Poetry.

The Little Boy that Prayed.

A little boy scarce four years old,
Whose parents never prayed,
With earnest look one evening spoke,
And to his father said;

Dear father, say, why don't you pray,
And love and serve the Lord,
As Mr. Johnson does, you know,
And read His holy word?

O father, now I want to pray,
I know it would be right;
Come let us all kneel down and ask
God's blessing here to-night.

And father, mother, Mary, all
Knelt down to hear his prayer,
And God who loves the praying child,
Bestowed a blessing there.

And when the little boy that night,
With Mary went to bed,
He kissed her little rosy cheek,
And to his sister said:

"Which of us, sister, do you think
Will get to heaven first?"
"Why, you are oldest," Mary said.
"And so I think you must."

The morning came, and earth rejoiced,
For God thro' nature smiled,
And in his sports that boy went forth
Amid the forest wild.

When from a lofty tree, a limb
Was hurled upon his head,
And instantly that lovely form
Lay motionless and dead.

Bright angels heard him pray that night,
Poor child of mortal birth,
And on the morrow joyed to bear
His soul to heaven from earth.

Ah! wherefore are such priceless gems
To doting mortals given
Just long enough to steel our hearts,
And then called back to heaven?

It is to win our wayward souls
From all below the sky,
To endless life beyond the stars,
Where pleasures never die.

MY CREED.

I hold with Peter, John, and Paul,
That Jesus Christ has died for all—
That He could not have died for some,
If all are freely ask'd to come.

I hold with Peter, Paul, and John,
That Jesus Christ rejected none—
How could he? when He sent his call
To the whole world, and . . . creatures all.

I hold that God has not foreordain'd
Men's deeds in this world, or the next—
Not form'd men that he might condemn,
And then thrown all the blame on them.

Self-Disparagement;

OR, ELDER BLUNT AND SISTER SCRUB.

I find some persons are afraid of fiction even when designed to teach a moral lesson. I will now tell a true story, only changing names to avoid being offensively personal.

In one of the Eastern States there is a settlement which has long been celebrated as a strong-hold of Methodism. It is an out-of-the-way neighborhood, yet no place in the whole country is better known, or more highly esteemed. In the center of the settlement, just where two roads cut each other at right angels, making a "four-corners," is a school-house, painted red, and long familiar as the only place of public worship in the settlement. The people are well off now, and have built a nice and commodious church on the opposite corner. A few rods up the road from the school-house lived Esquire Scrub. You could tell at first sight that the 'Esquire' was 'well to do' in the world, for everything about him denoted it. There was his picket fence all round his garden, painted red, and the top tipped with white; there was his house, a modest one-story-and-a-half, with a lean-to in the rear, painted white all over; there was the farm, a choice lot of one hundred acres, well cultivated; and besides all this, there were the honors and emoluments of the important office of justice of the peace. The Squire was, of course, a man of note in town. He had been a justice several terms in succession. He was a trustee of the school district, and he was both class-leader and steward in the Methodist church. I have no doubt he would have received other honors had he been eligible. Still he was a quiet, unassuming man, and I verily believe he thought more of his religion than of all his ecclesiastical and civil honors.—His house was the itinerant's home! and a right sweet, pleasant home it would have been but for a certain unfortunate weakness in the every other way excellent sister Scrub. The weakness I allude to was, or at least it was suspected to be, the love of praise. Now the good sister was really worthy of high praise, and she often received it; but she had a way of disparaging herself and her performances, which some thought was intended to invite praise. No housewife kept her floors looking so clean, and her walls so well white-washed as she. Every board was scrubbed and scoured till further scrubbing and scouring would have been labor wasted. No one could look on her white, ash floor, and not admire the polish her industry gave it. The Squire was a good provider, and sister Scrub was an excellent cook; and so their table groaned under a burden of good things on all occasions when good cheer was demanded. And yet you could not enter the house without being reminded that 'Husband held court yesterday, and she could not keep the house decent.' If you sat down to eat with them she was sorry she 'hadn't anything fit to eat.' She had been scrubbing, or washing, or ironing, she had been half sick, and she hadn't got such and such things that she ought to have. Nor did it matter how bountiful or well prepared the repast really was, there was always something deficient, the want furnishing a text for a disparaging discourse on the occasion. I remember once when we sat down to a table that a king might have been happy to enjoy. There was the light show-white bread, there were the potatoes reeking in butter, there were the onions and turnips, and I was sure sister Scrub had gratified her ambition for once. We sat down, and a blessing was asked. Immediately the good sister began. She was afraid her coffee was too much burned, or that she hadn't roasted the chickens enough. There ought to have been some salad, and it was too bad that there was nothing nice to offer us.

We, of course, endured these unjustifiable apologies as well as we could, simply remarking that everything was really nice, and proving by our acts that the repast was tempting to our appetite.

I will now introduce another actor to the reader. It is Elder Blunt, the circuit preacher. Elder Blunt was a good man. His religion was of the most genuine, experimental kind. He was a very plain man. He, like Mr. Wesley, would no more dare preach a fine sermon than wear a fine coat. He was as celebrated for his common sense way of exhibiting the principles of religion. He would speak just what he thought, and as he felt. He somehow got the name of being a very eccentric preacher, as every man does, who never prevaricates, and always acts and speaks as he thinks. Somehow or other, Elder Blunt had heard of sister Scrub, and of that infirmity of hers, and he resolved to cure her. On his first round he stopped at Squire Scrub's as all other itinerants had done before him.—John, the young man, took the elder's horse and put him in the stable, and the preacher entered the house. He was shown into the best room, and soon felt very much at home. He expected to hear something in due time disparaging the domestic arrangements, but he heard it sooner than he expected. This time, if sister Scrub could be credited, her house was all upside down, and she was sadly mortified to be caught in such a plight. The elder looked all around the room, as if to observe the terrible disorder, but he said not one word. By-and-by the dinner was ready, and the elder found everything faulty; the coffee wasn't fit to drink, and she hadn't anything fit to eat. The elder lifted his dark eye to her face for a moment he seemed to penetrate her very soul with his austere glance, then slowly rising from the table, he said, 'Bro. Scrub, I want my horse immediately I must leave.'

'Why, Bro. Blunt, what is the matter?'

'Matter? Why, sir, your horse isn't fit to stay in, and you haven't anything fit to eat or drink, and I won't stay.'

Both the Squire and his lady were confounded. This was a piece of eccentricity entirely unlooked for. They were stupefied. But the elder was gone. He wouldn't stay in a house that wasn't fit to stay in, and where there wasn't anything fit to eat or drink.

Poor sister Scrub! She wept like a child at her folly. She 'knew it would be all over town,' she said, 'and everybody would be laughing at her.' And then, how should she meet the blunt honest elder again? 'She hadn't meant anthing by what she said.' Ah! she had never thought how wicked it was to say so much that didn't mean anything.

The upshot of the matter was that sister Scrub 'saw herself as others saw her.' She ceased making apologies and became a wiser and better Christian. Elder Blunt always puts up there, always finds everything as it should be, and withal his eccentricities, is thought by the family the most agreeable, as he is acknowledged by everybody to be the most consistent of men.—*North-Western Chris. Children and Tobacco Chewers.

"Ella," said I to a dark eyed little girl, "Ella, is your Sabbath school lesson well learned?—is it perfectly committed?"

"Yes," was the cheerful response; and her cheeks dimpled with a smile of satisfaction as she looked up. Then she hesitated. The rosy lips grew firm in their curves, and she continued, "I wish Miss Ellen would come back; she has been gone three or four weeks; and I do not like Mr. Melville; I do not like the smell of him; I cant bear to have him come near me. He chews tobacco, and smokes, and he smells awfully; I cant bear to have him come near me." And with a contemptuous shrug of the shoulders, a disdainful toss of the head, a scornful curl of the lips, and a slight elevation of the nose, the child turned away; positive disgust if not absolute abhorrence, expressed in every moment. (This change from the careless happiness of a moment ago, was caused by the mere recollection of her teacher.) Sad picture, sadder reality. And this Mr. Melville, a leading church member in the village, and one of the principal teachers in the Sabbath school, and a respectable man, wonders why the little faces which draw so near Allen as if petitioning for a kiss, turn away at his approach! Simple man. It never occurs to him that he smells awfully. Mr. Melville, is the puzzle solved now?—or will you ignorantly continue to nauseate, and stifle the children with your filthy, polluted, tobacco flavored respirations, while you tell them of the immaculate Jesus, or lift your voice in prayer to the Most High? Let the little innocents breathe the fresh, pure air which is their rightful heritage given by God, who is a being of justice. Mr. Melville, whoever you are, mend your ways, be a MAN and deal justly by the children.—Life Illustrated.

An Accommodating Spirit.

In a certain New England parish, a difficulty arose about the location of the new church building, and the church was rent with the division. The pastor at length preached a melting sermon on the subject of union, and the congregation were dissolved in tears. The next morning Deacon Jones went over early to his opponent, Deacon Shaw, to make an effort for peace, and the following ensued:

Deacon J.—Deacon Shaw, I havn't slept a wink last night—and I've come over to see if we can't have peace on this subject of church building. We must settle the difficulty.

Deacon S.—Well, I'm very happy to hear you talk so, for to tell the truth, I have always thought that you were a little set in your way.

Deacon J.—Not at all—and as a proof that I am not, I've come this morning on purpose to see you. Now, Deacon Shaw, we must settle the difficulty and there is but one way to do it, you must give up, for I can't.

There is a morning coming when Episcopalianism and Methodism, and Congregationalism, and all shall stand on the sea of glass, and worship him that sitteth on the great white throne. I belong to the church of that morning. I like that saying of Whitfield's—'Father Abraham, have you got Episcopalians up there?' 'No!' 'Have you got Methodists up there?' 'No!' 'Have you got Independents?' 'No! none but Christians, my son!'—Dr Tyng.

Advice to Young Females.

Never marry a man without the consent of your parents. No matter how much you may fancy you love him, you cannot expect a blessing on your union, if you persist in going contrary to the better judgement of those who are appointed by Providence to watch over and advise you for your good.

They, of coure, have had more experience, and are better qualified to judge than you can be, who are but just setting foeth in the pathway of life, young, inexperienced, and too ready to form favorable opinions where your affections are concerned. Let them be your confidants; open your heart to them as soon as you are aware that anything of this sort exists. I would confide the secret to my parents as soon as I would acknowledge it to my own bosom. Theirs is not the cold, unsympathizing judgment of the world; it springs from a deep affection and interest in your lasting welfare, for what comfort would it be to them to mar your happiness? You, whom they have watched and guarded from helpless infancy, with such undying affection as parents only can feel. Recompense their love, then, as far as in your power, by confiding in them, and seeking their counsel; be assured you will lose nothing by it; and though you might meet with disappointments now, it will soon pass away, and in after years you will be attended by the blessing of Him who has said, 'Honor thy father and thy mother.'—Advocate and Guardian.

Above we present you with a likeness of DR. MORSE—the inventor of MORSE'S INDIAN ROOT PILLS. This philanthropist has spent the greater part of his life in travelling—having visited Europe, Asia, and Africa, as well as North America—has spent three years among the Indians of our Western Wilds, and was in this way that the Indian Root Pills were discovered. Dr. Morse was the first man to establish the fact that all diseases arose from impurity of the Blood—that our strength, health, and life depended upon this vital fluid.

When the various passages become clogged and do not act in perfect harmony with the different functions of the body, the blood loses its action, becomes thick, corrupted and diseased; thus causing all pains, sickness and disease of every name; our strength is exhausted, our health we are deprived of, and if nature is not assisted in throwing off the stagnant humors, the blood will become choked and cease to act, and thus our light of life will forever be blown out. How important then that we should keep the various passages of the body free and open. And how pleasant to us that we have it in our power to get a medicine at your reach, namely, MORSE'S Indian Root Pills, manufactured from plants and roots which grow around the mountainous cliffs in Nature's garden, for the health and recovery of the human family. One of the roots from which these Pills are made is a Sudorific, which opens the pores of the skin, and assists Nature in throwing out the finer parts of the corruption within. The second is a plant which is an Expectorant, that opens and purifies the passages to the lungs, and thus, in a natural manner, performs its duty by throwing off phlegm, and other humors from the lungs, by copious spitting. The third is a Diuretic, which gives ease and double strength to the kidneys; this energetic medicine draws large amounts of impurity from the blood, which is then thrown out of the body by the urinary or water passage, and which could not have been discharged in any other way. The fourth is a Cathartic, and accompanies the other properties of the Pills while engaged in purifying the blood; the coarser particles of impurity which cannot pass by the other organs, are thus taken up and conveyed off in great quantities by the bowels.

From the above, it is shown that Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills not only cleanse the stomach, but become united with the blood, for they find way to every part, and completely root out and cleanse the system from all impurity, and the life of the body, which is the blood, becomes perfectly healthy; consequently all sickness and pain is driven from the system for they cannot remain when the body becomes so pure and sweet.

The reason why people are so distressed when sick, and why so many die, is because they do not put a medicine which will pass to the affected parts, and which will open the natural passages for the disease to be thus cast out; hence, a large quantity of food and other matter is lodged, and the stomach and intestines are literally filled with putrid and corrupted mass; thus undergoing disagreeable fermentation, constantly mixing with the blood, which throws the corrupt and other disease every vein and artery, until life is taken from the body by disease. MORSE'S INDIAN PILLS have added to themselves victory upon victory, by restoring millions of the sick to blooming health and happiness. Yes, thousands who have been racked or tormented with sickness, pain and languish, and whose feeble frames have been scourged by the merciless hand of disease, and who have been brought, as it were, within a step of the silent grave, now stand ready to testify that they would have been sent to the dead, and it has been for this great and wonderful medicine, Morse's Indian Root Pills. After one or two doses have been taken, they are astonished, and absolutely surprised, in witnessing their astonishing effects. Not only do give immediate ease and strength, and take away the pain, gloom and anguish, but they at once go to work at the purification of the blood, which is the blood. Therefore, it will be shown, especially by those who use these Pills, that they, will so cleanse and purify that disease that deadly enemy—will take the flight, and the flush of health and beauty will again return, and the prospect of a long happy life will cheerish and brighten your days.

PROFESSOR WOOD'S HAIR RESTORATIVE.
IT HAS WORKED MIRACLES!

THAT ALL THE BALD AND GRAY CAN BE RESTORED PERFECTLY to original growth, and color so far as their locks are concerned does not admit of doubt; besides it will cure every possible disease of the scalp, whether developed in dandruff itching or in the stage of cutaneous eruption—even scald-head—and in no possible case will it fail in curing as if by magic, nervous or periodical head-ache, and if used twice a week by the young regularly, it will preserve the color, and keep the hair from falling, to any imaginable age. Read and judge.

Hillford, Worchester Co., Mass., Nov. 1855.

PROF. O. J. WOOD—Dear Sir; I take pleasure in bearing voluntary testimony to the magic effects of your wonderful Hair Restorative. As far back as 1836, my hair commenced falling off, and the top of my scalp became bald and smooth as glass, and it has continued to fall for a great many years, notwithstanding I have used many celebrated preparations for restoration. Seeing your advertisement I was induced to give your article a trial, and to my utter astonishment, doubtful, after a few applications, that my hair became firmly set, and assumed a glossy and beautiful appearance; and by the time I had used a quart bottle, my bald head was covered over with a young and vigorous growth of hair, which is now from one to two inches in length, and growing fast.

Yours, truly, HENRY GOODRICH.

CHARLESTOWN, Mass., Aug. 9, 1855.

GENTS:—Nothing but a duty and sympathy that I feel to communicate to others that are afflicted as I have been, would induce me to pass this public acknowledgement of the benefit I have received from Prof. Wood's Hair Restorative. When I first commenced using it, my hair was quite gray, and in spots entirely bald. I have now used the Restorative about five months, and my hair is entirely changed to its original color, brown, and the new hair is over three inches in length on the spots where it was bald. I have also been much gratified at the healthy moisture and vigor of the hair which before was dry, and it has ceased to come out as for merly. Respectfully yours, &c., MRS. E. A. STODDARD.

From Mrs. Ingalls, a well known nurse in Boston.

BOSTON Oct. 20th, 1856.

GENTS:—At your request, and being so highly pleased with the effects of the Restorative, I am free to state that my hair had become quite thin, and entirely worn. I have for the last five years been in the habit of using dye, but hearing of the extraordinary effects of this article, I was induced to try it. My hair has been restored to its original thickness, and also to its former color, which is light brown.

Yours respectfully, MRS. INGALLS.

The following is from the Pastor of the Orthodox Church, Bernardsbill.

BERNARDSTON, MASS., Jan. 12, 1856.

Prof. Wood—Dear Sir—Having made trial so your Hair Restorative, it gives me pleasure to say, that its effects have been excellent in removing inflammation, dandruff, and a painful tendency to itching, with which I have been troubled from my childhood, and has also restored the hair, which was becoming gray, to its original color. I have used no other article, with anything like the same pleasure and profit. Yours, truly, J. K. BRAGG.

[From the Jersey City Telegraph.]

WHAT IS IT THAT THIS WOOD'S HAIR RESTORATIVE is—is a question asked daily by hundreds. We answer without hesitation or fear of contradiction, that it is the only article known which will do all it promises for the human hair. It will restore its growth—it will stop its falling—it will restore its natural color! It is not a Hair Dye, but a speedy and effectious Restorative.

The LIVER PILLS, for the cure of LIVER COMPLAINT, all BILIOUS DERANGEMENTS, SICK HEADACHE, &c.

Purchasers will please be particular to ask for Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated VERMIFUGE and LIVER PILLS, prepared by

Fleming Bro's

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.

DR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, Mass., has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds, a remedy that cures EVERY KIND OF HUMOUR, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple. In the last three hundred cases had never failed except in two cases of cloth blender humour. He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its virtues, all within twenty miles of Boston.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a running sore mouth.

One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.

Two to three bottles will clear the system of biles.

Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth, and strengthen the gums.

Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of erysipelas.

One to two bottles are warranted to cure all humors in the eyes.

Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears and blotches among the hair.

Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corrupt and running ulcers.

One bottle will cure scaly eruption of the skin.

Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of ringworm.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the most inveterate case of rheumatism.

Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the so called Tetter in the skin.

Two to three bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.

A benefit is always received from the first bottle and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.

Reader, I peddled over a thousand bottles of this in a vicinity of Boston. I know the effect of it in every case, and I know it will extinguish fire as sure will take care of a cat. I never sold a bottle of it but that said, another day, that it always speaks for itself. There are two plants about this herb that appears to me remarkable; first, they grows in our pastures, in some places quite plentiful, and secondly its value has never been known until I discovered it in the year 1855, and I have tried it in all kinds of humors.

In order to give some idea of the sudden rise and great popularity of the discovery, I will state that in April, 1855, I peddled it, and sold about six bottles per day: in April, 1856, I sold over one thousand bottles per day of it.

Some twenty or thirty persons who have been in business twenty and thirty years, say that nothing in the shape of patent medicines was ever like it. There is a universal demand for it from all quarters.

In my own practice I always kept it strictly for humors, but have the satisfaction to a general family medicine, great and wonderful virtues have been found in it that I never expected.

Several cases of epileptic fits—a disease which was always considered incurable, have been cured by a few bottles. What a society of it will prove effected in all cases of the awful malady—there are but few who have seen more of it than I have.

I know of several cases of Dropsy, all of them aged people cured by it. For the various diseases of the Liver, Stomach, Dyspepsia, Asthma, Fever and Ague, Pain in the Side, Diseases of the Spine, and particularly in diseases of the Kidneys, &c., the discovery has done more good than any medicine ever known.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can and enough of it.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE.—Adults, one table spoonful per day. Children over ten years a dessert spoonful. Children from five to eight years, a tea spoonful. As no directions can be applicable to all constitutions, take sufficient to operate on the bowels twice a day.

Certificates may be seen at the STORE OF MESSRS. and Dr. BARTON PRICE, as is all the Drugs and Medicine Establishment of H. H. HAY, 10 and 12 Market Square, St. John, to whom all
