LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

he following letter from our London Correspondent received by the last mail, furnishes all news of importance which did not appear in telegram published in our columns last week. Ed.

LONDON, Jan. 16, '57.

The second Paris Conference on the East-question separated almost as soon as it ambled; the settlement having been previously agreed to by the leading Powers. sia has be n outgeneralled in diplomacy a time, as she was overcome in arms a ar ago. The 30th of March is to be the y on or before which the Austrian uniform all disappear from the Danubian Principaes and the British war-flag from the Euxs. What is to follow? Will Turkey be ascitated or sink into quiet decay? Will bastopol become as celebrated as a comercial port as it was as a fortress? The ification of peace, however, is in itself an rold blessing, whatever may be the subquent course of political events. The atmpts of Prussia in Neufchatel were happily ownded in big talk. The confederation the Alps is not to be arrayed against the ts of King Frederick William, and Manntaue is not to echo the din of artillery and e maddened cries of contending armies, it while the flame of war sinks in the West, mounts up with a lurid dare over the ates of Poesia and the cities of China. The latest news is that the Shah is bent on ar with England, hoping for aid from Russia, but he is likely to deem discretion the etter part of valour. On the Chin se disturance (fight in the strict sense it cannot be alled) for the opinion is settling here into e conviction that the ostensible cause of e collision was not valid, but that the pertacious reprisal of the Canton authorities to arry out the treaty of 1842, gave our offiers a right to demand compliance. It's a ty, though, that the demand was not made another form, and allowing still more time the miserable natives, where pride and pullanimity are equal. Louis Napoleon is rying on his "improvements" in Paris—e last act being to vote a great credit for joining the Tuilleries and the Sonore, the object is said to be in these refinements, not so uch to beautify or ventilate the city, as to ive free play to his cannon in case of an inurrection. The legislative elections are oming on, and a great legal question conected with the right of citizens to distribute he cards of their own candidates, is now beore the Court of Cessation, the highest in the empire. The Government are reported to have instructed the prefects to concede the right, and the prefects are reported to have answered that, in that case, they could not guarantee the return of the Government nominees. Strange that a narrow sea should divide nations where whole political life, if, indeed, the one can be said to have life at all, presents contrasts so immense!

Ecclesiastical affairs at home have undergone no remarkable change since I last wrote. Another Bishop—an Irish on, that of Cork—has paid the debt of nature, and Lord Palmerston has the prick y pleasure of appointing a successor. The Dennison case is creeping on at snail's pace—a rule having been granted, calling on Sir J. Dodson, the Dean of the Arches' Court to shew cause why he refused to consider the Archbishop's judgment.

A special meeting has been held of the Congregational Union, of which about one-fifth of the Independent Ministers are members—to come to a decision on the questions which have recently vexed their churches. I have not heard what the result has been, but the plan adopted will probably be carried out—that of appointing Trustees to manage the periodicals of the Union, so as not to make its members responsible for the contents of the magazines. Dr. Campbell, will, no doubt, remain editor as before. The British Banner is no longer under his control; he having relinquished it, and with the new year started a paper on his own account—the British Standard—the first No. of which I had seen. It has no particular merits that I can perceive to recommend it. The Freeman (Baptist weekly) is keeping afloat, and the proprietors have announced that if their subscription list will permit, they will present, in the course of the year, to each subscriber, a large engraving containing the portraits of various distinguished Baptists. Mr. Spurgeon's friends have taken the Music Hall of the Surrey Gardens for another months' morning services. His hearers number many of the haut ton, and twice Lord Palmerston, it is said, has sent for tickets which unforseen events prevented him using as he had intended The active Premier, past seventy, will no doubt, contrive after all to be there some day. He suffers only from the gout, the aristocratic malady which teetotalism will exorcise if the cure becomes fashionable in high life. Soon may it be so!

Another controversy is proceeding on the Doctrine of Inspiration, in which Dr. Davidson, the professor of Sacred Literature in the Independent Manchester College is implicated. He is charged with intruding heterodox sentiments unawares to his coadjutors, in a new edition of Hornes' "Introduction which Longman's are just publishing. A College Committee of enquiry is sitting, whose report has not appeared yet;—but which is expected to be favourable to Dr. D., as he interprets his own theory so as not to diminish the authority of Scripture on all subjects of Theoretical import.

The meeting of Parliament in February is exciting much talk, and some action on the ecclesiastical questions likely to be introduced next session, and to consider some of these the deputies of the Protestant Dissenters, (a body which once did good service, but is now of small account, except when deputations to royalty have to to be arranged) held a meeting lately at the Milton Club (the Dissenter's Club, but not like Miton in its temperance arrangements) The Liberation (Anti-Church and State) Society is also preparing to get the church rate question finally disposed of. Of a different kind of effort, yet highly commendable, is the endeavour to establish a Scriptural Museum at the Martin's Hall, where an indefinite number of articles, mostly antiques, illustrating Biblical history may be collected, with lectures of an illustrative character. Sir H. Rawlinson, the eminent scholar, has given one of a series on this important topic. This gentleman is about publishing fac similes from some of the oldest Ninevite inscriptions, with interlineal translations of his own.

As connecting the spiritual with the secular, I may refer to the honors still being paid to Dr. Livingstone, the African missionary explorer. A testimonial meeting at the Egyptian Hall was brilliantly attended, and even the papers tinged (some of them deeply) with sceptical sentiments, unite in the homage paid to his intrepidity, intelligence, and enterprize. The laurels are blooming on his brow; long may they encircle the living head!

The days of old Greece seem returning upon us in one respect, at least,—that of reading literary productions previous to their publication. Mr. Thackeray is carrying his "Four Georges" up and down, and obtaining vast sums for their delivery from the desk. At the Literary Institution, Portman Square, he is engaged, for five nights, at one hundred and fifty guineas, I believe, the prices of admission being made to correspond; and the lecture hall is crowded. Last night a lecture on Italy was given in the same place, by Saffi, who was one of the Triumvirs of Rome in the days of the Republic of 1848, and is now Professor of Italian, in Oxford University. Professor Faraday, in another place, has just concluded a course of chemical lectures to a juvenile audience, over which the Prince of Wales presided, shaking hands with the professor heartily at the close. The royal children are not tall, robust, or handsome, and, with one exception, it is said—Princess Helena; but they have other qualities more valuable and durable; the people will not love them the less because "the strong" or "the beautiful" cannot be added to their names. Hugh Miller's dying work the Dictionary of the Rocks, is to appear in a week or fortnight, will be read with melancholy interest. His great fame as a geologist lay in the charm he cast around the explanations of those mysteries which were so long hidden under the green surface of the earth.

An excellent man has died suddenly, Joseph Butterton, M. P. He was a pious teetotaler and a man of advanced views. He had not a very fruitful or powerful genius, but did good service during a long life to many good things. Sir Joseph Paxton, of Crystal Palace celebrity, met with an accident some days ago, which happily terminated without serious results; his fiery steeds ran away with the carriage in which he was seated.

The science of photography is advancing to perfection. This morning I had a private view, at Mayall's, in Regent-street, of miniature pictures in which likenesses and land landscapes are depicted with marvellous fidelity and beauty of colouring, on a substance resembling ivory. In this way the work of the artist is shortened one-tenth, while the productions cannot be surpassed by the most skilful pencil for fidelity and grace.

Turning to a less cheerful theme—I have to report that the trial of three of the principals concerned in the Railway Gold Robberies in May 1855, finished yesterday, ending in the conviction of all. Agar, one of the principals convicted for another offence in Oct. 1855 was the leading witness. The trial of Redpath and Kent was clerk for the forgery of railway shares, takes place to-day: conviction is certain.

Considerable sympathy has been evoked on behalf of a man of the name of Markham who has received the royal pardon, (as it is ironically felt to be,) because he has been proved to have been wrongfully convicted of a crime ascribed to him but which another has confessed. Something will be done for his relief, but the case has acquired public interest, from the light he has cast on the criminal conversation current among the prisoners in Newgate under sentence, making the house of punishment a veritable school of vice. In this, as in many other instances, good will turn out of evil, as the authorities will not allow, after such revelations, the present laxity to continue.

The severity of the weather has thrown out of work great numbers of persons engaged in outdoor occupations. A meeting of these was held on Monday in the vacant area of Smithfield market; 10,000 are said to have been present, and other 16,000 are declared to be suffering from the same causes, most of these having wives and children to support. This is truly sad, but it is not less certain that the improvidence so common among the working classes is the main cause of these winter hardships The summer's honey is all eaten, or what is worse exchanged for demoralizing drink, and in the severe season there is nothing to fall back upon. By the side of this manifestation a more systematic agitation is progressing to induce the Government to relinquish the extra pinepence imposed on the income tax to meet the exigencies of the war. Some men of public and parliamentary influence have joined the combination, which is likely to make some impression in the House of Commons.

Your fair readers may be interested in hearing that Gretna Green marriages have come to an end; an act of Parliamen being entered into force which renders them illegal. No more fugitive heirs will seek the north, escaping from "cruel" parents or guardians, to find bliss upon the Border. The glory of Gretna has expired! It must sink to the level of the surrounding villages and become as plebeian as its neighbors.

The Temperance Movement in all its branches is being worked with unremitting vigour. The Alliance has held its second monthly meeting in the Free Trade Hall last Friday which was crowded to the ceiling and the street. The second edition of the Prize Essay is sold, making 22,000 in all. The third edition of 20.000 is to be ready by the end of April. The special returns do not show any progressive decrease in the consumption of strong drink, but there is a powerful influence at work, wich must operate to to the change of personal habit, and to the reform of the whole beer-house system We believe that such is the decree of Providence, and that though the evolution be slow to our apprehension it is sure to be decisive. Many an old prophecy was fulfilled because those to whom it was spoken laboured to realize it; and with better aims, and in a better spirit, all who love God and man are called upon to do their utmost, in making the public sale of drink a thing forbidden by law, and its private use equally forbidden by the law of conscience and christian love. B.

TEMPERANCE HALL, PORTLAND.—Mr. John S. Hay lectured on Tousday evening on Mormonism. Mr. Hay gave an excellent and humorous expose of the rise and progress of Mormonism, as shewn in the lives and proceedings of the two great prophets, Joe Smith and Brigham Young. He considered the asserted numbers of converts to be in a great measure attributable to the policy of the Mormon Leaders in greatly exaggerating their numbers, a policy they had invariably pursued. What little success they had really met with, arose from their industrial habits, which were commendable. Mr. Hay was very happy in his comments on their treatment of the fair sex, but we hope, for the honor of the ladies, he was not correct in asserting, that part of their belief was, that "No woman can reach Paradise without a husband to introduce her," and that "the more wives a man has the more certain he is of Paradise." As a practical remedy for this, Mr. Hay suggested the emigration of a few Bloomers and strong minded women to the Mormon region.

Mr. Hay concluded by some strong remarks on the policy of the United States in suffering such a class as the Mormons to hold official positions, and represent a State. He fully proved the misery and degredation that must arise from Mormonism as a system, and stigmatized it most justly as a "libel on mankind."—Leader.

Wrecks on the English Coast.

Late English papers report a great number of shipwrecks on the English coast.

Between Flamborough Head and the mouth of the Tyne between thirty and forty wrecks are reported to have occurred; in several instances the vessels going down with all hands. At Scarborough, shortly after daybreak on Sunday morning, a brig, which was endeavoring to reach the harbor, became overwhelmed apparently by a furious storm which was raging around, and foundered with, there is no doubt, everyone belonging to her. The name of the ill-fated ship could not be discovered. At Hartlepool and its vicinity there were more shocking catastrophes. The sacrifice of life was truly great; five vessels having foundered during the height of the gale with all hands. Another ill-fated vessel, the brig Empress, Capt. Smith, of Sunderland, was dismasted, went on the Longscar Rocks, and then was driven on the Seaton Beach, and out of a crew of twelve only four were saved. More than fifteen vessels have been lost or stranded in the vicinity of the harbor. Such severe weather has not been experienced in that district for many years. The vessels that went down were three schooners and two brigs. All along the Norfolk coast, the gale has been very destructive to shipping. On Yarmouth Beach upwards of twelve colliers and coasters were driven by the force of the storm and stranded. The crews were saved. At Lowestoft the losses were nearly as numerous. At the lowest computation sixty vessels are ashore between Shields and Yarmouth, and from fifteen to twenty vessels have foundered with all hands. Above one hundred seamen are drowned.—Christian Times.

Slavery at the South.

The brutal wickedness of slave-holders is becoming more and more marked. The excitement and fear which has recently swept over the South like electric fire, has revealed the character of the men who hold their fellows in chattlehood, in new and horrid shades. Hanging and whipping, with atrocious cruelty, is the order of the day, without even the poor sanction of their own barbarous laws! Who cares for the miserable slave? Where shall he find protection or justice in all the land? Will the blood of these poor victims of fiendish cruelty arise to God and cry for vengence? How long, O Lord, shall the wicked triumph? Read their own account of their cruelty. T. M. Atkins writes to the Canton Dispatch, Ky.:

"I went to Dover, and arrived their about 2 o'clock. The people had hung four negroes at 11 o'clock that morning, and two more were then in the town to be hung. I got to the place of execution in time to see the last one go off. Of the six that were hung, three were preachers.—They were all proved to be the ringleaders. I learned that the men at the forge were at work whipping the truth out of their negroes, so I rode out there that night, and was up with them all night. I never had such feelings in my life. I saw a list of negroes that had been whipped, and was told what they all had stated, and then I heard the balance examined—some taking five and six hundred lashes before they would tell the tale; but when they did tell it, it was the same that all the others had told. Some told the whole story without taking a lick. Those that were examined, were not permitted to see those that were not; they were kept entirely seperate and a guard over each. One of the negroes at the forge died from whipping that night, several hours after the operation."

What a lovely christianizing, patriarchal institution this is! How happy and contented the slave is! How secure and permanent the institution of the south!

Here is another specimen of southern justice. The Richmond Examiner calls upon the Legislature to reduce the free negroes of Virginia to slavery, and these are the arguments which are presented. See how Christian, republican, democratic, just they are.

"There are in Virginia upwards of 54,000 negroes, who are, for the most part, drones on our society, who, if employed southward in the cultivation of cotton, would add many millions of dollars to our annual product of national wealth [how patriotic!]. and who, if sold at the moderate sum of $400 a head for the benefit of the State Treasury, would produce a fund of $20,000,000 for the prosecution of internal improvements."

Now, then, who will say that man is not totally depraved? We cannot conceive of a cooler piece of impudence than this. Satan never excelled this Virginia editor in bold schemes of crime.—Mor. Star.

An account of Sir Charles Napier's Baltic Campaign, proceeding from the pen of the admiral himself, is about to be published.—[London Telegraph.

THE MARKETS.

St. John, Wednesday Evening.

The various avenues of trade being closed at this season of the year, and few large transactions taking place, it is difficult to give quotations of Market prices, we can merely advert to articles which are freely required for City retail.

TEA SUGAR AND MOLASSES.—In consequence of comparatively small stocks of both of those articles on hand, and a prospect of the produce markets opening with high prices, present rates are likely to be sustained, we quote Fonte Rico and Barbadoes Sugar worth 50s. to 58s. 6d. per cwt, duty paid and Porto Rico and Barbadoes Molasses at 28. 6d. per gallon.

TEA.—An upward tendancy is felt in this article—a rise of about 3d. per lb. stg., which has taken place in England will have an effect to raise it here. Common Congou range from 1s. 8d. to 2s. per lb., and finer descriptions from 2s. to 2s. 6d. per lb.

FLOUR AND MEAL.—There is not much animation on sales of Breadstuffs—Bread steady, for several weeks back we quote American Superfine worth from 37s. 6d. to 38s. 9d. per barrel Mill Superfine in bags 18s. 9d. to 20s.; in barrels, 40s. to 41s. 3d.—Corn Meal 21s. 3d. to 22s. 6d. per barrel, and 10s 6d. to 11s. 3d. in bags.

PROVISIONS.—There is not much to notice in Provisions—prices having been steady for some weeks—although the value at present has an upward tendency; we quote Mess Pork firm at £5 15s. per barrel; Codfish are scarce and high—prices ranged from 17s. 6d. to 20s. per quintle.

The Country Market has been very barely supplied during the month of January, and prices are well sustained.

VICTORIA HOUSE.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

ENCOURAGED by the liberal share of patronage received during the past five years, and particularly since our removal to Prince Wm. Street, we have made arrangements to extend our retail trade. In addition to our regular Spring and Fall Supplies per Packet Ships, we shall during the winter as well as in the summer months import per steamers via Halifax, such Goods as are required to keep our Stock well assorted. Our system of doing business now is the same as it has been heretofore, adopting for our motto, not as much as we can get, but as little as we can take. We therefore mark every article in plain figures, from which no abatement can be made. Our Goods are equal in point of quality to any in the market; and as we buy on the most advantageous terms we cannot be undersold by any house in the Province. Thankfully acknowledging past favours we shall endeavour, by the extent and variety of our Stock, as well as by the quality and value of every article sold, to make the VICTORIA HOUSE as popular as possible, and respectfully solicit a continuance of that support which we have hitherto received.
