THE YOUNG LAUGHING SPRING.

BY REV. F. BOTTOME.

How sweet is the breath of the beautiful spring,
The bloom and the balm of the beautiful May;
The music of birds as they dance on the wing,
The laughter and sunlight of everything gay!
But the blossom will fall and the fruit will decay,
And the spring be succeeded by summer's hot sun;
The light will be quenched from the brightness of day,
And mirth may be hushed into silence at noon.
Then let us be up with the lark in the morn,
And out with the bee while the honey drops fall;
And treasure the moments of life's early dawn
The purest, the richest, and brightest of all:
To work and refreshment, to labor and rest,
Improving the moments as quickly they fly;
To make out of all things the most and the best,
And thus to be ready to live or to die.

No flower ere lifted its beauty in vain;
No fragrance is wasted that falls on the air;
No love-deed in kindness but rises again
In sweet benediction, like answers to prayer.
Then let us be happy and useful and gay,
And scatter in spring-time the love seeds of truth,
That life, as it reaches the close of the day,
May crown with its blessings the morning of youth.

Miscellaneous.

MANAGING CHILDREN.

Our children are our mirrors. If we would know ourselves, we have but to study them. They give back the true reflection. Can there be a sadder sight than the one so often seen of a worn and anxious mother scolding, and shutting up, and whipping, aye, and praying over her bright wayward child, when, were she but to return a clear look, unblinded by self-love, inward, she could see that almost, if not all, which causes her so much anxiety and annoyance, and her child so many punishments, is her own fault? But children are not mere reflectors. They have inquisitive little minds, and warm little hearts, and if we, through weariness or thoughtlessness, withhold information from the one, or sympathy from the other, they are genuine sufferers.

Children not only imitate our faults, suffer by our carelessness, but govern us through our weakness. A friend came to visit me, and brought a generous, frank, and manly boy, of four years old. But he disturbed our whole circle by his constant crying. This habit was not in keeping with the brave, proud, independent character of the child. I therefore felt a curiosity to find the cause. My first discovery was, he never shed a tear.

His mother wished to take a trip, but could not take her boy.

"Leave him with me."

"He'll torment the life out of you."

"I don't think so."

"I will, indeed, be most grateful. You may whip him as often as you please."

"I should not strike a child except in a most extreme case."

"Then you can do nothing with him."

She was gone. The next morning, after breakfast, Willie asked:

"May I go and play in the yard?"

"It rained last night, and it's too damp now. You may go at ten."

"It isn't damp, scarcely a bit."

"I think it is. You may go at ten, not before."

"Boo, whoo, whoo," rest. I kept quietly sewing.

"Boo, whoo, whoo," bass. "Boo, whoo, whoo," tenor. I sewed on. "Boo, whoo, whoo," double bass. "Boo, whoo, whoo," falsetto, rest.

"Now may I go?"

"You may go at ten o'clock."

Concert repeated, I silently sewing the while.

"Ain't your head most ready to split?"

"No."

"Mayn't I go out now?"

"Not until ten o'clock."

Concert resumed; rest.

"Ain't you most crazy?

"No, not at all."

Concert resumed, with the addition of throwing himself on the floor, and knocking his feet up and down. After a while: "Aint you most crazy yet? Why don't you whip me, and send me out of doors?"

"Because you are not going out until ten o'clock."

Concert resumed, with the addition of bumping his head as well as toes: rest; a pause. Then picking himself up, he stood erect before me, with his hands in his pockets.

"Why don't you whip me, and send me off, to get rid of my noise?"

"Because you are not going out until ten o'clock."

He stood a moment.

"If I bump my head, ain't you afraid it will kill me?"

"Not in the least."

"But it does hurt me, awfully."

"I am happy to hear it."

He drew a long breath.

"What can I do next? I'se done all I know how."

"See if you can not think of something else."

"May I take my blocks?"

"Certainly." At nine he started up.

"Now may I go?" "That's nine." He went back to his blocks without a murmur.

At ten he went out.

He had been used to kneel by his mother, to say his prayers, and hop into bed. I wished him to kneel with me, by the bed, and say his prayers slowly, and then I would make a short prayer for him. The arrangement did not please him, so the third night he gave battle. Being tired, my head did feel as if it couldn't or rather wouldn't bear it. Out of all patience, I determined to give him a good whipping. But never having struck a child, I was not quite hardened enough to take my slipper, and couldn't see anything else. As I looked around, a voice—my God,—speaking through my conscience asked, "What! whip in anger, whip a little boy, because he cannot govern his spirit when you can not govern your own! Another than the boy needs to be prayed for." And kneeling I asked my Father to give me his strength, his grand patience, with a disobedient, self-willed child. As I kneeled, Willie crawled under my arm, and commenced to say his prayers very slowly, and kept still while I prayed a few words, and then asked.

"Now, mayn't I pray my own self?"

"Yes, darling."

And these were his words: "I'se a real mean little boy. She won't do nothing ugly a bit, and I knows I'se made her head most split. Oh, God, don't let me be a mean little boy any more at all." The splendid little fellow had a fair trial of strength, and was conquered, and surrendered manfully; and I had no farther trouble or annoyance during the seven weeks he stayed with me.

But how nearly I had lost my vantage ground. If we would rule our own spirits, how easy it would be to rule our children and our servants. But oh, to govern self!

A LITTLE HINDU GIRL.

I will tell you about a little Hindu girl I know here. When she was a wee one, her mother died and her father, a wicked old heathen, sold her to a very bad woman, who treated her cruelly. She abused her so that she became very ill; her back so crooked that she could not stand up; besides she suffered great pain. Then she turned her into the streets to beg, sick and helpless as she was. A good woman in the city was sent around by the missionaries to read the Bible to the poor heathen woman, and this little girl had seen her and heard her good words, and she thought, "Now if I can find her, she will help me;" so she went searching for her house. She soon found it, for all the people knew this good women. The little girl was right, she found a friend and a home. Now, this kind woman was very poor, she had but little money, but she could not turn this sick girl away; so she took her in, washed her, combed out her tangled hair, and put some clothes on her. She also nursed her carefully, so that in a few days she grew much better, the flesh came upon her bones, and she did not suffer pain. She has learned to read, sing and pray, also to sew a little, and is very happy. She is a grateful child, and says her Saviour did all these good things for her, led her to her good home, gave her food and clothing, and that she loves him very much. She tells her Hindu friends to come to her dear Jesus. She says to them: "See what he has done for me; come, he will do good for you.' She has a new name now; for when she became a Christian she was baptized Martha.—Heathen Woman's Friend.

OPEN THE DOOR TO THE CHILDREN.

Open the door for the children,
Tenderly gather them in;
In from the highway and hedges,
In from the places of sin.
Some are so young and so helpless,
Some are so hungry and cold;
Open the doors for the children,
Gather them into the fold.

Open the door for the children;
See! they are coming in throngs;
Bid them sit down to the banquet,
Teach them your beautiful songs!
Pray you the Father to bless them,
Pray you that grace may be given;
Open the door for the children,
"Of such is the kingdom of heaven."

Open the door for the children,
Take the dear lambs by the hand;
Point them to truth and to goodness,
Send them to Canaan's land.
Some are so young and so helpless,
Some are so hungry and cold;
Open the door for the children,
Gather them into the fold.

— Mrs. M. A. Kiddler, in the Moravian.

THE GOLDEN PENNIES.—A little boy who had plenty of pennies, dropped one into the missionary box, laughing as he did so. He had no thought in his heart about Jesus, the heathen or the missionary. His was a tin penny. It was as light as a scrap of tin.

Another boy put a penny in, and as he did so, looking around with self-applauding gaze, as it he had done some great thing. His was a brass penny. It was not the gift of a "lowly heart," but a proud spirit.

A third boy gave a penny, saying to himself, "I suppose I must because all others do." That was an iron penny. It was the gift of a cold, hard heart.

As a fourth boy dropped his penny in the box he shed a tear, and his heart said "Poor heathens! I'm sorry they are so poor, so ignorant, and miserable. That was a silver penny. It was the gift of a heart full of pity.

But there was one scholar who gave his penny with throbbing heart, saying to himself, "For thy sake, O, loving Jesus, I give this penny, hoping that the poor heathen, whom thou lovest, will believe in thee, and become thy disciples." That was a golden penny, because it was the gift of love.

How many of our readers give golden pennies?—Spirit of Missions.

SCENE IN A MISSION SUNDAY SCHOOL.—The Rev. Mr. Allen, of the mission of the Church South, at Shanghi, writes as follows in a letter which is published in the New-Orleans Advocate:

"'Twas in the Sunday-school, and during the closing exercises, about half-past four o'clock P. M., that Pay Yoong Tsung, a boy of fourteen years, the son of a military officer, and a most serious thoughtful youth, arose from his seat, and, addressing me said: 'I would like to join the church.' His modest manner and the tremulousness of his voice attested his sincerity, and I was surprised to find that a similar feeling and a like earnestness on the subject characterized the other members of the school.

"When he sat down, Yang Tuh-Kwe arose and urged a like request, and thus did they all. I was astonished—the scene took me unawares. I could but pray: 'Lord, increase my faith!' The children wept. I wept too. Then we sang, 'Happy day, O happy day! that fixed my choice,' and knelt together as we never knelt before, to pray for pardon forgiveness, acceptance. My soul yearned for them as we drew nearer to God in prayer. Our hearts were softened, melted, as we bowed together. The children dedicated themselves voluntarily to God."

KEEP AWAY FROM THE WHEELS—Little Charles Williams lived near a manufactory, and he was very fond of going among the workmen and the young people who were at work there. The foreman would say to him: "Keep away from the wheels, Charlie." Charlie did not mind and would often say: "I can take care of myself." Often he would go near, and the wind of the wheels, would almost suck him in, and two or three times he grew so dizzy that he scarcely knew which way to go. At length one day he staggered while amid the wheels, and fell the wrong way; the band caught his little coat and drew him in, and he was dreadfully mangled. So it is, boys, when you go in the way of temptation; you may think you can take care of yourselves, and keep clear of the wheels; but oh! you may find yourselves dreadfully mistaken. Before you are aware of it, you may be caught and destroyed. Keep away from the wheels.—Young Reaper.

TURN TO-DAY.—Rabbi Eliezer said to his disciples:

"Turn to God one day before your death."

"How can man," was their reply, "know the day of his death?"

"True," said Eliezer; "therefore, you should turn to God to-day; perhaps you may die to-morrow; thus every day will be employed in turning to him."

"Behold, now is the accepted time"—"for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth."—S. S. Visitor.

THE NATIONAL
Life Insurance Company
OF THE
UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

WAS Chartered by Congress, in 1868, with a capital of ONE MILLION DOLLARS, every dollar of which was paid in before commencing business.

This capital is four times as large as that of any American Company doing a Life Insurance business exclusively. Beside this immense capital, the Company have invested a premium reserve to meet maturing Policies of seven hundred and sixty-six thousand dollars, making their total assets to January 1st, 1881, one million seven hundred and sixty-six thousand dollars. Their liabilities to same date were $897,329, or in other words, they have more than two dollars assets for every dollar of liabilities. This success is owing to the facts that their business is conducted upon the only common sense plan—"so much insurance for so much money"—and that the Company's financial management has been economical and cautious.

In this Company there are none of the bewildering uncertainties and disappointments of "notes," "dividends," &c., &c., &c., which enter so largely into the business plans of Mutual Companies. The insured buy what they pay for—Insurance. They are not called upon to insure others, but they are insured by the Company.

Instead of charging thirty per cent. more than is necessary to cover possible losses, the National charges the net cost of Insurance and risks its capital to cover any extra mortality. Mutual Companies MAY not need to use this extra thirty per cent.; in that case it is returned to the Policy-holder and mis-called a "Dividend." The National does not need any extra guarantee, its capital being sufficient, and consequently its rates are from 25 to 30 per cent. lower than those of Mutual Companies.

The National's Policies are more liberal than any issued in the Provinces, allowing residence or travel anywhere in temperate climates. No extra Premiums, Policy-fees, Permits, or extra charges, except upon the half-dozen occupations generally recognized as EXTRA hazardious.

The National is the only Company which has made the required deposit at Ottawa for the SOLE benefit of Canadian Policy-holders. All others are for "POLICY-HOLDERS GENERALLY."

Five cents per day will insure a young man a thousand dollars, IN GOLD, payable to him at the age of sixty, or to his representatives should he die sooner. Four cents a day will insure a man, aged 25, for one thousand dollars, payable to his wife or children at his death, wherever that may occur. What easier way is there to make such a provision? Is it not worth your while to investigate?

Agencies are established throughout the Lower Provinces where the fullest information will be cheerfully given. Should there be none to whom you can conveniently apply, a note addressed to the General Agent at St. John, will be promptly answered. Address

JOHN C. RISTEEN,
P. O. Box 428,
Saint John, N. B.

References in regard to the Company's standing will, upon application, be given to prominent men in all parts of the Lower Provinces. 1mar 5.
