THE WEDDING SPECTRE.

I see the gorgeous bridal train
Sweep down the aisle, the organ strain
Warbles its welcome overhead,
In chime with love's elastic tread;
But follows close an envious shade—
"Bind heart to heart
Till I do part."

They mutely list the solemn prayer,
They vow to love in joy or care,
In God's dear name they clasp their hands,
They twain are one in heaven's own bands;
But still the Spectre mocking stands—
"Bind heart to heart
Till I do part."

I bid them with a blessing go,
The organ's peals melodious flow,
They turn again, they two are wed,
They move with love's ecstatic tread;
Yet follows close that envious Shade—
"Bind heart to heart
Till I do part."

But now beside the op'ning door
There stands a form unseen before;
He who on earth made water wine
Bestows on these his smile divine:
"Ye twain are one, and both are Mine;
Heart bound in heart
Death can not part." —[Independent.

CHILDREN'S MISSIONARY HYMN.

Little drops of water,
Little grains of sand,
From the mighty ocean,
And the beauteous land.

And the little moments,
Humble though they be,
From the mighty ages
Of eternity.

So do little errors
Lead the soul astray,
Piling sins like mountains
For the judgment day.

Little acts of kindness,
Little deeds of love,
Make our earth an Eden,
Like the heaven above.

Little seeds of mercy,
Sown by youthful hands,
Grow to bless the nations
Far in heathan lands.

Sarah Goodwin and her Boys.

Sarah Goodwin was the name of a poor seamstress, residing in the city of New York. She was not wholly friendless, but those whom she knew, and who would have aided her in her struggles, were very poor, and could not. So she, a widow, with her four boys from the ages of four to nine years, struggled through the winter's cold and summer's heat, providing her family with bread, and that was all. Meat and luxuries were denied Sarah Goodwin and her boys. The latter were good children, always in their homes after nightfall and giving their mother every cent of their little earnings, as often as they found work to do. At last the mother fell sick, and through a weary illness, she had no other attendance, save the occasional help of a neighbour, and the constant aid of her boys. They were never from her side, and it was touching to behold their sympathy—their gentle ministrations; everybody prophesied that they would be blessed in coming years for their thoughtful kindness to their mother.

The widow recovered, but it was now in heart of winter, and their little stock of fuel was nearly gone. As soon as her strength permitted, she walked through the cold on a cheerless day to the shop of her employer, and told her pitiful story—But the times were hard, her illness had made room for others as destitute as herself; in fine, they had not one stitch of work to give her. With a sinking heart, but praying to keep her courage up, the poor woman toiled on from one shop to another, until it became late, and what with tears and darkness, she could hardly see her way home.

'If Mr. Hunt himself had been there,' she soliliquized, bending to the strong wind, and drawing her scanty shawl closer about her form, 'I know he would have given me work.'

As she whispered thus through her chattering teeth, a tall man with a long grey beard passed by her, and as he did so something fell to the sidewalk, and lay upon the crusted snow. Sarah passed; she had heard the noise made by the packet, and a mysterious impression led her to search for it. Oh joy! it was a purse, heavy filled to the brim; yellow and shining lay the gold within its strong meshes, as she carried it towards a lighted window.

'My poor boys! these shall want food no longer,' she ejuculated fervently: 'this is gold, gold! God put it in my way, he saw I was despairing.

Suddenly, like a flash of lightening, the thought occurred to Sarah, that not one cent of the new found treasure was honestly hers. But a moment she lingered, pressing the money with her numbed fingers, the sorrowful tears pressing down her cheeks; then starting forward, to find the owner of the purse, she walked hurriedly up the street, fearful that the temptation, should she arrive at her poor home and see her hungry children, might prove too strong for her integrity.

Opposite the great hotel, as she stood hesitating which way to take, she saw the stranger enter. She knew him by his long singular beard, and timidly crossing the street, she made her way into the brilliant hall, and there, bewildered by the light, knew not what to say or do till twice asked by the servant what she wanted. Of course she did no more than descibe the strangerby his tall stature and long beard. But he had already gone out again; she must call on the morrow, he said, and ask for Mr. Ascroft.

The next morning, having eaten nothing—for she would not touch a farthing of the gold—she was admitted into the room where sat the stranger. He rose and gazed with a curious air till she presented the purse. Then he started with pleasure and surprise, laid down his paper, took the gold, and deliberately counted it over.

'It is all safe,' he said; 'you have not—'

'Not one piece, sir,' said she, eagerly trembling as she stood.

'You seem very poor,' remarked the stranger carelessly.

'I am poor,' she replied.

'Got a family, I suppose.

'Four little boys, sir; I am a widow.'

'Humph! humph! so I suppose?—that's the old story.'

'Ask Mr. Hunt, the tailor, cried the widow, stepping forward a little; he knows me well; he knows I am poor—I am honest.'

A bright spot burned on her cheek as she spoke, and she forced back the tears.

'Now confess,' said the stranger, rising and walking to and fro before the fire, 'confess that you expected a large reward for this.'

'I did think, perhaps'—and she turned with quivering lips to the door.

'Stop, Stop! cried the stranger; you know you would never heve returned the purse, had you not expected to be paid for it.'

'Sir! said the widow, her tone indignant her thin form towering, an oh! the withering rebuke of her voice and manners; the stranger paused, holding the purse in his hand; then drawing forth the smallest piece the purse contained, offered it to her. For a moment she drew back, but then remembering that her boys were hungry at home, and in bed, because there was no fire, she burst into tears as she took it, saying, 'This will buy bread for my poor children,' and hurrying away, she buried the bitterness of that morning in her own heart.

It was four o'clock on the same day; and Sarah Goodwin sat by a scanty fire, busy in sewing patches on the very poor clothes of her four boys.

'Run to the door, Jimmy,' said she to the eldest as a loud knock was heard.

'Oh, mother!' the boy cried returning, a big bundle for us; what is it? what can it be?'

'Work for me, perhaps,' said she untying the package, when suddenly there came to light four suits of gray clothes, with four black shining caps, each set exactly fitting to the dimensions of her boys. Almos. paralyzed with astonishment, the widow remained on her knees, her eyes rivited on the words—'a present for the fatherless,' while the boys appropriating their wardrobes, danced about the floor, shouting with glee.

'Whats in the pocket, here? what's in the pocket! cried Jemmy, thrusting his hand into that receptacle, when lo! out came the very purse of gold she had returned that morning. A scene of joyous confusion ensued, and the voice of prayer ascended from Sarah Goodwin's full heart. Again and again she counted the glittering treasure. Five hundred dollars! It seemed an almost endless fortune. How her heart ran over with gratitude to God and to the good stranger. She could not rest till, throwing on her bonnet, with cheeks now with hope and happiness, she ran back to the hotel to pour forth her thanks. A carriage laden with trunks behind stood at the door. The driver mounted the seat as she reached the hotel steps: and turned her head, there within sat the mysterious stranger with the long beard—She had no time to speak, but he nodded his head as he saw her with clasped hands, stand there; her very face seemed a prayer embodied.

Sarah never saw the eccentric stranger again. She took a little shop and stocked it well, and put her boys to school

To-day, she is a proprietor of a handsome store. Of her four boys, two are ministers, one is a docter, and the other is a thriving merchant. Nobody knows where the man with the long beard has gone; but if he is living and his eye meets this, he will know the noble result of his generous deed toward Sarah Goodwin and her four boys.

A Word to Girls.

On the Halifax 'Jubilee-day' we were favoured with an interview with the worthy owner of Manor Heath, a princely mansion, which is said to have cost its occupant £30,000 in building. With the beauty of the gardens, and the costly character of the furniture and decorations, we might well be filled with delight and surprise; but there was something which gave us far more pleasure than all the beautiful things that we saw. As the wealthy manufacturer sat in his arm chair, telling us of early days, he said, 'Oh! my mother was a remarkable woman; she was once a farm servant; she lived fourteen years in the same family; she had to milk the cows, and churn the butter, and carry it to market; she had for a long time only £6 a-year wages, and yet she managed to save a nice sum; and her leisure hours were filled up with spinning wool, her mistress allowing her a fourth of the profits for herself.' 'Ah,' said a friend who was present, 'perhaps you are indebted to your good mother for some of your success in the spinning world.' 'Oh, yes,' he replied, 'under God's blessing, I owe everything to my mother.' On our asking if he objected to our informing our readers about his mother, 'Oh, no, I hope I shall never be ashamed to own it,' was the noble reply.

Girls, you see the worth of a good character. Fourteen years' service in one family, saving something out of small wages, using profitably the spare moments, seeking daily for God's blessing and help, prepared the way for making a good wife and a worthy mother, whose sons are now numbered amongst 'the merchant and manufacturing princeses' of Yorkshire, and one of them, a member of the legislature of our land.—Band of Hope Review.

The Happy Boy.

And now to prove that happiness does not depend on the place you are in, or the things you possess, I will tell you a true story. I once knew a little boy named Joseph. He was nearly an orphan; his mother was dead, and his father became a poor drunkard. Besides this, Joseph was lame. One leg had been injured, and it was slowly withering away with much pain, so that our little friend had before him a life of pain and poverty, or dependence. And yet he was the happiest boy in our school. All the boys loved to be with him, because he was not only happy himself but made everybody happy. He was always kind and generous. Everybody knew that this noble boy would do them a favour if he could. His cheery smile seemed like a gleam of warm sunshine. He appeared never to think of himself, and so everybody thought of him and for him. Even stern men loved him, and many a time have I seen them turn from their business and return his lively greeting, and laugh at his pleasant wit.—Honest as day light he was, and men trusted him anywhere. He grew to be a young man, and his pure, earnest, and cheerful spirit made him still everybody's friend, which is only another way of saying that everybody was his friend; and when at last, worn out with sufferings, he died, the whole town mourned as if their own son or brother had gone. I doubt whether many who live even to old age enjoy as much in a long life as Joseph did in a few years, or who have made so many others happy. Noble, generous boy! many a tear starts now at the remembrance of his name. Would that the world were full of such bright spirits.

A Little Child's Reply.

A few days after the death of one of my parishioners, I called on the bereaved family, to sympathise with the widow and fatherless in their sorrows. Incidentally remarking to the youngest born, a bright little fellow of three or four summers, that he had got no father now. I was met with the following cheerful yet affecting reply—a reply which has furnished me food for reflection ever since. 'No,' said the boy: 'I hav'n't got any father,' and the tears began to start from his large blue eyes; 'but,' he added, with a smiling countenance, 'I have got a mother though, and I've got a James, and a William, and a 'Lizabeth, and a Hannah,' referring to his surviving parent, and brothers and sisters. Would that other children, and men and women also, were as reasonable and thoughtful as this little boy; and when some of their blessings are removed, would turn their grateful attention to remaining blessings innumerable which may still be enjoyed.

Above we present you with a likeness of DR. MORSE—the inventor of MORSE'S INDIAN ROOT PILLS. This philanthropist has spent the greater part of his life in travelling, having visited Europe, Asia, and Africa, as well as North America—has spent three years among the Indians of our Western country—it was in this way that the Indian Root Pills were discovered. Dr. Morse was the first man to establish the fact that all diseases arises from Impurity of the Blood—that our strength, health, and life depended upon this vital fluid.

When the various passages become clogged, and do not act in perfect harmony with the different functions of the body, the blood loses its action, becomes thick, corrupted and diseased: thus causing all pains, sickness and distress of every name; our strength is exhausted, our health we are deprived of, and if nature is not assisted in throwing off the stagnant humors, the blood will become choked and cease to act, and thus our light of life will forever be blown out. How important then that we should keep the various passages of the body free and open. And how pleasant to us that we have it in our power to put a medicine in your reach, namely, Morse's Indian Root Pills, manufactured from plants and roots which grow around the mountainous cliffs in Nature's garden, for the health and recovery of diseased man. One of the roots from which these Pills are made is a Sudorific, which opens the pores of the skin, and assists Nature in throwing out the finer parts of the corruptain within. The second is a plant which is an Expectorant, that opens and unclogs the passage to the lungs, and thus, in a soothing manner, performs its duty by throwing off phlegm, and other humors from the lungs, by copious spitting. The third is a Diuretic, which gives ease and double strength to the kidneys, thus encouraged, they draw large amounts of impurity from the blood, which is then thrown out beautifully by the urinary or water passage, and which could not have been discharged in any other way. The fourth is a Cathartic, and accompanies the other properties of the Pills while engaged in purifying the blood; the coarser particles of impurities which cannot pass by the other outlets, are thus taken up and conveyed off in great quantities by the bowels.

From this above, it is shown that Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills not only enter the stomach, but are mixed with the blood, for they find way to every part, and completely rout out and cleanse the system from all impurity, and the life of the body, which is the blood, becomes perfectly healthy; consequently all sickness and pain is driven from the system for they cannot remain when the body becomes so pure and clear.

The reason why people are so distressed when sick, and why so many die, is because they do not get a medicine which will pass to the affected parts, and which will open the natural passages—for the disease to be cast out; hence, a large quantity of food and other matter is lodged in the stomach and intestines are literally overflowing with the corrupted mass; thus undergoing disagreeable fermentation, and perhaps mixing with the blood, which throws the corrupted matter throughout the system, and battery, until life is taken from the body by disease. Dr. Morse's PILLS have added to themselves victory upon victory, by restoring million of the sick to blooming health and happiness. Yes, thousands who have been racked or tormented with sickness, pain and anguish, and whose bodies frames have been scorched by the burning elements of raging fever, and who have been brought, as if were, within a step of the silent grave, now stand ready to testify that they would have been numbered with the dead, had it not been for this great and wonderful medicine, Morse's Indian Root Pills. After one or two doses had been taken, they were astonished, and absolutely surprised, in witnessing their charming effects. Not only do give immediate ease and strength, and take away all sickness, pain and anguish, but they at once go to work at the foundation of the disease, which is the Blood. Therefore, it will be shown, especially by those who use these Pills, that they, will so cleanse and purify, that disease—that deadly enemy—will take the flight, and the flush of youth and beauty will again return, and the prospect of a long happy life will be cheered and brightened your days.

Get life of Dr. Morse's father at Drug Stores, showing how this medicine was introduced.

PROFESSOR WOOD'S HAIR RESTORATIVE.

IT HAS WORKED MIRACLES!

THAT ALL THE BALD AND GRAY CAN BE RESTORED PERFECTLY to original growth, and color so far as their locks are concerned does not admit of doubt; besides it will cure every possible disease of the scalp, whether developed in dandruff itching or in the shape of cutaneous eruptions—even scald-head—and in no possible case will it fail in curing as if by magic, nervous or periodical head-ache, and if used twice a week by the young regularly, it will preserve the color, and keep the hair from falling, to any imaginable age. Read and judge.

Milford, Worchester Co., Mass., Nov. 1855.

PROF. O. J. WOOD—Dear Sir; I take pleasure in bearing voluntary testimony to the magic effects of your wonderful Hair Restorative. As far back as 1836, my hair commenced falling off, and the top of my scalp became bald and smooth as glass, and it has continued to fall for a great many years, notwithstanding I have used many celebrated preparations for restoration. Seeing your advertisement I was induced to give your article a trial, and to my utter astonishment, found, after few applications, that my hair became firmly set, and assumed a glossy and beautiful appearance; and by the time I had used a quart bottle, my bald head was covered over with a young and vigorous growth of hair, which is now from one to two inches in length, and growing fast.

Yours, truly, HENRY GOODRICH.

CHARLESTOWN, MASS., Aug. 7, 1856.

GENTS:—Nothing but a duty and sympathy that I feel to communicate to others that are afflicted as I have been, would induce me to give this public acknowledgement of the benefit I have received from Prof. Wood's Hair Restorative When I first commenced using it, my hair was quite gray, and in spots entirely bald. I have now used the Restorative about five months, and my hair is entirely changed to its original color, brown, and the new hair is over three inches in length on the spots where it was bald. I have also been much gratified at the healthy nourishment and vigor of the hair, which before was dry, and it has ceased to come out as formerly. Respectfully yours, &c., MRS. E. A. STODDARD.

From Mrs. Ingalls, a well known nurse in Boston

Boston Oct. 18th, 1855

GENTS:—At your request, and being so highly pleased with the effects of the Restorative, I am free to state that my hair had become quite thin, and entirely WHITE. I have for the last five years been in the habit of using dye, but hearing of the extraordinary effects of this article, I was induced to try it. My hair has been restored to its original thickness, and also to its former color, which is light brown.

Yours respectfully, MRS. INGALLS.

The following is from the Pastor of the Orthodox Church, Brookfield.

BROOKFIELD, Miss., Jan. 12, 1855.

Prof. WOOD—Dear Sir—Having made trial of your Hair Restorative, it gives me pleasure to say, that its effects have been excellent in removing inflammation, dandruff, and a constant tendency to itching, with which I have been troubled from my childhood, and has also restored the hair, which was becoming gray, to its original color. I have used no other article, with anything like the same pleasure and profit. Yours, truly, J. K. BRAGG.

[From the Jersey City Telegraph.]

WHAT IS IT FOR—THE WOOD'S HAIR RESTORATIVE?—Is a question asked daily by hundreds. We answer without hesitation or fear of contradiction, that it is the only article known which will do all it promises for the human hair. It will renew its growth—it will stop its falling—it will restore its natural color! It is not a Hair Dye, but a speedy and effective Hair Restorative.

Dr. McLANE'S CELEBRATED VERMIFUGE AND LIVER PILLS.

Two of the best Preparations of the Age

They are not recommended as Universal Cure-alls, but simply for what their name purports.

The VERMIFUGE, for expelling Worms from the human system, has also been administered with the most satisfactory results to various animals subject to Worms.

The LIVER PILLS, for the cure of LIVER COMPLAINT, all BILIOUS DERANGEMENTS, SICK HEADACHE, &c.

Purchasers will please be particular to ask for Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated VERMIFUGE and LIVER PILLS, prepared by

Fleming Bro's

SOLE PROPRIETORS, Pittsburgh, Pa., and take no other, as there are various other preparations now before the public, purporting to be Vermifuge and Liver Pills. All others, in comparison with Dr. McLANE'S, are worthless.

The GENUINE McLane's Vermifuge and Liver Pills can now be had at all respectable Drug Stores.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.

DR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, Mass., has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds, a remedy that cures EVERY KIND OF HUMOUR, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple. He has tried it in over seven hundred cases and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humours). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its virtue, all within twenty miles of Boston.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.

One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.

Two to three bottles will clear the system of biles.

Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth, and stomach.

Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of erysipelas.

One to two bottles are warranted to cure all humour in the eyes.

Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears and blotches among the hair.

Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corrupt and running ulcers.

One bottle will cure scaly eruption of the skin.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of ringworm.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.

Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the so t rheum.

Five to 8 bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.

Reader, I peddled over a thousand bottles of this in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effect of it in every case. Be sure to water will extinguish fire so sure will this cure humor. I never sold a bottle of it but that sold another after trial. It speaks for itself. There are two things about this herb that are surprising; first, that it grows in our pastures, in some places quite plentiful, and secondly, that it should cure all kinds of humour.

In order to give some idea of the sudden rise and great popularity of the discovery, I will state that in April, 1855, I peddled it, and sold from six bottles per day: in April, 1856 I sold over one thousand bottles per day of it.

Some of the wholesale Druggists who have been in business twenty and thirty years, say that nothing in the annals of patent specifics was ever like it. There is a universal demand for it from all quarters.

In my own practice I always kept it strictly for humour but since its introduction as a general family medicine, great and wonderful virtues have been found in it that I never suspected.

Several cases of epileptic fits—a disease which was always considered incurable, have been cured by a few bottles. O, what a mercy if it will prove effectual in all cases of that awful malady—there are but few who have seen more of it than I have.

I know of several cases of Dropsy, all of them aged people, cured by it. For the various diseases of the Liver, Sick Headache, Dyspepsia, Asthma, Fever and Ague, Pain in the Side, Diseases of the Spine, and particularly in diseases of the Kidneys, &c., the discovery has done more good than any medicine ever known.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can, and enough of it.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE.—Adults, one table spoonful per day. Children over ten years a dessert spoonful. Children from five to eight years, a tea spoonful. As no directions can be applicable to all constitutions, take sufficient to operate on the bowels twice a day.
