Latest European Intelligence.

LONDON, AUGUST 26.

The following is an extract of a letter from an Officer of the Crescent, cruising in the Baltic, dated the 23d inst. "On the 31 a signal was thrown out for a general chase and then to prepare for battle. Three Danish brigs of 20 guns each, the Lowland, Sougen, and Langeland were right a head of the Squadron, and thirty-six miles from the coast of Norway: we had one ship of 38 guns; Daphne, 24 guns; Cruiser, 18 guns; Raleigh, 18 guns; a gun-brig and cutter of 14 guns each; we chased the enemy all the night; in the evening we were close in shore; they were joined by another brig and schooner, besides 12 gun-boats, at which time we were obliged reluctantly to tack, otherwise we should have taken the whole. I think we shall have peace with Russia; as we fell in with three transports laden with shot, shells, and gunpowder, going up for the use of the Russians, under the convoy of the Grafshopper, of 18 guns."

Letters from Dublin of the 23d instant mention that a meeting of the Catholics of the County of Kildare will take place at Meas on the 3d of next month. Since the arrest of the delegates appointed by the Parish of St. Mary, Dublin, none of the other parishes seem disposed to elect deputies in opposition to the generally received construction of the Convention Act. It is, however, but justice to add, that the forbearance of the other, is ascribable to the influence of the Clergy, who, in general, are averse to the present system of petitioning through the medium of a Convention.

Nothing has transpired, on the subject of our negotiations with America. We hope we are not about to compromise our national honor and character, by suffering their wanton aggression to be frittered away by a long and unsatisfactory correspondence between the agents of the two Governments.

General Sarrasin complains that the Marquis Wellesley refused the favour, which on the 13th June, 1810, he begged of him, to be sent out to Lord Wellington, in order to serve him either as Secretary or Aid-de-Camp. "Having been employed as engineer at the sieges of Charleroi, Mactricht, Mentz, and Luxembourg," says the Ex-General, "I may be permitted to flatter myself, that I might have been useful in conducting these operations." Now we beg leave to express our thanks to Lord Wellesley for not employing this Foreigner. Why does he not hide his head in obscurity? We want no delectors for Secretaries!

Bonaparte is certainly making every effort to subdue the inflexibility of Pius VI. and bend him to his purpose. The private letters from Vienna say, that a correspondence has for some time been carried on between the Emperor Francis and his Holiness the Pope. The object had not transpired; but from French Envoys being chiefly employed in conveying the letters it was conjectured that they meditated an accommodation between his Holiness and the French Ruler.

ALTONA, AUGUST 8.—M. Bethman, the Russian Consul at Frankfurt, has lately been expelled that city, in consequence of its being discovered that he had employed agents to invite and facilitate emigration from the North of Germany to the Crimea. About 3000 families had at different times been conveyed at his expense and settled there.—The Emperor Alexander on learning this disgraceful conduct of the Sieur Bethman, expressed great indignation, and sent him orders to return to Russia, where enquiry and punishment no doubt await him.

Yesterday, letters were received from Holland to the date of Sunday last. All the troops in the different towns had received orders to hold themselves in readiness to march at a moment's notice; nothing certain was known of their intended route; but it was believed that they would be encamped, preparatory to being reviewed by Bonaparte.—The troops assembled at Utrecht did not exceed 16,000 men. A Dutch regiment of infantry, raised at Amsterdam, received on the 3d August a route for Spain. We understand it is the first regiment of Hollanders which has been sent entire on that service.

A singular instance of boldness on the part of the Mayors of various departments, particularly those of the Zuyder Zee is communicated in these letters. Ever since the annexion of Holland to France, domiciliary visits have been instituted under pretence of searching for English goods.—The douaniers employed in this hateful service are Frenchmen, and their overbearing conduct in the execution of their duty has never been found to allay those feelings of hatred and jealousy which it is calculated to excite. Having, in many instances, met with resistance, the douaniers applied to the Mayors for assistance, who not only refused, but those of the department of the Zuyder Zee had the courage to assemble together, and sign a memorial to the Count de Celles, their Prefect, stating their reasons for such a refusal. The termination of this business proved honorable to themselves, and beneficial to their fellow-citizens; the Mayors engaged, in future, that a municipal officer should accompany the douaniers, and they obtained from the Prefect in return the dismissal and punishment of several, against whom various specific acts of outrage were alleged.

MARRIED—Lieut. General Sir J. C. SHERBROKE, to KATHARINA, eldest daughter of the Rev. R. PYN-DAR, of Aiely-house, Worcesterhire.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS, AUGUST 20.

The skeleton of the 7th Fusiliers marched into this place on their route to Maidstone from Portsmouth where they were disembarked from Portugal. They marched in, their band playing and their colours flying, honorably pierced in a hundred places, and otherwise much tattered. The martial appearance of the hardy veterans made a strong impression upon every heart, on reflecting that this battalion went into the battle of Albuera between 8 and 900 strong, and, exclusive of about between 2 and 300 men left in the hospital at Lisbon, they mustered no more than about five officers and 70 men, of whom many were disabled, so as to be obliged to march without their arms. As soon as it was known what corps they were, the sympathy for their sufferings on that memorable day, where, in about ten minutes time, 500 of their brave comrades fell, in consequence of being broke in by the Polish lancers, before they were able to reload their pieces, and the rest rescued by the arrival of the 23d; before which they, in their turn, were obliged to retire, and were ultimately cut up by the English cavalry. Among the disabled that came here, there is a man who received a shot in the left cheek, and passing through his mouth, the ball came out again under the right jaw-bone; in the direction it took, the tongue of the unfortunate man was lacerated in such a manner as to render it necessary to cut it off, in consequence of which he is now deprived of speech, but in other respects possesses his faculties entirely, and is a very hardy and fine looking man.

The emotions the sight of these brave men diffused in every bosom burst forth almost instantaneously into the most generous ideas, in respect to what could be devised to show the men how dear they were to their countrymen, whether by giving them a handsome dinner, or by making a subscription, they would be most benefited; the latter was preferred, and the gentry immediately began to subscribe, when there were above forty guineas subscribed for them.

In consequence, their band played in the evening, facing the head-quarters, the Suffolk Hotel, many excellent martial and other airs in very excellent style, amongst which they introduced different Spanish pieces, which from their liveliness and vivacity were generally admired. The parade was thronged with spectators; amongst whom all the fashionable and others of distinction graced the fete-like evening with their presence: it was truly a beautiful spectacle. This morning the corps left this place to pursue their route, and played as long as they had a house to pass.

Accounts have been received from the Baltic, which state as a report, that Sir J. Saumarez, in pursuance of his instructions, had applied to the Swedish Government to surrender up the whole of the sequestered property belonging to British subjects, and threatening, in the event of a refusal, to commence operations against the ports of that country. Carlserona is, we understand, completely within his power. The 15th September was appointed for the time of the return of the British fleet, but it will not probably withdraw from the North much before November, unless the inclemency of the season should render it necessary.

The rapid movements of the British army in Portugal have left us in much uncertainty as to its real position. The following extract of a Letter explains the cause of this unexpected activity. It is from an officer on duty in Camp near Abrantes:—

"Despatches have arrived, intimating that every thing is again in motion, owing to the enemy appearing in great force in the North of Portugal.

"I have been up the whole night, forwarding supplies to the different divisions of the army, and removing the sick. The following is the alteration that has taken place:—

"The 7th division at Castel Branco.
"The 1st division at Villa Velha.
"The 4th at Niza.
"The 5th at Castello Branco.
"The 3d at San Miguel.
"The French indicate an intention of moving toward Oporto. The 2d division, with our brigade of cavalry, alone remains on this side the Tagus."

We understand from another quarter, that the duty up to the 13th of August, had been extremely harassing, and particularly to the 11th dragoons, which had been employed in watching the motions of the enemy at 50 miles distance from the head-quarters.

It is, we understand, the intention of Ministers, that Parliament shall assemble in October, for a short session, the chief business of which will be the removal of the restrictions upon the present exercise of the Royal Authority by the Prince Regent.

Extract of a letter from our Correspondent at Falmouth, August 28.

"Arrived H. M. schooner Barbara, with mails from Jamaica, in 42 days; brings an account of the loss of the Prince of Wales Packet, on the 17th ult. on the Haregoda Shoals; the crew, passengers, and specie all saved and brought home.

It is stated that 120 ships are lading in France for this country, with licences from Bonaparte.

The importation of specie continues to a great extent; a very large sum it is said, arrived on Friday, from Jamaica, in the Saracen sloop of war.

SEPTEMBER 1.

In confirmation of the increasing good understanding between Great Britain and Russia, a letter from Memel cites the orders which had been received at Revel from St. Petersburg, directing the release of 35 vessels, which, with their cargoes (most part English goods,) had been under sequestration in that port.

A great part of the crown lands throughout Russia
