MAYFLOWER MEMORIES

It matters not how far away I roam,
Or in what foreign land I chance to dwell.
The perfume of the Mayflower wafts me home
To Nova Scotian shores beloved so well.

Though many years have travell'd o'er my head,
And etched their footprints on me without ruth,
The Mayflower carries me back to days long dead,
Returns me to surroundings of my youth.

Again I wander by a babbling brook
With wings of happy memory outspread,
Or picnic gayly in some silvan nook
To garner Mayflowers from their sheltered bed,
Once more I feel the woody stems resist,
This ravaging, as though to shield from pain
The coral blossoms; but I still persist,
And bear them, fragrant captives, home again!

To me the lovely Mayflower e'er will be
Dear symbol of my homeland by the sea.

ONTARIO PEGGED TUBER PRICE REMOVED

TORONTO, May 14—Removal of the pegged price on potatoes, effective tomorrow, whereby retailers had to pay 50 cents for a 90-pound bag and wholesalers paid 40 cents, was announced tonight by J. T. Cassin, head of the Ontario Potato Marketing Board.

Explaining the action, Mr. Cassin said that price regulation of potatoes was abandoned by Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick on May 1, and since then quotations on potatoes from the Maritimes had declined steadily and had reached a pegged price lower than Ontario.

The latest pegged price was set on May 1. From the middle of April, the retail price had been set at 57 cents.
