AGRICULTURAL NOTES.

—One-third more land will be put under cultivation in Manitoba this year than last.

—Large purchases of Canadian horses for British army remounts are to be made this summer.

—China now furnishes only one-third of the tea consumed in England. India furnishes the rest.

—At least 500,000 orange trees have been set out in California the past year, and their cultivation is constantly extending.

—A mammoth hog is reported, owned by a farmer in Wrightstown, N. J., dressed April 21, which weighed 1330 pounds.

—A giant poplar tree recently felled at Taylorville, Ohio, was nearly 12 feet in diameter at its base, and 240 feet high. It will yield nearly 20,000 feet of lumber.

—Dealers estimate that 35,000,000 grain bags will be needed for this season's California wheat crop. Over nine-tenths of this amount of bags must be imported from Calcutta.

—At a recent farm institute in Oregon, a number of farmers testified to the value of keeping seed corn in the cellar. It should be well traced up before any frost, and then stored in the cellar, which must be dry and kept free from freezing.

—The Rural New Yorker has made a wager of $50 that it can raise at the rate of 700 bushels of potatoes to the acre, and the wager has been accepted by the editor of the Farm Journal the winner of the wager to devote the money to some charitable purpose.

—The profit of a dairy cow is derived from extra feed, that is, feed consumed in excess of the requirements of the animal system to support life. The greater the amount of the proper kind of food a cow will digest and assimilate, the greater the increase of profit. A cow, no matter how great her natural capacity may be, will yield no profit unless she be fed in excess of the requirments named.

—A bad collapse is reported in the case of the Western would-be corner in canned tomatoes. The parties interested, it seems, have not been able to get the market into the exact shape to suit their views, and being unable to carry their load any longer, the goods have passed into the hands of the banks, and have been offered in wholesale blocks at as low as ninety cents a dozen. This, too, for goods which it is stated cost them $1.10 to $1.17½ in the fall the winter. Someone must be heartily tired of tomatoes.—Monetary Times.

Systematic Work.

Much of the success in farming as elsewhere is attained by systematic work. Every moment must count in our short seasons in order to have them successful. The days should be planned ahead. Each day's work thought out in two ways, what to do if the day should be pleasant and if the day should prove stormy,and then make the time count. Don't look over all the work to be done and feeling the enormity of it attempt to do all at once. Consider the earliest piece of ground and dispose of that first, plant the crop that you want first or that will stand the greatest amount of severe weather, earliest. In the day's work, take that which can least afford to wait first and arrange so that when the animals are eating in the barn the men are eating too and thus no time is wasted. If the farmer and his help have to stand around waiting for horses or oxen to eat, there is a foolish waste of time. Again there should be thought in going out to the field to take all that will be needed there so that it may not be necessary to send back to the house or barn occassionally for something omitted. Rest must be allowed for in the farmer's day. It is mistaken economy to omit it, but the rest should be part of the days plan and not be a time of impatient waiting that cannot be avoided, if work is not planned. Try systematic work this year, follow it closely and see if it does not pay.

—Notwithstanding the hostile report of the Senate committee there appears a chance that the fisheries treaty will not be rejected at once. The Democratic senators at a caucus on Monday suggested a compromise that may be carried out, by which definite action will be postponed till next fall, the fishermen in the meantime conducting their operations under the modus vivendi. This will give them an opportunity during the fishing season of judging how they will be affected and whether the treaty will be helpful or harmful to their interests. Both the Republicans and Democrats are expected to look with some favor on this proposal, from the fact that it will take the question out of politics during the Presidential contest and partly remove an issue that neither knows how the people might regard. The idea is not a dignified one, but it may temporarily save the treaty from rejection and even make its acceptance a possibility.

—Michael Davitt thinks it would be a fatal blunder to secure county government for Ireland before Home Rule is established.

Sir Charles Tupper Vindicated.

The Trusteeship Bugaboo.

OTTAWA, May 16.—The reform press are making a great ado because Sir Charles Tupper happens to be one of the trustees for the C. P. R. bondholders, while Mr. Mackenzie has refused to become the company's trustee under the new arrangement. There is no analogy whatever between the two cases. Mr. Mackenzie was asked by the C. P. R. to become one of trustees for the land grant bonds, a position that would entail some labor, and for which he would have received a good salary. With regard to Sir Charles' position the case is vastly different. When in 1885 Messrs. Baring Bros. were asked to put upon the market bonds for the C. P. R. amounting to $35,000,000 they made it a condition that Sir Charles Tupper should be a joint trustee with Wolverton and Lord Revelstoke, the latter being the head of the firm of Baring Bros. Sir Charles Tupper informed the banking firm that he had invariably refused to take any part or be connected in any way with commercial transactions of any kind. He promised, however, to telegraph the Government explaining how the matter stood and if the Government desired him to act as joint trustee with Lords Wolverton and Revelstoke for these bonds he would do so. Sir Charles, who was then simply High Commissioner and not a member of the Government, communicated with Sir John to ascertain what the wishes of the Government were, and the answer he received was that the Government desired him to act as a trustee. The trustees for the bonds had nothing whatever to do and receive no salary or emolument. Their services are entirely gratuitous; but if at any time the railway should go into default as trustees for the bondholders they would have important functions to perform and would be entitled to remuneration for their trouble and services. Lord Wolverton is dead, and Lord Revelstoke and Sir Charles are the only remaining trustees. From the foregoing plain recital of facts it will be seen what little ground the Globe has for its recent screed.

—A correspondent of the Woodstock Press give an interesting personal description of New Brunswick's representatives at Ottawa. Following are two of the pen pictures:—

Josiah Wood, of Westmorland, is tall above the average and intellectual above the average. He wears spectacles and has the misfortune to be wealthy. A merchant, a banker, a ship owner, a farmer, a politician; he is a busy man. His air and mien are those of the student rather than of a business man.

Richard Chapman Weldon is big, bright and barefaced, easy, earnest and eloquent. He is a happy illustration of a sound mind in a sound body. Possessed of intellectual vigor and culture such as few men in the house enjoy, he is clear, comprehensive and logical in his addresses.

—Says the Boston Sunday Herald: The request for potatoes seems to be on the mend, especially for what is termed road stock. This class of stock is better sold up and the market looks better. Early in the week a few thousand bushels of all rail chenangoes were received, and they were sold out before the market was fairly tested, at very satisfactory prices. A steamer cargo from P. E. I. is due here some time this week, the first of the season. It is expected it will meet a very satisfactory demand. It is again claimed that the Scotch potatoes are about done coming. The quotations on potatoes for this market are: Houlton rose, per bu., $1 to 1.05; hebrons, 80c.; Aroostook rose, $1; hebrons, 80c.; Vermont and New York rose, 75 to 80c.; burbanks, 75c.; peerless, 75c.; N. S. and N. B. rose, 90c.; eastern prolifics, 75 to 80c.; hebrons, 80c.; prolifics and burbanks 75c.; white, 65c.; New Brunswick, bbl., $2.50 to 2.60; Nova Scotia, bbl., $1.75 to 2; Scotch champions, 40 to 55c.; regents, 40 to 50c.; magnums, 65 to 70c. For the week the receipts of potatoes were 112 cars (cargoes are reduced to cars); same week a year ago, 147 cars.

The Painsec Tragedy.

A Shediac correspondent writes to the Telegraph as follows:—The excitement over the Bastian-Farrell tragedy has somewhat subsided, although there is still a good deal of talk about the responsibility that attaches to the Scott Act committee who, Mrs. Farrell states, compelled her husband to act in the matter in order to satisfy a fine that stood against him for liquor selling before he became constable. On the one hand, Mrs. Farrell's friends are urging her to take action against the committee, and on the other Mrs. Bastian's friends are advising a similar course. The less conspicuous yet most earnest temperance workers share, to a certain degree, the feelings of the anti-Scott Act party, who are anxious that this shooting affair be re-opened and thoroughly investigated. Considerable indignation is expressed even among many of the temperance people as to the questionable methods employed in enforcing the law, it being hinted that the harvest of fines is more eagerly looked after than the good cause itself.

—At the annual meeting of the Bank of New Brunswick, held a few days ago, the net profits the year were shown to be $63,722, or a little more than 12½ per cent. on the capital. Two half-yearly dividends of six per cent. were paid. The old board of directors was re-elected.

—The new machine just invented for printing postal cards prints them from the roll, and turns them out in packages ready for delivery. It runs them off at the rate of 300 a minute, with paper bands pasted around each twenty-five. It is said one man can look after two machines.

—An enterprising merchant in a village town has a cat, which is being educated to usefulness in a novel manner. Tabitha is taught to purr round the scales while groceries are being weighed and by rubbing her tail under the beam at just the right time is said to be saving to the aforesaid firm an amount that will more than offset the apples, raisins, etc., confiscated by the junior clerk.

—The Fredericton Gleaner says:—A novel double wedding took place at Los Angeles, California, on the 3rd inst., when four rising young doctors joined the army of benedicts. Both the brides and the bridegrooms had a few days before the wedding taken the degree of M. D., and were all classmates. One of the contracting parties was Mr. H. Bert Ellis, M. D., a former Fredericton boy, and a son of the late Dr. Ellis of this city, who married Miss Lulu Talbott, M. D., of Los Angeles. Both young couples in medicine and matrimony left immediately after the wedding for Vienna, where they will complete their medical studies.

—An inquisitive French bishop once caught a Tartar in the Duc de Roquelaure. The latter passing in haste through Lyons, was hailed by the bishop with "Hi, hi?" The duke stopped. "Where have you come from?" enquired the prelate. "Paris," said the duke. "What is there fresh in Paris?" "Green peas." "But what were the people saying when you left?" "Vespers" "Goodness, man," broke out the angry questioner, "who are you?" "Ignorant people call me 'Hi, hi!' Gentlemen term me the Duc de Roquelaure. Drive on, postillion."

—Jones had married the prettiest woman in town, and Brown had married the homeliest, and thought she was beautiful. One evening they were talking about their respective better halves, and B. remarked: "I say, Jones, I think you and I married the two prettiest women in town." Jones looked at him in surprise a moment, but he saw he was serious. "Well," he replied, cautiously, and with pride, "I guess you are about half right, old fellow." Brown didn't see the point until he told his wife.

—A Maine man who had a sick horse visited a neighbor for advice. "I heard that your horse was sick last week and that you gave him a quart of kerosene." "I did," replied the neighbor. A few days afterwards the man came to the neighbor in a most angry mood. "See here, didn't you say that you gave your horse a quart of kerosene?" "Yes." "Well, I gave my horse a quart of kerosene, and he died." "So did mine," quietly replied the neighbor.

—Dude (bad pay): "That stripe looks well—so does this. What would you prefer for yourself, if you were choosing?" Longsuffering Tailor: "A check."

Non-Alcoholic Medication.

EDITOR UNION SIGNAL:—Several of your readers have written to me asking my opinion, as a physician, as to the use of alcohol as a medicine. Now it has occurred to me that while "opinions" might be of value, something in the way of actual experience or practice would be more satisfactory. "Can the physician do without it?" That is the point; and if those of us who have had faith enough to try the experiment of leaving it off, would only come forward and give the results of our practice, this question it seems to me, might be answered in a way that would carry conviction with it.

So far as my own personal experience is concerned, and that of my sister-in-law with whom I am associated, I would say, that during the twenty years that we have been in practice we have treated successfully both acute and chronic diseases without using alcohol in any form. When the "crisis" comes, in a fever—and we have had the very worst forms of it to deal with—instead of applying the whim (alcohol) to rouse jaded and (temporarily) exhausted energies of the system, we follow the very reverse method. We let the patient rest; this is the supreme moment, when the doctor, if he is wise, will prescribe presistent let-alone-ative-ness. "Masterly inactivity" is what is needed, more than anything else, save good nursing. The system needs quiet; it has been undergoing the greatest activity for days, perhaps for weeks, in the powerful effort to expel poisons from the vital domain—for that is just what a fever means; it is an action of the system to throw out impurities.

The climax, then having been reached, Nature calls a halt; the object has been accomplished, and there follows a period of repose; the temperature lowers; the pulse weakens; the strength (apparently) is gone. It is just here that the mistake is usually made; the "let-down" (rest) is taken for collapse, when it is really nothing of the sort. It is Nature's breathing spell. She is tired out; sleep is wanted. Then is the time to keep hands off, to let Nature have her way; all will turn out well; the patient will pull through. And, greatly to the astonishment of friends (and others), instead of being a tardy, feeble recovery, there will be a prompt and vigorous reaction; no set-back; no "relapses;" but a steady progress back to life and health. How often have I seen it in typhoid fever, diphtheria, bronchitis, scarlatina, inflammation of the bowels, pneumonia, brain fever, and the rest. So rapid, indeed, is the recovery, that lookers-on remark, after it is all over, "why, there wasn't so very much the matter, after all."

This—the rapid recovery—is as it should be. Convalescence ought to be prompt; and it would be if it were not interferred with. Stimulants (in the opinion of the writer), of whatever kind, have no place in Nature's materia medica, not even in so-called prostration. When Nature pulls in the check-rein, then it is time to step. Unfortunately that has not been the custom; it has been the other way; and many lives have been lost in consequence. At the very moment when exhausted Nature says "Rest," wine or other stimulant is resorted to; and the vital powers, rousing to a final effort, work themselves to death. The embers of life are stirred, until the fire is extinguished forever.

SUSANNA W. DODDS, M. D.,
St. Louis, Mo.

In her address before the International Council of Women, Dr. Mary Weeks Burnett, of the National Temperanee Hospital, Chicago, stated that about seven hundred cases in all had been treated in the hospital during the twe years since it was founded. These are from all classes of people, and include all general conditions of disease. There have been no deaths. Experience proves that in the most critical stages the patients are better without alcohol than with it. The requirement of the constitution of the hospital, that all medicines used in the hospital must be prepared without alcohol, has been complied with.

—The six days' walking match in New York which ended on Saturday night, resulted as follows: Littlewood, 611 miles; Guerrero, 589; Herty, 573; Noremac, 533; Golden, 529; Hughes, 495.

The feet of Littlewood, the winner, are in a terrible condition from blisters, but otherwise he is all right. He goes back to England in a few days, but says that in the fall he will challenge any man to race him for from $5,000 to $10,000. The actual receipts of the race were $15,895, of which half is divided among the walkers. Littlewood gets $3,974; Guerrero, $1,589; Herty, $1,192; Noremac, $794; and Golden $397.

—The coroner's investigation at Halifax into the cause of the Electric Patrolman Crocker's death ended Thursday with a verdict of accidental death and censure of the Chandler Electric Light Company for not taking proper precautions to prevent accidents after the death of Patrolman Webber which accured only forty-eight hours previous to Crocker's death and on the same post.

—A five-year-old lad named Walter Smith, while fishing off one of the wharves at Lower Cove Slip, Sunday afternoon, fell into the water and was drowned before assistance could reach him.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE for June is an example of what a magazine for early summer ought to be. It contains a judicious mixture of the best things in literature, and is thus suited to all the moods of a June day. Fiction is provided for lazy hours by W. D. Howells, Henry James and William Black, and there is much charming poetry. Neither are solid articles for serious reading lacking, and the artistic features of the number are most delightful. Reinhart, Abbey, Charles Graham, E. P. Sanguinetti, Alfred Parsons, W. H. Hyde, and F. Barnard, all contribute specimens of their best work. The frontispiece is an excellent portrait of the late Mrs. Craik, and belongs to the article on "London as a Literary Centre," which abounds in good likenesses of English novelists.
