

This ship, led on by Lieutenant Conoly, without a man being hurt.

I beg leave to offer you my congratulations on the fall of Figueras, and the fair prospect it opens.

I have the honor to be, &c.

(Signed) CHARLES BULLEN.

MAY 20.

A mail from Anholt arrived this morning, and brought the following intelligence; Russia is said, in an article from Vienna, to have made fresh propositions to the Porte, which have been rejected.

BERLIN, APRIL 24.

"The Emperor Napoleon wishing to give a fresh proof of his friendship for the King of Prussia, a short time ago set at liberty 21 individuals of the band of Schult, who were prisoners in France, he even defrayed their expense to Mayence. Several have already arrived at Berlin."

ANHOLT, MAY 11.

"The Captain of a vessel arrived from Carlsham reports, that upwards of 50 ships laden with colonial products have been detained in that port, and their cargoes conveyed under a strong escort into the interior."

Extract of a letter from Stralsund, May 1.

"There is great activity employed here in making preparations of defence to oppose the English in case they should attempt a descent. The garrison will be reinforced. We are constructing, new batteries, and daily expect some gun-boats from Sweden."—(Abeille du Nord, May 7, 1811.)

PRESBURG, APRIL 12.

"The mission of M. Fenton, the Russian agent to the Turkish head-quarters at Schumla, has not succeeded. The Grand Vizier declared, that peace could not be re-established between Russia and the Porte, unless the Court of St. Petersburg would renounce its pretensions upon Wallachia and Moldavia, and withdraw her troops from Servia."

PLYMOUTH, MAY 18.

"A Prussian vessel arrived here yesterday from Memel; by which is learnt a most extraordinary circumstance, and if true, shews the cunning of Bonaparte in its true colours. The master says, it was confidently asserted, that a plan was laid by the emissaries of Bonaparte to carry off to Paris Frederick King of Prussia; he escaped at fifteen minutes notice, and it is said has got into Russia in safety."

The Fame, Phillips, of and from Penzance, in her passage to Gibraltar, fell in with, in lat. 42. 36. long. 9. 50. (date not mentioned) a French 74 gun ship, full of troops, steering S. W. and was detained a few hours.

WILLIAM STENING, BLACKSMITH,

Saturday, the Indian sloop of war, Capt. Jane, from Bermuda; and brig Newland, Hunter, Portsmouth.

Yesterday, brig Sir George Prevost, Hians, from Newfoundland, three days.

By the arrival of the brig Sir George Prevost, intelligence of great moment was received—the capture of Almeida and Badajos by the Allied Armies—and the severe defeat of the respective forces under Massena and Soult, near those places.—A Liverpool paper of the 30th of May, had been obtained by the Jason frigate, from a brig bound to Quebec—We have been favored by a Gentleman of this town, with the following extracts made from it by his attentive and intelligent correspondent at St. John's:

GLORIOUS NEWS!!

BATTLE BETWEEN GENERAL BERESFORD AND MARSHAL SOULT.

FALL OF ALMEIDA.

A bloody, and most desperate battle has been fought at a place called Albohera, near Badajos, between the Allied Armies, under the command of General Beresford, and the French Army commanded by General Soult. The latter, it appears, had formed the resolution of raising the siege of Badajos, and with this view he marched his whole force, (28,000 strong) towards that fortress. General Beresford opposed to Soult, the British, Spanish, and Portuguese. The engagement took place on the 16th. The French were the assailants, and the conflict was maintained on both sides with the most undaunted courage and bravery; but the enemy were repulsed with immense slaughter. The brunt of the battle fell peculiarly hard upon the Spaniards; who are said to have fought incredibly well: "four thousand of those brave fellows," says an article from Lisbon, "were our advanced guard: they fought and died like the old Spartan band—every man of them fell, and each was killed on the spot on which he fought."

Almeida has likewise fallen into the hands of the Allied Army, under Lord Wellington: it was abandoned by the enemy on the 10th, and taken possession of by our troops on the 11th instant. There appears only to have been 1000 men in the garrison before it was evacuated—part of them were taken in their attempt to escape.

Lord Wellington's despatch, dated Villa Formosa, May 8, details the engagement of Fuentes de Honor, which was very obstinate. This despatch confirms the report of Joseph Bonaparte having gone to Paris.

A concluding despatch of the 10th, says, the enemy retired on the 8th to the woods between Espija Gallegos and Fuentes de Honor—in which position the whole army were collected on that day and yesterday, with the exception of that part of the second corps—which continued opposite Almeida. Last night the whole broke up and retired across the Azava, covering their retreat by their numerous cavalry, and this day the whole have retired across the Agueda, leaving Almeida to its fate. The second corps retired by the bridge of Barba del Puerco and the ford of Val de Espina on the Agueda. Our advanced posts are upon the Azava and on the lower Agueda, and the army will be to-morrow in the cantonments on the Duas Casas.

(Signed) WELLINGTON.

An official letter from Lord Wellington, of the 15th May, gives an account of the battle of Barba del Puerco; and another on the 18th mentions that the enemy had blown up the works at Almeida, and retired to Barba del Puerco, with considerable loss.

In this engagement General Nightingale was wounded slightly; Lieut. Col. Williams, do.; Lieut. Colonel Cameron, 79th, killed.

Soult broke up from Gillena on the 9th May, and at Zafra effected a junction with Gen. Latour Maubourg, which increased his number to 22,000. General Balasteros fell back, joined General Blake, and, on the 13th, Marshal Beresford and Castanos concentrated their forces at Valverde, where they were joined by General Blake.

On the 16th, Marshal Soult attacked the combined army at Albohera, and, after an obstinate action, was repulsed with great loss—abandoning his wounded, and retiring to a position in sight of the British advanced posts.

The loss on the part of the Allies is not specified, but understood to be very severe—Major General Houghton, killed; Major General Cole, and W. Stewart, slightly wounded; Lieut. Colonels Sir W. Myers and Duckworth, killed.

ELFAS, May 18, Seven P. M.

The battle lasted six hours and a half; the enemy had two Generals killed—one wounded. At eight this morning General Houghton was buried.

The first intelligence of the engagement with General Beresford and Soult, reached the Admiralty yesterday afternoon in the following telegraphic despatch:

"The French Marshal, Soult, with 25,000 men, attacked Marshal Beresford on the 16th instant, but was repulsed with great loss."

Despatches confirming this highly interesting and true

ly important affair, are said to have arrived in London, from Marshal Beresford.

HORSE-GUARDS, MAY 25, 1811.

His Royal Highness the Commander in Chief has been pleased to appoint Lieut. Col. Henry Torrens, of the 98th regiment to be his Military Secretary.

The Atalante, sloop of war, from Bermuda, with despatches for Col. BARCLAY, our Consul at New-York, anchored within Sandy-Hook on the 17th ult. and sailed from thence the 20th—We have been favored by her officers with New-York papers to the 19th ult. from which we have made a few extracts.

On the 9th May, His Majesty's Ships Eurydice, Capt. Bradshaw, and Atalante, Capt. Hickey, off Cape Henry, fell in with the American frigate United States, Commodore Decatur, and while Captains Bradshaw and Decatur were exchanging friendly salutations, a shot was fired from the United States—immediately our ships prepared to fire, when Commodore Decatur hailed, and gave his word and honor that the firing of the gun was the effect of accident—Capt. Bradshaw then sent his Lieutenant on board the United States, where the Commodore again, in the presence of his ship's company, declared it to have been an accident—with which declaration Capt. Bradshaw was satisfied.

The conduct of Capt. Bradshaw throughout this affair, was well tempered with dignity and moderation—and the result honorable to his country and himself.

Our gallant Tars have again distinguished themselves in the Adriatic Sea—His Majesty's Ships Amphion, Active, Cerberus and Volage, were attacked on the 13th April, near the Island of Lissa, by a combined French and Italian squadron, comprising 5 frigates, 1 corvette, and 4 smaller vessels—they fought 6 hours, and the action terminated in the total defeat of the enemy, the capture of two frigates, and destruction of another.—We have given the official details of this glorious achievement, extracted from a London paper of the 20th May, received via Newfoundland.

The Bream brought despatches from Mr. Foster, who had touched at Bermuda, in His Majesty's Ship Minerva, on his way to the United States, on the 20th ult.—He was expected to leave Bermuda the moment the wind became favorable.

The Paper of to-day presents a variety of important events—displaying in brilliant colours the bravery of our Army and Navy—and the happy prospect of the emancipation of Spain and Portugal from the French Tyrant's domination.

MARRIED] On Thursday the 27th ult. by the Rev. Dr. Byles, Mr. EBENEZER WHITNEY, of the Parish of New-Castle, County of Northumberland, to Miss CHARLOTTE PARKER, of King's-Clear, in the County of York.

DIED] Lately at Cornwallis, N. S. LEMUEL MORTON, Esq. Member of the House of Assembly, Major of the 6th battalion of the Militia—His funeral was attended by a detachment of the said battalion, under command of Capt. Gisner—His relations and friends have lost a kind benefactor, the community a worthy member.

At Carleton, on Saturday the 29th ult. after a short illness, Mr. CHARLES HAMM, aged 32—His remains were respectfully interred.

On Thursday last, Mrs. ELIZABETH RODEN, in the 83d year of her age, relict of Mr. William Roden late of this City—Her remains were interred yesterday numerously attended.

DROWNED] at Snug Cove, from on board the schooner Messenger, Mr. SAMUEL THOMAS, of this city.
