A PRAYER FOR YOU.

I have a Saviour—He's pleading in glory—
So precious, though earthly enjoyments be few;
And now He's watching in tenderness o'er me;
But O, that my Saviour was your Saviour too!
For you I am praying—I'm praying for you!

I have a Father—to me He has given
A hope for eternity, precious and true;
And soon will my spirit be with Him in Heaven;
But O, that He'd let me bring you with me too!
For you I am praying—I'm praying for you!

I have a Crown—and I'll wear it for ever—
Encircled with jewels of heavenly hue;
'Twas purchased by Jesus, my glorified Saviour;
But O, could I know one was purchased for you!
For you I am praying—I'm praying for you!

I have a Robe—'tis resplendent in whiteness—
Awaiting in glory my wondering view;
O, when I'll receive it, all shining in brightness,
Dear friend, could I see you receiving one too!
For you I am praying—I'm praying for you!

I have a Rest—and the earnest is given—
Though now, for a time, 'tis concealed from my view;
'Tis life everlasting—'tis Jesus—'tis Heaven;
And O, dearest friend, let me meet you there too!
For you I am praying—I'm praying for you!

I have a Peace—and it's calm as a river—
A peace that the friend of the world never knew;
My Saviour alone is its Author and Giver;
But O, could I know it was given to you!
For you I am praying—I'm praying for you!

For you I am praying—for you I am praying!
For you I am praying—for you, yes, for you!
And soon shall I hear you rejoicing and saying—
"Your dear loving Saviour is my Saviour too!"
And prayer will be answered for you—yes, for you!

And when He has found you, tell others the story,
How Jesus extended His mercy to you;
Then point them away to the regions of glory,
And pray that your Saviour may bring them there too!
For prayer will be answered—'twas answered for you.

O speak of that Saviour, that Father in Heaven;
That Harp, Crown, and Robe which are waiting for you;
That Peace you possess, and that Rest to be given!
Still praying that Jesus may save them like you,
And prayer will be answered—'twas answered for you.—Christian Witness.

Miscellaneous.

THE BOY THAT LOVED HIS MOTHER.

Sometimes, when I have been visiting sick people, I have seen a little girl watching beside her mother's bed, and arranging her pillows, or stealing about on tiptoe to fetch anything she wanted, so fearful lest she should disturb her, and make her head ache. But more interesting still is it to see a little boy fulfilling such kind offices as he can for a dear sick mother. Nursing is a part of a woman's work, and God gives her, for the most part, even in childhood, a gentle hand and a quiet step to point out the work he means her to do. But boys are mostly noisy and thoughtless; so that I think it is much harder work for them to control their high spirits and creep about in a sick room.

But love, you know, makes even hard things easy; and I am going to tell you how a little boy not only watched over his sick mother, but was the means of saving her life.

First of all, you must know that in a small town of France, about a hundred years ago, there lived a miser. He was a man who loved money so much that he denied himself the common necessaries of life in order to save it. A miserable, unhappy man was Master Lombard; for that was his name. He was by trade a chemist, and he had made a great deal of money; but he lived just like a beggar. He had no wife nor children, nor even friends; he never showed anybody any kindness.

At night, when he shut up his shop, he would sit by the smallest scrap of fire, and eat a dry crust for his supper; then he would bring out his gold pieces and count them over and over to himself. Alas! of what use were they hoarded up like that? I think if Master Lombard had ever tried the delight of doing good to others with even one of those gold pieces, he would have found counting them up a very poor pleasure in comparison. But he never did try it; he never gave anything away; he never made anybody happier. I do not know whether he ever read the Bible words, "He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth to the Lord, and that which he layeth out will he pay him again." If he did they never reached his heart. He lent money to other people, to bring him in a profit; but he never tried the better profit of lending it to the Lord.

One cold winter's night he was sitting as usual in his back parlor, cold and shivering, with nothing in all the world to comfort him but his bags of gold, when he heard a knock at the outer door. He did not trouble himself to get up to answer it at first, for he thought perhaps it was only a foolish boy playing him a trick, and that, if it really were a customer, he would be sure to knock again. Presently the knock did come again, and then Master Lombard slowly rose from his seat, passed through the shop, unbarred the door, and looked out into the street. The ground was covered with snow, and all was still and silent; so that he was about to close the door again, angry at having been disturbed for nothing, when a thinly clad boy stepped out of the shadow of the doorway.

"Please you, good Master Lombard, it is me."

"Me! and who dares disturb me at this time of night? who says I never give to those who want? they speak false. You want a thrashing; and you shall have it," and he seized the trembling child to fulfil his threat.

He struggled from his grasp, and again began to tell his tale.

"Please Master Lombard, I only want some medicine for my mother." Lombard would again have interrupted him, but he continued, "She is ill, sir—she is dying, partly from want of food; but this medicine may save her, if you will only give it to me. Look, it is in Latin, but you can read it."

The apothecary took the paper from the boy's hand, and, stepping back into the shop, put on his spectacles to read it. When he had finished, the boy told of his mother's affliction, and asked anxiously whether the remedy was a good one.

"Yes," said Lombard, "the remedy is good, but it is dear; it will cost a good deal of money."

"O, what shall I do? for I have only fivepence;" and the boy thought of his sick and dying mother, with an agony of distress.

The miser looked on in cold unconcern. Well does the Bible say, "The love of money is the root of all evil." He had gold in plenty, but he never thought of giving it to save a fellow-creature's life. "It is no affair of mine," muttered he.

"Oh, if you will only let me have the medicine," again sighed the child.

"Bring the money, and you shall have it; but not a drop without, I tell you," was the hard reply.

"Oh, Master Lombard, give me but the medicine for my mother, and I will be your servant, you slave; I will work for you night and day; I will do anything, go anywhere—only save my mother."

The hard and cruel miser began to relent. "I want a boy," he thought to himself; "I know this one to be steady and clever; I can work him hard, feed him little; it would answer my purpose. Yes, I will take the boy—I might have done worse;" and having come to this conclusion, he made up the medicine, and then returned to his cold, solitary parlor to meditate over his bargain.

The grateful boy meanwhile hastened home to his mother. He gave her the coveted draught, which had cost him so much to earn, and then all through the night he watched beside the sick bed. It was cold and cheerless; but what mattered that? Others were sleeping, he was watching; others had comfort around him, he had none; but he cared not: his whole soul was absorbed in the one hope for his mother's life; and, if that was spared to him, all else seemed as nothing. His brave young heart rose even in the prospect of the difficult path to which he had bound himself, if only God would spare his mother.

And God did reward such love as this. When the morning dawned, she opened her eyes, she spoke to him, she was better: the medicine had worked its desired end. When she was well enough to hear his story how sad and grieved she was to hear of the hard lot before him, and yet how she thanked God for having given her such a son. She was a widow, in sickness and poverty, yet how rich she felt in the possession of this better gift than worldly goods!

In due time she recovered, and the boy entered upon his duties in Lombard's shop. Hard indeed they were, and very difficult he was to please; the food was bad, and lodging worse, yet he never complained; and more than this, he prospered. The lad was clever—God had given him talents; better still, he was painstaking and industrious. As the years passed on, he grew rapidly in knowledge, and in the good opinion of others; so that at last the poor fatherless boy, the miser's apprentice, became a wealthy and a celebrated man, the chemist Parmentier.

God does fulfil his own promise, and, even in this world, reward and prosper those who honor their parents. There is only one commandment to which an earthly reward is attached; and when God promises we may be quite sure he means what he says—"Honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee." Not that length of days may be exactly the shape the blessing may take to us; you know, to the Jew, length of days was the very best of earthly blessings, because each one hoped he might, by living a long time, live to see the promised Messiah; and so God in his commandment graciously appeals to this very feeling of their heart. But to us it is different, and it does not follow that the blessing will come to us in the form of a long life; but in some way God will show that he is especially pleased with those who love and honor their father and mother.—Child's Companion.

LOVE YOUR LITTLE BROTHER.

I had a little friend,
And every day he crept
In sadness to his brother's tomb
And laid him down and wept.

And when I asked him why
He mourned so long and sore,
He answered through his tears, "Because
I did not love him more.

"Sometimes I was not kind,
Or cross or coldly spake—"
And then he turned away and sobbed
As though his heart would break.

Brothers and sisters are a gift
Of mercy from the skies;
And may I always think of this
Whene'er they meet my eyes;

Be tender, good and kind,
And love them in my heart,
Lest I should die with bitter grief,
When we are called to part.

—Mrs. Sigourney.

ASCENT OF MOUNT VESUVIUS

DURING ERUPTION, 9TH FEBRUARY.

The wind blowing from the south made the ascent by the usual route impracticable; they held more to the west. Though the mountain at this side is steeper, still it had the advantage of being free from the drifting ashes, and smaller pieces of lava, though, every now and then a larger mass, whirling upwards would appear, when it obeyed the laws of gravity, to be coming directly down on them. Their only chance was to stand still, as a single false step on the uneven ground, covered with frozen snow, hard as ice, would have sent them headlong to certain death. After a toilsome climb of more than an hour—carefully keeping track in the footsteps of the guide—they at last reached the level space on the summit, and heartily wished themselves safely back at Naples. The thundering roar of each eruption—vomiting, high over head, thousands of pieces of molten lava—was so terrific, yet so grand, that they stood speechless in fear and awe. The molten masses—many of them thrown fully 1000 feet into space—fell thickly around them; but being on a level, they had better chance of escaping, when they saw them making directly at them. Several pieces came down into the snow, squashing and hissing, and flew into pieces like a bombshell. The entire ones were of an oval form, from the velocity of their descent, the outer crust being slightly blackened from contact with the air. With the greatest facility they were able to insert coins into these pieces of lava; squeezing them in with their alpen-stocks, and turning the hot edges over on the money, they allowed the pieces to cool—thus they were permanently fixed. Many of these they brought back as trophies. From the expansion of the metals, many of the five centesimi (half-penny) pieces, thus brought into sudden contact with the great heat, flew instantaneously into fragments.

An American, who formed one of the party, determined to have a look at the interior of the crater, although the ground 100 yards from its verge was absolutely shaking under their feet every second. The guide implored him, by all the saints in the calendar, to come back, otherwise he would be held responsible for allowing him to go. But off he started at a run, telling his friends, should he not return, to free the guide from all blame in the matter. The guide then went after him. Ten minutes or so elapsed ere their return, his verdict of what he had witnessed being—"I would not have missed that sight for ten of the best years of my life." All the party then hastened at a run towards the point which he described, directly on the brink of the crater, where the fall was perpendicular.

Internally the crater was one glowing mass of rolling vapour, white and transparent from the seething fires at the bottom, the sides of a brilliant red. Crash, roar, up it came, a perfect cloud, thousands of pieces whirling over them. A very few seconds of this work was quite enough for them; the edge had fallen in within a few feet of where they were, the very next shock might loosen that on which they stood. Without a word, back they all ran, till they were again on the slopes of the mountain; then, and then only, were they able to realize in words that one glimpse into the infernal abyss.

The sale of the Plantation Bitters is without precedent in the history of the world. There is no secret in the matter. They are at once the most speedy, strengthening, health restorer ever discovered. It requires but a single trial to understand this. Their purity can always be relied upon. They are composed of the celebrated Calisaya Bark, Cascarilla Bark, Dandelion, Chamomile Flowers, Wintergreen, Anise, Clover Buds, Orange Peel, Snake Root, Caraway, Coriander, Burdock.

S.—T.—1860—X. &c.

They are especially recommended to clergymen, public speakers, and persons of literary habits and sedentary life, who require free digestion, a relish for food, and clear mental faculties.
Debeate females and weak persons are certain to find in these Bitters what they have so long looked for.
They purify, strengthen, and invigorate.
They create a healthy appetite.
They are an antidote to change of water and diet.
They overcome the effects of dissipation and late hours.
They strengthen the system and enliven the mind.
They prevent miasmatic and intermittent fevers.
They purify the breath and acidity of the stomach.
They cure Dyspepsia and Constipation.
They cure Diarrhœa, Cholera and Cholera Morbus.
They cure Liver Complaint and Nervous Headache.
They are the best Bitters in the world. They make the weak man strong, and are exhausted nature's great restorer.

The following startling and emphatic statements can be seen at our office:—

Letter of Rev. E. F. Crane, Chaplain of the 107th New York Regiment:

Near Acquia Creek, March 4, 1863.

Owing to the great exposure and terrible decomposition after the battle of Antietam, I was utterly prostrated and very sick. My stomach would not retain medicine. An article called Plantation Bitters, prepared by Dr. Drake, of New York, was prescribed to give me strength and an appetite. To my great surprise they gave me immediate relief. Two bottles almost allayed me to join my regiment. * * * I have since seen them used in many cases, and am free to say, for hospital or private purposes I know of nothing like them.

Rev. E. F. Crane, Chaplain.

Letter from the Rev. N. E. Gilbs, St. Clairsville, Pa.:

Gentlemen—You were kind enough, on a former occasion, to send me half a dozen bottles of Plantation Bitters for $5.00. My wife having derived so much benefit from the use of these Bitters, I desire her to continue them, and you will please send us six bottles more for the money enclosed.
I am very truly yours, N. E. Gilbs,
Pastor Cong. Nat. Church.

Soldiers' Home, Superintendent's Office,
Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 5th, 1863.
* * * * * * *
I have given your Plantation Bitters to hundreds of our noble soldiers who stop here, more or less disabled from various causes, and the effect is marvellous and gratifying. Such a preparation as this I heartily wish in every family, in every hospital, and at hand on every battle field.
H. W. D. Akunsw, Superintendent.

Dr. W. A. Cullen, Surgeon of the 10th Vermont Regiment, writes: "I wish every soldier had a bottle of Plantation Bitters. They are the most effective, perfect, and harmless tonic I ever used."

Willard's Hotel, Washington, D. C., May 22, 1863.

Gentlemen—We require another supply of your Plantation Bitters, the popularity of which daily increases with the guests of our house.
Respectfully, Sykes, Chadwick & Co.

A HINT TO THE WORTHY CITIZENS OF NEW BRUNSWICK—BE WARNED IN TIME!
As parties purchasing my Pills and Ointment for their several complaints, are respectfully warned against purchasing either Pills or Ointment purporting to be my preparations, that have a United States Stamp around the Boxes or Pots. There is no Treaty between the people of the States and the Home Government, therefore an American Stamp does not protect my preparations. There are no stamps upon my Canadian style of Pills or Ointment coming from the United States. I rely only for protection on the water mark in the book of directions around each Pot or Box. Before you purchase them, see that there are no U. S. Stamps upon the Box of Pills or Ointment. Purchase none that have United States stamps on.

Annual Revenue	103,000
Existing Assurances	2,700,000

WALTER BUCHANAN, of Shandon, Esq., M. P., Chairman.
W. F. BIRKMYRE, Esq., Manager and Actuary.
VARIOUS MODES OF ASSURING.
Half Premium System, without debt or interest.
Endowment Assurances.
Partnership Assurances.
Short Term Assurances.
THE "City of Glasgow Life Assurance Company" was established in 1825, by special Act of Parliament. It has now been conducted with much success for 39 years, which is attributable not only to the perfect security which it affords for the due fulfilment of every contract, but likewise to the Company's extensive and influential connexions and to the liberality of its dealings.
The Premiums are equitably graduated. The Profits are distributed with a due regard to the claims of all classes of Policy-holders.
The last declaration of Bonus was made 20th January, 1864, which is the close of the Company's financial year, when a Bonus at the rate of one and a half per cent. on the sums assured was declared for the past year. In place of the surplus being annually divided, the profits will in future be ascertained and allocated quinquennially. Policies participate from the date of their issue, but the Bonuses do not vest until they have been five years in existence. Rates of Assurance and all other information may be learned from the Agent, WILLIAM MACKAY,

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY, 92 Lombard-street, London, and Royal Insurance buildings, Liverpool.
Chairman of the London Board.—Samuel Baker, Esq.
Chairman in Liverpool.—Charles Turner, Esq.
The Royal Insurance Company is one of the largest Offices in the kingdom.
At the Annual Meeting held in August 1859, the following highly satisfactory results were shown:—
FIRE DEPARTMENT.
The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the business is exhibited in the one following fact—that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing and of many of the recently defunct fire insurance companies of this kingdom.

The Premiums for the year 1855 being	£130,060
While the Premiums for the year 1858 are	196,148
Showing an actual increase of	66,088

or upwards of 50 per cent. in three years.
The recent returns of duty made by Government for this latter year (1858) again show the "Royal" as more than maintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. Only one among the London insurance offices exhibits an advance to the extent of one-half the increase of the Company, while all the others respectively fall far short of the moiety of its advance.
LIFE DEPARTMENT.
The amount of new Life Premiums received this year is by far the largest received in any similar period since the commencement of the business, and must far exceed the average of amount received by the most successful office in the kingdom. The number of policies issued in the year was 852, the sum assured £257,752 9s. 8d., and the premium £12,354 5s. 4d. These figures show a very rapid extension of business during the last ten years. Thus:—

Years.	No. of Policies.	Sums Assured.	New Premiums.
1848	95	£48,764 17 0	£1,860 [illegible] 1
1850	199	95,650 9 11	2,627 4 7
1852	422	181,504 10 6	5,828 3 10
1854	403	161,948 13 4	4,894 16 0
1856	703	297,560 16 8	8,850 3 11
1858	852	257,752 6 8	12,354 2 4

The remarkable increase in the business of the last four years is mainly consequent upon the large bonus declared in 1855, which amounted to no less than 43 per cent. per annum on the sums assured, and averaged 80 per cent. upon the premiums paid.
