Austrian troops in the Principalities, are henceforth only an arbitrary and violent means of preventing a solution of the difference which Russia has been the first to propose in offering to submit the question to its natural judges. Is it desired rather to have recourse to arms? Is war again desired? Does the English Ministry itch to enter again upon hostility without France, not certainly to assure the execution of the treaty of Paris, but impudently to rend it in pieces in the face of the world, with the object of satisfying an ambition that has been for the moment disguised. We repeat that it now depends upon the Cabinets of London and Vienna to put an end to the pending disputes, and to terminate the present anxieties to which the present situation give rise. It has been rumoured in Paris that the French fleet is to proceed to the Black Sea—object not known.

SPAIN.—No improvement in political matters in Spain. Oppression still exists.

ITALY.—Things still unchanged in Italy, though nothing definite has occurred since the last mail. A manifesto is daily looked for from the Neapolitan Government, after which some action is expected.

AUSTRIA.—According to recent agreement Austria is withdrawing her troops from several towns in the Papal legatives, but it said they are to make a great military display in Lombardy.

DANUBE.—The Commission on the navigation of the Danube is about to reassemble at Vienna. Turkey will send representatives.

Prices of breadstuffs slightly declined.

European Politics.

The following from the pen of an English writer, on the state of affairs as they now exists in Europe and elsewhere, is so sound, and so true, that we commend its careful perusal to our readers:—

There is something in the present aspect of European politics which is well adapted to awaken serious reflection. How is it that, after the conclusion of peace there are still sounds of fear and disquietude from almost every quarter of the civilized world? In America, the fiercest passions have been roused by the contest for the Presidency. In Italy, we mark the Neapolitan disputes, and the manifestoes of the Italian patriots, the subscription for the guns in Alessandria, and for 10,000 muskets, to be used in the first insurrection against Austrian occupation. In Switzerland, the controversy about Neufchatel demands attention. In France, the monetary crisis has threatened to bring on a new revolution. In Austria new perplexities have arisen from the remonstrances of the Western Powers about the occupation of the principalities. In Turkey, the state of its Asiatic possessions, and the Montenegrin disputes still excite anxiety. Still further remote are the troubles of Central America, the progress of the Chinese rebellion, and the rumoured expedition against Herat. Everywhere, if not wars, yet rumours of probable trouble and insurrection sound upon the ear. We had forgotten Spain, where every month seems to breed some new revolution.

The lesson which our ultra-liberal press would draw from those marks of secret uneasiness is, the crimes of despots, and the near approach of a political millenium, to be to be secured by the sacred right of insurrection. The masses of the people are to take the reins of power into their own hands, and a change is to ensue, as striking and beneficial as when Neptune stilled the tempest which Æolus had raised. The very same parties delight in parading all the crimes of the day under the heading "our civilization," and try to persuade themselves and their readers, that a transfer of power from the actual rulers to the millions of labourers and artizans would be an infallible cure for all our social evils. A fancy more preposterous never possessed the minds of reasonable men. If Christianity must really give up the task of the world's improvement in despair, there is small chance indeed that London and Paris mobs, or Italian preachers of assassination, will be more successful, and solve conclusively the great problem of restoring peace and harmony to the troubled nations.

The true secret of all this unrest which meets the eye in every part of the political landscape will be found in one simple fact as painful as undeniable. After eighteen centuries, true Christianity has still but a very slight hold on the nations which are professedly Christian.—The great engine of its power, the Word of God, is systematically withheld from the people in Roman Catholic countries, and the natural result follows, a gross darkness of religious intolerance, which oscillates from a blind superstition to an unbelieving worldliness, not less degrading and socially ruinous. Even in Protestant countries, religious strifes and theological heresies have done much to neutralise the power of better influences, and have left millions of the people in a state not far removed from heathenism. Those who take the Word of God for the real guide of their lives are still only a small minority, even in our own favoured country. In most Continental States, the number of them, so far as we can conjecture from every outward sign, is still smaller. There are many others who have derived much social and moral benefit from the public profession of Christianity, but the natural selfishness of their hearts is only restrained, and their influence on the whole, still goes into the wrong scale; while there is a powerful party who treat religion with open contempt, and look to everything rather than to the Gospel of Christ for the remedy of social evils. The cause of our actual troubles throughout Europe is not that Christianity has failed where it has been really tried. It is that spiritual and political quacks have borrowed its labels to pass off their own wretched counterfeits under its name. These counterfeits have failed, and must ever fail to produce social harmony and peace. Boiling down to a piece of consecrated bread, even amidst strains of beautiful music and the splendour of military display, is not Christianity. It is idolatry in its own worst form. The people who have nothing else for their religion than such hollow and heartless ceremonies are feeding on ashes, and the result most naturally be moral starvation, political stagnation or anarchy and spiritual death. The Christianity of our excursion trains and Sunday newspapers, of our public houses, casinos, and theatres, is equally hollow and worthless. There are millions, even in England, who live in an atmosphere of mist, and darkness, which is hardly pierced by one ray of the Gospel of Christ from the beginning to the end of the year. The state of most nations of the Continent is still more deplorable. What wonder that the ground heaves everywhere with the throes which are the presages of earthquakes and volcanic eruptions, when the remedy for secret aching of the human heart has never been applied, and even is laboriously and perseveringly driven away from the homes of the people? The Continent must be more effectually evangelized before we can look for tidings of solid peace. But how can this be done while the Papacy broods like an incubus over the lands of the south, and the north remains the prey of an unbelieving philosophy, and even Christians themselves can dream of political wisdom divested from all the truths of the Gospel and the hopes of immortality? Christianity must have a deeper power in the hearts of those who receive it before it can clear away these mighty hindrances from its own path; and till this is done it will be vain to look for more than an uneasy truce in the war of human passions which for long ages has continued to ravage and desolate the civilized world.

Mission Field in Africa.

We clip the following from a letter from the Rev. Dr. Livingston, the distinguished African Missionary and Traveller. He has just returned from a long tour of explorations in the interior of that vast country. The following is his description of the inhabitants, their numbers, character and accessibility to christian influence.

"In regard to the people inhabiting this large and populous territory, it is difficult, in the absence of all numerical data, to present a very precise idea. The tribes are large, but divided into a great number of villages. So thickly were these dotted over the country, that in travelling a straight line, in which we could rarely see more than a mile on each side, we often passed ten or twelve hamlets in a single day. Occasionally, however, we marched ten miles without seeing any. In no part of the south, I have visited is such a population seen. Angola contains 600,000 souls, and Londa seemed more populous, and of larger extent than it. The Cape Colony, with 200,000 souls, possesses some hundred of missionaries and other Christian instructors and school-masters, but will bear no comparison with Londa as a missionary field. The Makololo territory has several tribes—Batoka, Batotse, Bashubea, Banyeti, Batlotlora, &c.; and there is no impediment to immediate occupation by Missionaries; and to such as aspire to the honor of being messengers of mercy to to the actual heathen, there is no more inviting field in South Africa. I am not to be understood as meaning that any of these people are anxious for the Gospel.

They are unlike the intelligent, inquiring race in the Punjaub, or the vivacious Islanders of the Pacific. But there is not such callous indifference to religious truth as I have seen elsewhere, nor yet that opposition which betokens progress in knowledge. But there is a large population, and we are quite sure, if the Word of Life is faithfully preached, in process of time many will believe. I report again, that I know of no impediment to immediate efforts for their instruction. Every head man and chief in the country would be proud of the visit and residence of a white man. There is security generally for life and property. I left, by mistake, a pontoon in a village of Londa, and found it safe eighteen months afterwards.—Some parcels sent by Mr. Moffatt, by means of Matebele, lay a whole year on an island in the Zambesi, near Mosioatumya. It is true it was believed that they contained medicine which bewitch, but regular rogues are seldom scared by such preservatives. The Balonda are a friendly, industrious race, and thousands of the Balobale find an asylum among them from the slave dealing propensities of their chiefs. They seem to possess a more vivid conviction of their relation to the unseen world than any of the southern tribes.

In the deep, dark forests near their villages we always met with idols and places of prayer. The latter are spots about four feet broad, and forty long, kept carefully clear of vegetation and falling leaves. Here, in the still darkness of the forest night, the worshipper, either male or female, comes alone and prays to the god (Barimo), or spirits of departed relatives; and when an answer to the petition seems granted, meal or other food is sprinkled on the spot as a bank-offering."

SALE OF A SLAVE.—An incident in New Orleans.—The New Orleans Bulletin of the 20th instant says:—Passing through the Arcade Saloon, we noticed at one of the auction stands a negro girl up for sale, and around a close packed crowd that appeared to be deeply interested in what was going on. Curiosity led us to pause and enquire what was the cause of the apparent excitement. The bids was going on in a very spirited manner, and generally at an advance of only five dollars a bid, and at every bid the eyes of the crowd would quickly turn in the direction whence the bids proceeded, the interest and the excitement being in the meantime upon the increase. The girl, a bright intelligent mulatress, about 14 years old, was evidently not indifferent to what was transpiring. There was no moisture in her eyes, but they assumed an expression which indicated that she felt some anxiety in regard to the result of the sale, which is not generally the case. As the bids reached near a thousand dollars, the excitement became intense, and as that figure was called, a spontaneous hiss was heard throughout the room, followed by a vehement shout of "Turn him out!" "Turn him out!"

A rush was made for the door, the hammer had fallen, and the girl also, into the arms of her mother, who had been her purchaser. The explanation of it all was that the woman had been freed by her owner, and had earned money enough to buy her child—the mulatress in question—and being a very valuable servant, several persons were anxious to obtain her, but all of them, with one exception, had pledged the mother that they would not bid against her, and they honorably kept their faith. It was the conduct of this one, who was bidding against the mother, which so excited and exasperated the crowd on the occasion. The man made good his escape; fortunately for him, as we heard sundry expressions about "lynching" &c., as the crowds came back to talk over the matter. The mother was so much affected with joy at having succeeded in retaining possession of her child, that she swooned away and was carried out of the saloon. We may add that the sale was a succession sale, and and was not designed to be anything more than nominal, and nobody intended that the mother should be deprived of her child.

TO THE OLD AND YOUNG.—Read the advertisements of PROF. WOOD'S HAIR RESTORATIVE in another column. "It will do all it that it professes to do," says the editor of the Erie Oobserver, "or our eyes have deceived us in looking at the heads of some of our acquaintances." No one old or young, who admires flowing locks or waving curls, should fail to read.

DISEASES OF THE LIVER.
☞ When the celebrated Dr. Rush declared that drunkenness was a disease, he enunciated a truth which the experience and observation of medical men is every day confirming. The many apparently insane excesses of those who indulge in the use of spirituous liquors, may be thus accounted for. The true cause of conduct, which is taken for infatuation, is very frequently a diseased state of the Liver. No organ in the human system, when deranged, produces a more frightful catalogue of diseases. And if, instead of applying remedies to the manifestations of disease, as is too often the case, physicians would prescribe with a view to the original cause, fewer deaths would result from diseases induced by a deranged state of the Liver. Three-fourths of the diseases enumerated under the head of Consumption, have their seat in a diseased Liver. Dr. M'Lane's celebrated Liver Pills, prepared by Fleming Bros., are a ceratain cure.
☞ Purchasers will be careful to ask for DR. M'LANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, manufactured by FLEMING BROS. of PITTSBURGH, PA. There are other Pills purporting to be Liver Pills, now before the public. Dr M'Lane's genuine Liver Pills, also his celdeated Vermifuge, can now be had at all respectable drug stores. None genuine without the signature of,

Extract of a Letter from Professor Hayes,
Enclosing a certificate.
MESSRS. FELLOWS & CO.—GENTS.—I made the examination of the Worm Lozenges as you desired, and found only the product mentioned in your note, which was of course expected, but which was not the less interesting to me. You have made an excellent choice of ingredients and the preparation is a tempting one, and must meet with a large sale from its merits. I enclose a document which you may publish.
Truly yours,
A. A HAYES.

PERRY DAVIS'S
VEGETABLE PAIN KILLER
The Most Popular Medicine in the World.
OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.
We take pleasure in referring to the virtue of Davis's Pain Killer. We have used the article, and found it valuable. The sale of this article in the United States is beyond all precedent, as the books of the office will show.—Cincinnati Commercial.
Davis's Vegetable Pain Killer. We first heard of this medicine during a visit to the New England States, and being struck with the novelty of the title, were induced to make some inquiry about it; and we were surprised to learn that it was kept constantly in the houses of most of the inhabitants of the cities and villages where we stopped, to be used in cases of sudden attacks of pain, burns, scolds, &c, and we heard it spoken of in terms of high commendation, both by druggists and physicians.—Philadelphia Eagle.
Perry Davis's Pain Killer.—It is a real pleasure to us to speak favorably of this article, known almost universally to be a good and safe remedy for burns and other pains of the body. It is valuable not only for colds in the winter, but for various summer complaints, and should be in every family. The casuality which demands it may come unawares.—Chris. Advocate.
Valuable Medicine.—The sale of that remarkable and truly valuable preparation, Perry Davis's Pain Killer, is constantly and rapidly increasing. During the past year the demand for this great remedy has been altogether unprecedented. Scarcely a week passes by during which we do not hear of some remarkable cure having been performed, within the circle of our acquaintance, by the use of Perry Davis's Pain Killer.—Prov. Gen. Advertiser.
ANOTHER LETTER FROM INDIA.
Messrs Perry, Davis & Son,—I am happy to be able to add that your medicine is getting more and more into note, and consequently the demand for it is increasing. The sales at my various sub-Agencies are very satisfactory, especially in Maulmain and Dinnapore; in fact, wherever European Regiments are located the sales are extensive. A party in Agia who sent for a supply for his personal use and that of his friends, says the demand for it is great, and recommends the appointment of an Agens there.
Mr. Toone, of Barrackpore, writes under date of 20th October: "This will certify that my son, 19 years of age, was taken suddenly ill in the night, with a severe pain in the stomach, followed by Cholera. He found no relief until I gave him a teaspoonful of the Pain Killer, diluted with warm water; but after the expiration of a few moments, he brought it up, when I repeated the dose, which partially relieved him. I followed it with a third dose, when he fell asleep, and on waking next morning he was quite fresh. I consider it a most valuable medicine to be always at hand."
I remain ours, &c.
J. L. CARRAU, Calcutta.
We are glad to learn that Perry Davis's Pain Killer is having so large a sale in our city. We have every reason to believe it to be an almost never failing cure for pain, and as such is a medicine no family should be without.—Montreal Pilot.
