probation and applause of his countrymen was the spring of all his actions; and while he deserved to be ranked among the most exalted heroes, never did more firm and simple manners adorn a more feeling heart, or a more splendid and daring mind, than he possessed.

"I met the General on the evening of the 16th instant, as some soldiers were bringing him into Corunna, supported in a blanket with fashes.—He knew me immediately, and though it was almost dark; squeezed me by the hand, and said, "Do not leave me."—He spoke to the Surgeons on the spot, and in such pain he could not say but little. After some time he seemed very anxious to speak to me; and, at intervals, expressed himself as follows:—"The first question he asked was—"Are the French beaten?"—which inquiry he repeated to all those he knew as they entered the room. On being assured by all that the French were beaten, he exclaimed—"I hope the people of England will be satisfied, I hope my country will do me justice.—You will see my friends as soon as you possibly can—tell them every thing—say to my mother—(here his voice failed him)—"HOPE—HOPE—I have much to say, but cannot get it out—Is Col. GRABHAM, and are all my Aides-de-Camp, well? I have made my will, and have remembered my servants.—COLBORNE has my will, and all my papers."

"Major COLBORNE (his principal Aid-de-Camp) then came into the room—he spoke most kindly to him, and then said to me—"Remember, you go to—, and tell him it is my request, and that I expect he will befriend Major COLBORNE—he has been long with me, and I know him most worthy of it."—He then again asked Major Colborne if the French were beaten! and on being told they were repulsed on every point, he said it was a great satisfaction, in his last moments, to know he had beat the French.

"Is General PAGET in the room?"—On my telling him he was not, he said "Remember me to him"—"I feel myself so strong, I fear I shall be long dying:—I am in great pain."

"He then thanked the Doctors for their attention."

"Captains PERCY and STANHOPE came into the room—he spoke kindly to both, and asked PERCY if all his Aides-de-Camp were well.—He pressed my hand close to his body, and in a few minutes died without a struggle.

"He said to me, while the surgeons were examining his wound—"You know I have always wished to die this way."—As far as I can recollect, this is every thing he said, except asking to be placed in an easier posture."

BOSTON, APRIL 8.
SPANISH NEWS!

From our Correspondent in Salem.
FRIDAY MORNING, APRIL 7.

"The ship Catharine, Bickford, arrived here this morning, in 45 days from Valencia.—The Captain gives the following account to those who have conversed with him: That the spirit of the Spaniards was as high as ever and their cause represented as greatly successful:—That Palafox had repulsed fifteen assaults upon Saragossa, and slaughtered immense numbers: That the French had lost in Spain no less than Two Hundred Thousand men and (what is still considered better than all) that the Austrians and Turks, the former with 200,000, and the latter with one hundred and fifty thousand men were threatening France. The French held out at Barcelona."

"Captain Bickford from Valencia, has brought Spanish papers to the 17th February. They are in the hands of the translator.—The Spaniards were in high spirits, and expected to drive Bonaparte out of Spain. Saragossa, commanded by Palafox, had been attacked fifteen times, by 20,000 men, and the French every time defeated. In another attack with 70,000 they were again repulsed. In these attacks the French lost 10,000. There had been an action near Barcelona, in which the Spaniards were worsted, owing to the treachery of their General, who had been arrested, and sent to the Supreme Junta. That Austria and Turkey had declared War against France; and had a disposable force of 350,000 men."

A letter from Valencia, dated February 18th, says.—"Unless the report that Austria has declared war against France, be true, I fear that this country will soon be in possession of the French. If Saragossa is not shortly relieved it must fall, as they must be entirely without provisions; but in order to throw in supplies, a grand attack is to be made about this time by a part of the armies of Catalonia and Valencia; at the same time, Gen. Reding was to attack the French in the neighbourhood of Tarragona, so that it is highly probable the fate of this part of the country will be decided in a few days."

HALIFAX, APRIL 11.
A Salute was fired from Fort George at one o'clock yesterday, in consequence of the following General Order, dated— "Head-Quarters, 10th April, 1809.
"Official Accounts having been received of the Capture of the Island of Martinique by the forces under the command of Lieut. General Beckwith and Lieut. General Sir George Prevost, Bt. a Royal Salute will be fired from Fort George this day at 1 o'clock, in honor of the occasion."

The following Address was presented to the Hon. Col. DILLON, on Saturday last:—
Halifax, 8th April, 1809.

SIR—We the Officers of His Majesty's 101st Regiment, impressed with a lively and indelible sense of the unremitted anxiety you have so uniformly manifested for our welfare, as well as of the unparalleled liberality with which you were pleased to second our earliest exertions in completing the Regiment—beg leave to request you will allow us the gratification of presenting you a Sabre, which, with the most cordial unanimity we offer, as a small, though grateful, testimony of high respect, attachment, and esteem.

The ardent hope, that we shall, at no distant period, be more actively employed in his Majesty's service under your command, diminished in a great degree, the regret we feel at your departure.

We have the honor to be Sir, with unfeigned gratitude and affection,
Your very obedient Servants,
In the name of the Officers of the 101st Regiment,
W. POLLOCK, Lieut. Colonel.

To the Hon. H. A. Dillon, Commanding His Majesty's 101st Regiment, &c.
Halifax, April 8, 1809.

GENTLEMEN—I have just received with the warmest emotion of gratitude, the flattering and affectionate testimony of your regard, through Lieut. Col. POLLOCK.

Gentlemen, the happiest period of my life has been passed, during the last two years, in the midst of those to whom I am, and ever will be, most firmly bound by every tie of public duty and private regard.

I shall prize most highly any token of your good opinion and confidence; which I trust I shall merit under more difficult circumstances.

Gentlemen, with the warmest sentiments of gratitude and affection, I remain your humble faithful Servant,
H. A. DILLON, Colonel 101st Regiment.

To the Officers of H. M. 101st Regt.

We have before, we believe, recommended to our readers a Pamphlet, entitled, "Hints to both Parties on the Proceedings in Parliament upon the Orders in Council," and are induced to repeat our approbation of the principles it maintains, on the approaching discussion of American politics.—It explains, as we conceive, most clearly, the effects of the American Embargo upon British commerce, and shews that there is nothing to apprehend either from the continuance of this Act, or the promulgation of others of a still more hostile nature. That the effect, indeed, of a measure which suspends American commerce should be to ruin that of England, seems at first sight so strangely paradoxical, that one must be astonished how it could enter into any one's mind. That it might inflict partial suffering was indeed with some appearance of probability prognosticated; but even the prophecies upon this head seem now to have been falsified.

On Monday last, at 1 o'clock, a Royal Salute, accompanied by volleys from the Detachment of the 101st regiment, was fired in consequence of the Commandant of the Garrison having received official advices of the capture of MARTINIQUE by H. M. Forces.

SISSIBOO, 8th APRIL, 1809.
On Monday last died at his house in this place, Colonel JAMES MOODY, in the 65th year of his age. For a number of years he represented the County of Annapolis in General Assembly, and in consequence of his Military services (which are well known to his Brother Loyalists) he was this day interred with the Honors of War by Detachments of the Digby and Clare Regiments of Militia under Lieutenant-Colonel Carman—the Funeral was likewise attended by a very respectable number of Inhabitants of this place and Digby.

From the Philadelphia Political and Commercial Register of April 10, 1809.

WEST-INDIES. ST. GEORGE, (Gren.) March 18.
By the arrival of a vessel from Trinidad, on Thursday evening, a report was brought of the capture by our Squadron, to windward of Barbadoes, of 20 sail of enemy's transports, and armed vessels, with troops, provisions and ammunition for the French colonies. It is said that the Admiral had been informed of their being expected, and having stationed a number of frigates in a very judicious manner, they fell in with the enemy, seventeen of them were captured and sent to Barbadoes, the other three ran for Martinique, and shared no doubt, the same fate—the French colors still continue flying there, as a decoy to the enemy.—We hope that a confirmation of this happy event, and a more detailed account thereof, will soon enable us to lay the particulars of this interesting intelligence before our readers without delay.

The Managers are extremely sorry to be under the necessity of postponing the Play intended for Performance This Evening, in consequence of the absence of some of the Performers who are necessarily away on duty. The Day of Performance will be named immediately after their return.
