RESIGNATION.

There is no flock, however watched and tended
But one dead lamb is there;
There is no fireside, howsoe'er defended,
But has one vacant chair.

The air is full of farewells to the dying,
And mournings for the dead:
The heart of Rachel, for her children crying,
Will not be comforted.

Let us be patient; these severe afflictions
Not from the ground arise;
But oftentimes celestial benedictions
Assume this dark disguise.

We see but dimly through the mist and vapors—
Amid these earthly damps,
What seem to use but dim funereal tapers,
May be heaven's distant lamps.

There is no death; what seems so is transition:
This life of mortal breath
Is but a suburb of the life elysian,
Whose portals we call death.

She is not dead, the child of our affection,
But gone unto that school
Where she no longer needs our poor protection,
And Christ himself doth rule.

In that great cloister's stillness and seclusion,
By guardian angels led,
Safe from temptation, safe from sin's pollution,
She lives whom we call dead.

Day after day we think what she is doing
In those bright realms of air;
Year after year her tender steps pursuing,
Behold her grown more fair.

Thus do we walk with her, and keep unbroken,
The bond which nature gives,
Thinking that our remembrance, though unspoken,
May reach her where she lives.

Not as a child shall we again behold her;
For when with raptures wild
In our embrace we again enfold her,
She will not be a child;

But a fair maiden, in her Father's mansion,
Clothed with celestial grace,
And beautiful with all the soul's expansion
Shall we behold her face.

And though at times, impetuous with emotion
And anguish long suppressed,
The swelling heart heaves, moaning like the ocean
That cannot be at rest—

We will be patient, and assuage the feeling
We cannot wholly stay,
By silence sanctifying, not concealing,
The grief that must have way.

LINES

SUGGESTED ON THE DEATH OF MR. JOHN MACHUM, BY A FRIEND AND SCHOOL-MATE.

Fond memory will recall the form,
Of him we loved, now passed away,
Far from the trouble and the storms,
That here beset the pilgrim's way.

None tread a thornless path below,
Though roses greet us through the shower;
And in the genial sunlight glow,
Oft sorrow lurks beneath the flower.

Though specious phases life may wear,
And many a pleasing mask put on;
How soon will fade the bright and fair,
How soon life's golden hour be gone.

The dear companion of our way,
Who fought the fight, whose race is o'er;
His bourne the burden of the day,
And safely reached that far off shore.

Yet memory will recall the form,
Of him we loved, though passed away;
Far from the troubles and the storms,
That here beset life's transient day.

When May Children Come to Jesus?

THE FOOLISH BOY THAT WAS WISE.

Selden H—— was a good little boy, but he was deficient in intellect; so much so that many who did not know him intimately, supposed him to be quite an idiot. This supposition however was very wrong, for on some subjects he would converse quite sensibly, and especially on the subject of religion. He was never weary of listening to the beautiful stories which his mother read to him out of God's own blessed book, and when very young he manifested a great desire to become a christian. He would not associate with boys who used bad language, and when ridiculed, as he often was by thoughtless children, he would go home and pray for his persecutors. In this way Selden lived till he was twelve or thirteen years old, when, by his earnest request, he became a member of the church to which his parents belonged. Here he discharged every known duty with a faithfulness which might have shamed older and more intelligent professors, and led the blameless, quiet life of a perfect christian. Though he could not read, he always carried a very small pocket Bible with him, and many times each day he would go away by himself and open the sacred volume, as he said, "to see the good."

As though to compensate for his other deficiencies, Selden was blessed with a sweet voice for singing. He learned tunes easily by rote, and there were many beautiful hymns which he could sing, none of which, however, gave him so much pleasure as the one beginning.

"Alas! and did my Saviour bleed,
And did my Sovereign die?
Would he devote that sacred head,
For such a worm as I?"

This was his favorite, and he would sing it over and over with sweetness and expression, seemed to realize to its fullest extent the meaning of every word and line.

Summer came and went, but save that he grew older, they brought no material change to Selden H——. He led the same quiet, blameless life, and kept praying and singing the same as when he first set out on his heavenly pilgrimage. His only anxiety seemed to be, to avoid all evil, and if at any time he was in error he would cheerfully acknowledge the same and try to do better. (Would it not be well for all my young readers to follow this example?)

But dark days of sorrow were in store for the boy. His kind mother, whom he loved very dearly, was taken suddenly ill, and the doctors said "she must die." A few days of suffering at most, and then she would bid adieu to earthly things and go to rest in Jesus. This was a heavy blow for Selden. Poor Selden! how he wept and prayed that that precious life might be spared, but the white angel had overshadowed the mother with its wings, and nothing of earth could save.

One day Mrs. H—— awoke from an unrefreshing slumber, and fixed her eyes with a look of unutterable love and sorrow upon the pale face of her poor boy, who had taken a watchful station by her bedside.

"Yes, it must be," said she, feebly, "I must go and leave you. O my boy, my poor, poor boy! who will love you when I am gone as I have loved? who will watch over you as I have watched? who will care for you as I have cared?"

Then there was a silence in the room, broken only by the sobs of mother and child, as they clung to each other with more than mere human affection. There was that in their love which partook of the nature of angels, it was so pure, so holy, so free from earthly dross.

After a while Selden sobbed out, "Let me go with you, mother—I cannot live when you are dead."

"I would gladly take you with me, my son, but I cannot," replied the mother.—"But there is One who can and will bring you to heaven in his own good time. Believe in Him, trust in Him, and pray to Him always, my child, and by-and-by you will meet me in glory."

"By-and-by," said Selden, wiping away his tears, "when will 'by-and-by' come, mama?"

"In just a little while, darling, and you must wait patiently, and not murmur or complain at the all-wise decrees of Providence. All is for the best, and though I cannot see it so now, I shall see it so when I put off mortality for immortality, and awake in the likeness of my Saviour."

Selden gazed into the almost angel-face of his dying parent for a while, as though he did not fully understand what she had said to him, then he murmured, slowly,

"Just a little while! that will not be long to wait, and I will pray God to make me patient."

The next day after this conversation with her boy, Mrs. H—— died.

To the surprise of all, Selden did not make any loud manifestations of grief, and when sympathy was offered him by well-meaning friends, he would smile and say,

"Mama is not dead, she has only gone to heaven; and in just a little while I am going to meet her there, for she said I would, and she never told me a lie."

The sexton dug a grave, and the fond hands of sorrowing kindred laid the lifeless form of their loved one to rest among the pale, sweet spring flowers, and amid all the solemn ceremonies Selden looked on with a sad, sweet smile upon his vacant face. When the mound was smoothed over and the last green sod laid in its place, he sat down and refused to leave the spot. It seemed cruel to force him away—so they left him there, and it was not till the shadows of evening began to gather that he sought his father's house.

Every day now the poor child visited his mother's grave, and before the summer was ended people said his great loss was too much for him. But when the golden days of autumn came, they knew he was dying. Though he never complained, his hollow eyes, sunken cheeks, and languid steps, all told but too plainly that the "by-and-by" he was waiting for so patiently, was close at hand.

The trees on the hill-tops were their most gorgeous robes, a few bright flowers still lingered in the meadows, and there was now and then a happy songster, that had not flown to the south, when Selden made a last visit to his mother's resting-place. Very pale and wan was his little face, and his thin hands trembled like aspen leaves, as he laid them upon the cold white stone, but an unnatural brilliancy burned in his pale blue eyes, and the sweet smile that had hovered around his lips so long was sweeter than ever. He knew the "by-and-by" his dear parent had told him of was very near; and who shall say that the pure spirit of the angel-mother did not look down with a smile upon her hopeful, trustful child?

The trees were all stripped of their holiday apparel, and the cold winds blew down hollows with mournful, sighing sounds, when close beside the grave of Mrs. H a shorter, narrower one was opened for Selden. He died as he had lived—leaning with child-like faith and trust upon the strong arm of his heavenly Father, and in his last moments he sang a verse or two of his favorite hymn.

"Alas! and did my Savior bleed," &c.

O if all little children would be wise, and choose the better part as Selden did, they would be well prepared to live or to die. They would not only be happy while they lived, but make other happy, and, what is far better, have for a friend the dear Jesus who died that all, even little children, through him might inherit everlasting life.—Morning Star.

☞ PROCLAMATION TO THE PEOPLE OF NORTH AMERICA.—HEALTH AND PEACE BE MULTIPLIED.—There is no doubt as to the certainty of the cures performed by Dr. LEARY'S ANGLO-SAXON MEDICINE and advice, in the following complaints:—Consumption cured if in any reasonable time, before the Lungs become disorganized; Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Bilious and Liver complaints; cure is warranted, provided the advice given is strictly complied with. The following testimonials ought to convince the most prejudiced of the value and efficacy of the ANGLO-SAXON MEDICINE. I shall here insert a few names of the many certificates in my possession: Mrs. David Jones, Mrs. John Crawford, Mr. George Dunham, residence Indian Town. These persons were afflicted with Dyspepsia—Mrs. Jones, for several years, her case being despaired of, the Anglo-Saxon Medicine and advice completed a cure in each case. Mrs. Jane Sime, and Mr. John Walsh, of Straight Shore, afflicted with Dyspepsia and Liver complaint, have been restored to good health by the use of a few bottles of the Anglo-Saxon Medicine and advice. The following persons from Carleton—Mr. James Dunham, consumption, Mrs. David Thomas, seven years with Dyspepsia, which terminated in consumption; Mrs. John Baker; dyspepsia and inflammation of the lungs; Mr. Edward Watters, confined to his bed for eight weeks with inward ulcers. These persons, by the use of the Anglo-Saxon Medicine, and advice, have been restored to good health. Mrs. Henry Evans, of this City, dyspepsia and inflammation of the lungs; Mr. William Sim, of Hillsburgh, Scotland—complaint, dyspepsia—had the best medical aid in that city, but to no effect; emigrated to Canada, in hopes of being benefited from the climate; consulted with physicians in Montreal, but no lasting benefit from their skill; removed to this City; tried all the remedies recommended for that distressing complaint, but, alas, his case was desperate, until he happened to alight on my advertisement in the Morning Courier. He gave the Anglo-Saxon Medicine a trial, and it has restored him to good health. Now fellow-citizens, and subjects of North America, I am willing you should exercise your own judgment; try all the good medicines in the market; if they should fail, please give my medicine a trial as a last resource.

Hundreds in this City and its environs can testify with heartfelt thankfulness the benefits from the ANGLO-SAXON MEDICINE. This day, March 15th, a gentleman from Greenwich, King's County, Mr. William Lawson informed me of a wonderful cure performed on a young woman, Miss Ann Elson, who had for a year a scrofula complaint in her ancle.—Astonishing to relate, half a vial of the Albion Liniment effected a cure. The Liniment and Anti-Cholera Medicine did not fail in one instance during the Cholera of 1854.

These Medicines I am prepared to warrant to cure the following complaints: Erysipelas, Cancker Sores, Acute and Chronic Rheumatism, Painful Nervous Headache, Bites of Animals, Frost Bites or Chilblains, Sprains and Strains, Chapped Hands, Scalds, Burns, Contraction of the Muscles, Flesh Wounds, no matter how severe, will heal in forty eight hours; Inflammations of all kinds, whether of the Bowels or from wounds; Sore Throat, Colds, Pains in all parts of the body, Worm Fits in Children, rubbed in on the chest and bowels; White Swelling, King's Evil, Scurvy, Itch, all kinds of Sores and Ulcers. The mystery that attends this Liniment is daily coming to light from all parts of the country where it has been introduced.

Office, removed to No. 77 Princess street.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.—Dr. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, Mass., has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds, a remedy that cures EVERY KIND OF HUMOR, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple. He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humours). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its virtue, all within twenty miles of Boston.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a running sore mouth.

One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.

Two to three bottles will clear the system of biles.

Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth and stomach.

Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of erysipelas.

One to two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.

Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears and blotches among the hair.

Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corrupt and running ulcers.

One bottle will cure scaly eruption of the skin.

Two to three bottles warranted to cure the worst case of ringworm.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.

Three to six bottles are warranted to cure the salt rheum.

Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.

Reader, I peddled over a thousand bottles of this in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effect of it in every case. So sure as water will extinguish fire, so sure will this cure humor. I never sold a bottle of it but that said another; after a trial it always speaks for itself. There are two things about this herb that appears to me surprising; first, that it grows in our pastures, in some places quite plentiful, and yet its value has never been known until I discovered it in 1846—second, that it should cure all kinds of humor.

In order to give some idea of the sudden rise and great popularity of the discovery, I will state that in April, 1853, I peddled it, and sold about six bottles per day; in April, 1854, I sold over one thousand bottles per day of it.

Some of the wholesale Druggists who have been in business twenty and thirty years, say that nothing in the annals of patent medicines was ever like it. There is a universal praise of it from all quarters.

In my own practice I always kept it strictly for humors—but since its introduction as a general family medicine, great and wonderful virtues have been found in it that I never suspected.

Several cases of epileptic fits—a disease which was always considered incurable, have been cured by a few bottles. O, what a mercy if it will prove effectual in all cases of that awful malady—there are but few who have seen more of it than I have.

I know of several cases of Dropsy, all of them aged people, cured by it. For the various diseases of the Liver, Sick Headache, Dyspepsia, Asthma, Fever and Ague, Pain in the Side, Diseases of the Spine, and particularly in diseases of the Kidneys, &c., the discovery has done more good than any medicine ever known.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can, and enough of it.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE.—Adults, one table spoonful per day; Children over ten years a dessert spoonful; Children from five to eight years, a tea spoonful. As no directions can be applicable to all constitutions, take sufficient to operate on the bowels twice a day.

THE PRINCIPAL OFFICE for the STATE OF MAINE and the BRITISH PROVINCES is at the Drugand Medicine Establishment of H. H. HAY, 15 and 17 Market Square, Portland, Me., to whom all orders should be addressed. Sold by respectable Druggists throughout the United States and British Provinces. Price, $1.
