Poetry.

From the Presbyterian Witness.

THE SABBATH.

Sweet day of rest! thy hallowed name
Is music to the Christian's ear;
Thy sacred hours, let all proclaim,
The sweetest hours of all the year.

The Sabbath! fraught with many joys,
And hallowed recollections too,
Is this sweet word: it has a voice
That speaks; though heard and loved by few.

It bids the toil-worn and the sad
Rejoice for toil and sorrow o'er;
It speaks in soothing tones, "be glad,"
"In Heaven there's rest for evermore."

How sweet the hush and quietude
Of nature on this holy day?
As if she wished in gratitude
To waft to Heaven a morning lay.

How sweet the chime of Sabbath bells
That calls us to the house of prayer!
How quickly it all gloom dispels
As light it floats upon the air!

It cheers the way-worn pilgrim's heart—
'Tis sweetest music to his ear—
Inviting him to take a part
In praising God he loves so dear.

O Saviour fill our souls with grace,
Inflame our hearts with fondest love,
That we may long to see thy face
And hope for rest in Heaven above.

And may our Sabbaths, as they pass,
Be each a foretaste of that rest,
Which thou wilt give thine own at last,
When they, for aye, by thee are blest.

Miscellaneous.

"I DARE YOU!"

"Pooh! I could do it easily, and be back here again before you could count fifty!"

"May be so; but you don't dare to try it!"

"Don't dare? now Tom, you know better!"

"Well, I dare you!"

The boy's eyes flashed. In a moment he was over the boundary line, skating skillfully over the forbidden ice, while his schoolmates looked on—some with astonishment, some with fear, and a few with shouts of applause. Clear to the other side he went, though the ice cracked and bent; then, with a graceful turn, he was coming toward them again, swifter, swifter, with a look of pride on his glowing face; and the praises of the other boys already sounded in his ears.

"Good for you, Win!"

"Hurrah for ——!"

Who? Where was he? where the proud form and smiling face, and the dark hair, uncovered in the moment of exultation? Gone! hidden in one moment from their sight, under the ice, and the waters rose up over the spot, as if their time of triumph had come then.

"O, what shall we do?"

"Run quick! get a rope!"

"Stand back! every one of you!" and the voice, generally so kind, frightened them now with its sternness; and they looked in silence at the teacher's white face, as he drew off his gown and crept with it to the boundary line which he had marked for the boys that morning. Over that, too, so carefully, yet so quickly; and the ice cracked, cracked! And the boys could none of them tell just how it was done, only that soon the dark, dripping hair of their schoolmate appeared above the broken ice; then his body, slowly, slowly dragged towards them, his hand clutching tightly the teacher's dressing gown.

The teacher did not speak; and they dared not. In the teacher's own strong arms Winthrop was carried to the house, and rubbed; and, no, he was not dead! for in a few minutes he opened his eyes, and looking at the group of anxious boyish faces gathered round, he said: "All right." How it brightened every heart there! The boys could speak now.

"Oh, Win! I haven't counted the fifty yet!" burst out Tom, excitedly, trying to laugh; but if he had not been a boy, he would certainly have cried instead.

"Now, let me hear all about it," said their teacher, calmly, as the color began to come back into Winthrop's cheeks.

"It is all my fault!" said Tom, humbly.

"How came you to disobey my rule, Winthrop, and go beyond the boundary?"

"Why, I hardly thought about the rule, sir; I wanted to let them see that I wasn't afraid of the ice! they dared me to do it; and when any one dares me to do a thing—" Winthrop stopped suddenly, as the recollection came over him of the cold, gurgling waters, and of those few terrible moments of suspense.

"Then you always dare to do it; is that what you mean?"

"Yes sir," but the voice was not so full of confidence as it had been half an hour before.

"And the end of your daring, this time, might have been—death!"

A shudder crept over the boy's heart.

"Oh, sir! please don't! I dared him!" said poor Tom.

"And so you think a boy is a coward who is dared to do a thing, and doesn't do it?"

"It looks so," answered Winthrop.

"Ah, my boy, you must get rid of that idea; it is all wrong! He who refuses to do a sinful or a dangerous thing, even when people say, 'I dare you,' is a true hero; and he who runs all risks to do something, just because he is 'dared,' is by far the most cowardly and foolish. Don't look so downhearted, Winthrop; I want you to be truly heroic, and I know you can do things very bravely sometimes. For instance, if I should say you must not go skating another day during this season, you would bear the punishment without complaint, I think."

"Yes sir," answered the boy, with a touch of the old pride in his voice.

"Mayn't I bear the punishment? It was my fault?"

"I haven't given any punishment yet, Tom, I have only given this lesson about true bravery for you all to learn. And now, be off every one of you, and let Winthrop rest, while I go to examine my dressing gown; and if it is entirely ruined, I'll pass a subscription around among you to get a new one." And the kind man smiled as he left them, but his heart was full; and he went to thank God for the safety of his pupil, and to pray that he might become truly brave and noble.

Boys, never be dared into doing what is wrong. Do not take one step aside from the safe and straight path, no matter how many voices say, "I dare you." Be brave enough to say, "I dare not," to every temptation. And always:

"Dare to be right! dare to be true!
All the world's scorning can never harm you!
Stand by your conscience, your honor, your faith;
Stand like a hero and battle till death."

"I wish I could mind God as my little dog minds me," said a little boy, looking thoughtfully upon his shaggy friend, "he always looks so pleased to mind, and I don't."

THE TRUTHFUL WITNESS.

A little girl, nine years of age, was offered as a witness against a prisoner, who was on trial for a felony committed in her father's house.

"Now, Emily," said the counsel for the prisoner, upon her being offered as a witness, "I desire to know if you understand the nature of an oath."

"I don't know what you mean," was the simple answer.

"There your Honor," said the counsel addressing the court, "is there anything further necessary to demonstrate the validity of my objection? This witness should be rejected. She does not comprehend the nature of an oath."

"Let us see," said the Judge. "Come here my daughter."

Assured by the kind tone and manner of the Judge, the child stepped towards him and looked up confidingly in his face, with a calm, clear eye, and in a manner so artless and frank that it went straight to his heart.

"Did you ever take an oath?" enquired the Judge.

The little girl stepped back with a look of horror, and the red blood mantled in a blush all over her face and neck, as she answered—

"No sir."

She thought he meant to inquire if she had ever blasphemed.

"I do not mean that," said the Judge, who saw his mistake, "I mean were you ever a witness before?"

"No sir, I was never in a court before," was the answer.

He handed her the Bible open.

"Do you know that book, my daughter.

She looked at it and answered, "Yes sir, it is the Bible."

"Do you ever read it?" he asked.

"Yes sir, every evening."

"Can you tell me what the Bible is?" inquired the Judge.

"It is the word of the great God," she answered.

"Well, place your hand upon this Bible, and listen to what I say;" and he repeated slowly and solemnly the oath usually administered to witnesses.

"Now," said the Judge, "you have sworn as a witness; will you tell me what will befall you if you do not tell the truth?"

"I shall be shut up in the State Prison," answered the child.

"Anything else?" asked the Judge.

"I shall never go to heaven," she replied.

"How do you know this?" asked the Judge, again.

The child took the Bible, and turning rapidly to the Bible containing the commandments, pointed to the injunction, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." "I learned that before I could read."

"Has any one talked with you about your being witness in court here against this man?" inquired the Judge.

"Yes sir," she replied. "My mother heard they wanted me to be a witness, and last night she called me to her room, and asked me to tell her the ten commandments, and then we kneeled down together, and she prayed that I might understand how wicked it was to bear false witness against my neighbour, and that God would help me, a little child, to tell the truth as it was before Him. And when I came up here with father, she kissed me, and told me to remember the ninth commandment, and that God would hear every word, that I said."

"Do you believe this?" asked the Judge, while a tear glistened in his eye, and his lip quivered with emotion.

"Yes sir," said the child, with a voice that showed that her conviction of its truth was perfect.

"God bless you, my child," said the Judge, "you have a good mother. This witness is competent," he continued. "Were I on trial for my life, and innocent of the charge against me, I would pray God for such a witness as this. Let her be examined."

She told her story with the simplicity of a child, as she was, but there was a directness about it that carried conviction of its truth to every heart. She was rigidly cross-examined. The counsel plied her with infinite and ingenious questionings, but she varied from her first statements in nothing.

The truth so spoken by that little child, was sublime. Falsehood and perjury had preceded her testimony. The prisoner had entrenched himself impregnable. But before her testimony falsehood was scattered like chaff. The little child, for whom a mother had prayed for strength to be given her to speak the truth as it was before God, broke the cunning devices of matured villany to pieces like a potter's vessel. The strength that her mother prayed for was given her, and the sublime simplicity—terrible, I mean, to the prisoner and his associates—with which she spoke, was like revelation from God himself.

A HANDLE TO HIS HAT.—Dr. Bellamy was riding over one day on horseback, from Bethlem to the neighboring town of Washington, both in Litchfield county. As he came to the centre of Washington, he passed a boy, who gazed upon him in silence. The doctor, after riding by, stopped and said:

"My boy, you go home and tell your father that you want a handle to your hat."

The boy ran home innocently and did the errand.

"Ah!" said the father, "I understand what the difficulty is; you did not make a bow to him. Now the next time he passes you be sure and make him a handsome bow."

The boy watched his opportunity, and whether the same day or at some later time we do not know; but when he saw the doctor coming again on horseback, he mounted a stone wall, and took off his hat with such a flourish, and such a decided inclination of body, that he frightened the doctor's horse so that he shied suddenly and well nigh threw him off. The doctor rode on to the minister's.

"Well," said he, "this is the last time I shall attempt to meddle with the morals or manners of Washington boys," and then told the story.

NO SCOLDING ON FRETTING IN HEAVEN.—A little girl who had witnessed the perplexity of her mother on a certain occasion, when her fortitude gave way under severe trial, said:

"Mother, does God ever fret or scold?"

The query was so abrupt and startling that it arrested the mother's attention almost with a shock.

"Why, Lizzie, what makes you ask that question?"

"Why, God is good; you know you use to call him the 'Good Man' when I was little; and I should like to know if he ever scolds."

"No, child, no."

"Well, I am glad he don't, for scolding always makes me feel so bad, even if it is not I in fault. I don't think that I could love God much if he scolded."

The mother felt rebuked before her simple child. Never had she heard so forcible a lecture on the evils of scolding. The words of Lizzie sank deep in her heart as she turned away from her little innocent one to hide the tears that gathered in her eyes.

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY, 92 Lombard-street, London, and Royal Insurance buildings, Liverpool.

Chairman of the London Board.—SAMUEL BAKER, Esq.
Underwriter in Liverpool.—CHARLES TURNER, Esq.

The Royal Insurance Company is one of the largest Offices in the kingdom.

At the Annual Meeting held in August 1859, the following highly satisfactory results were shown:—

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The most gratifying proof of the expansion of the business is exhibited in the one following fact—that the increase alone of the last three years exceeds the entire business of some of the existing and of many of the recently defunct fire insurance companies of this kingdom.

The Premiums for the year 1855 being.....£130,060
While the Premiums for the year 1858 are.... 196,148
Showing an actual increase of..... 66,088 or upwards of 50 per cent. in three years.

The recent returns of duty made by Government for this latter year (1858) again show the "Royal" as more that maintaining the ratio of its increase as stated in former years. Only one among the London insurance offices exhibits an advance to the extent of one-half the increase of the Company, while all the others respectively fall far short of the moiety of its advance.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

The amount of new Life Premiums received this year is by far the largest received in any similar period since the commencement of the business, and must far exceed the average of amount received by the most successful offices in the kingdom. The number of policies issued in the year was 852, the sum assured £557,752 6s. 8d., and the premium £12,354 3s. 4d. These figures show a very rapid extension of business during the last ten years. Thus:—

Years.	No. of Policies.	Sums Assured.	New Premiums.
1848	98	£46,764 17 0	£1,859 9 1
1850	190	95,659 9 11	3,827 4 7
1852	422	181,504 10 6	5,823 5 10
1854	408	161,848 13 4	4,694 16 0
1856	703	297,560 16 8	8,550 3 11
1858	852	557,752 6 8	12,354 3 4

The remarkable increase in the business of the last four years, is mainly consequent upon the large bonus declared in 1856, which amounted to no less than £4 per cent. per annum on the sums assured and averaged 89 per cent. upon the premiums paid.

ROGERS' MEDICINES

AFTER a test of Four Years before the public, are still increasing in popularity, because they con inue to make cures unparalleled in the history of Medicines, as abundantly appears by the following, among hundreds of similar testimonials, from people of the highest respectability from all parts of the Lower Provinces.

There is no longer any reason why the most hopeless cases in any disease arising from impurities of the blood may not be cured, as well as General Debility, Female Weaknesses, &c.

Our ALTERATIVE SYRUP is beyond all controversy unsurpassed as a purifier of the blood and invigorator of the system. This no man can doubt who will look over the following

CERTIFICATES:

CANCER OF THE WOMB CURED.

Messrs. ROGERS & Co.—Gents: I have been cured by your wonderful Medicine of one of the worst diseases, as follows, viz.:—

I had been afflicted for several years with an internal Tumor, and four years ago I was taken sick with a fever; the old complaint also revived. I had a Doctor attending me, but continued to get worse; we sent for another Doctor. He pronounced it a hopeless case, and said I could not live long. He said the Tumor was then as large as a pint bowl, and was assuming a cancerous nature. I suffered more than tongue can tell. My friends expected me to die daily. They were called in to see me die, and I was reduced to a mere skeleton. I suffered in this dreadful manner for upwards of two years. I at length, as a forlorn hope, was induced to try your medicine. The first lot seemed to make me worse, and I became discouraged; but the Rev. A. W. Barss advised me to continue. I did so, and soon began to improve, and I am now well again, and a wonder to myself and neighbours. I feel as one raised from the dead. I am a young woman of 26 years of age. I state these things for the benefit of suffering humanity, and I cannot begin to describe the severity of my case—it is widely known in the County of Yarmouth, Nova Scotia.

Yours, with much gratitude, LOIS A. HATFIELD.

We, the undersigned, friends of Miss Hatfield, have much pleasure in endorsing all she says above, and much more might be said of this most extraordinary case.

MARIAH GAVILL,
MARY L. MCCORMIE.

ULCERATED CANCER CURED!

Who needs better proof than the following voluntary testimony of Mrs. HANNAH BALMAIN, of Wickham, N. B.:

Some four years since there came a lump in my breast, and at the time I did not know what it was; but on showing it to three Doctors, they told me it was a "Cancer," and for which the knife would have to be applied; then again, I went to a female Doctor, who has been in the habit of caring Cancers by drawing them out, but she informed me that it was deep in the flesh and too long seated, and therefore could not help me. Knowing that something must be done, I concluded to try your medicine, which I saw advertised in the Vindicator. Accordingly, I sent for a can of Ointment and Powders for making the Syrup, which I used without the slightest change at the time. I began to think it was a failure, but concluded to give it another trial; consequently I procured another can of Ointment and Powders, and from its use it gathered and broke in two places, and discharged very freely for about six months, after which time it broke again in another place, and one of the old Ulcers healed up, the remaining two still remaining, one of which ran for two and a half years, the other healing up in about two months after it broke, during which time I used your medicine regularly. I may here state, that the last Ulcer healed up about thirteen months ago, since which time I have enjoyed good health! Yes, I may say better health than I have enjoyed for years.

I remain yours, respectfully,

MRS. HANNAH BALMAIN.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER.

FIVE ISLANDS, Nova Scotia, October 21, 1867.

Messrs. ROGERS & Co.—Gents: My daughter is nicely, and you have done wonders, for I never thought you would make a cure as you have done. Her leg appears to be quite strong, but it itches a little.

Yours, &c., EDWARD CORBETT.

The above was a very severe case of Scrofula of four or five years standing, and after having baffled the skill of the best Physicians and almost every other Patent Medicine, and the child appeared to be on the verge of the grave, and the parents having lost confidence in every thing in the medical line, we undertook the cure for a certain sum, and if we failed were to get nothing; but we succeeded, as we do in every case of Scrofula we undertake. Nearly the whole of the bone—from the knee to the ankle—came out in pieces from time to time. ROGERS & Co.

Mrs. Edwin Starratt, of Port William, Nova Scotia, after having lost the use of her limbs for upwards of three years, has been fully restored to her former health by the use of our medicine. Any one wishing to know the particulars can correspond with Mrs. S., who will give every information. R. & Co.

Mr. Allen, Editor of the Liverpool Transcript, Nova Scotia, has been cured of a very bad scrofulous sore on his leg, of several years standing, after every other means failed. R. & Co.

Miss Miles, of Milton, Queen's County, N. S., was for upwards of three years suffering from a general derangement of the system. Bleeding at the lungs, &c. &c., and to all appearance was fast sinking to the grave. Medical skill and every other means proving ineffectual. In a few months our ALTERATIVE SYRUP restored her to her usual health.

Persons wishing to know the truth of this case can drop a line to the Rev. John Hughs, Baptist Minister at the above place. We could easily fill pages of newspapers with the revelation of such cases, but we deem the above sufficient for the present. R. & Co.

It usually takes from six to twelve months to effect a cure in cases of long standing, and will cost from thirty to sixty dollars. The cheapest way for such cases is to order a $50 box at first, which can be had in New Brunswick by ordering from JOHN CHALONER, Esq., Corner of King and Germain Streets, St. John. But may be had at all the principal Drug Stores by Retail; or, address
