard for the rights of others which cannot be enforced by law; in affectionate hearts, in active, truth-loving minds—all combining to make happy families, brotherly neighbors, and a great and incorruptible people. This kind of civilization has already been postponed a century, in our land, by the burdening effects of intemperance.—Horace Mann.

ABOUT SO.—We like mischievous children for this reason: They are apt to make old men. Good boys generally die in their fifth year; not because they are good, but their quiet habits make them strangers to mud puddles, oxygen, dirt pies and other out door exercise. When a friend tells us he has a little boy who "never wants to leave his books," the the knob of his front door immediately becomes an object of intense interest to us, we know as if we were blessed with foreknowledge, that in less than a year a strip of black crape will throw a shade across his path that time will not eradicate.

This is one of the newest descriptions of a Dolly Varden: The starboard sleeve bore a yellow hop vine in leaf, on red ground, with a number of gray birds badly mutilated by the seams, flying hither and yon in wild dismay at the approach of a green and black hunter.—Cavalry Mission infant class was depicted on the back, the making up of the garment scattering truant scholars up and down the sides and on the skirt, while a country poultry fair and group of American hunting dogs, badly demoralized by the gathers, gave the front a remarkable appearance. The left had on it the alphabet in five different languages.

The Danbury News, which has as little reverance as any paper in New England, says that a baggage-master in that town, is recovering from an injury lately received, and adds:

"He was so much better this morning, as to be able to put his feet through several bandboxes, and the doctor thinks that in a few days, he can try a few light valises, and perhaps, one or two dressing cases that have been started a little with an axe. But it will be some time before he can hope to face a full grown trunk."

Two news boys were standing before a cigar store, when one asked the other: "Have you got three cents?" "Yes." "Well, I have got two cents; give me your three and I will buy a 'five-center.'" "All right," says No. 2, handing out the money. No.1 enters the store, procures a cigar, lights it, and puffs with a great deal of satisfaction. "Come, now, give us a pull," says No. 2; "I furnished more than half the money." "I know that," says the smoker; "but then I'm president, and you being only a stockholder you can spit.

FASHIONABLE LIFE.—If there is any environment which can degrade a human being or harden a young heart, it is the atmosphere of merely fashionable life.

You may take the tenderest and most beautiful and lovely girl the one that is kindest at home, and loves her father and mother best, and put her into the highest circle of fashionable life, and by and by the youthful, beautiful modesty is gone, and the way is open for vice that in the beginning would not have been dreamed of, or if thought of, put away as utterly impossible.

Up in Vermont there lived a reprobate family named Ransom. Once, however, they were induced to attend a meeting during a revival. They came late, and had hardly taken their seats, when the preacher gave out the hymn. "Return ye ransom' sinners home."—"All right," said the old man, getting up in a rage and clapping on his hat.—"Come along, ole woman and gals, we'll go home fast enough, and everybody in this ole church knows we didn't want to come."

Why is a succesful comic actor unlike a schoolmaster fond of flogging?—Ans.—Because the one makes a furore (few roar) and the other makes a great many roar.

The Trotting Stallion
"JOHN BRIGHT,"

WILL make the following season at his owner's Stable, in Woodstock.

Terms—One service, $10; Season, $15; to insure, $20; $3 of which payable at time of service, balance when mare proves with foal.

John Bright will be eight years old in August next, and weighs 1,000 lbs. He is the winner of the Stallion Race in Houlton last Fall, and of the Stallion Races in Woodstock and Fredericton in 1870, making at the latter place a record of 2 m. 33 sec.

As is shown below, John Bright is a strong bred Messenger (Warrior) with a grade of "Morgan" and "Wild Air," being of the same stock, and inbred to "Messenger" in the same manner as some of the most celebrated trotting horses in the world.

Pedigree—John Bright was sired by "Nero," he by "Jehu," he by "Warrior," he by "Bush Messenger," whose grand sire was the old imported Messenger.

Bright's dam was "Smith Mare," sired by "Warrior."

The dam of "Nero" was "Kirk Mare," sired by "Morgan Empire," he by "Green Mountain 2nd," he by "Gifford," he by "Woodbury," he by "Justin Morgan." The dam of the "Kirk Mare" was of the "Wild Air" stock, imported by Judge Saunders, of Fredericton.
