

SUPPLEMENT TO THE ROYAL GAZETTE.

NEW-BRUNSWICK.

SAINT JOHN, MONDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1811.

Capt. Holly, late of the Brig Douglas of this port, arrived on Wednesday from Charleston, S. C. by way of the Lines.—In a former paper we mentioned this vessel being taken by the Diligent French Privateer, which had anchored off Charleston, and that on her arrival she had been saluted by the Fort.—We learn from Capt. Holly that so far from the Fort returning the salute of the French Privateer, they did not even hoist their colors.

On the 13th inst. sailed for England that very fine armed ship the Caledonian, Capt. Boag, belonging to the House of Messrs. John Black, & Co.—on board of which went Lieut. Colonel CHARLES M'CARTHY of the Royal African Corps, (late Major 104th Regt.)

On taking leave of this very meritorious Officer, I cannot neglect to add my humble mite, in expressing my sentiments of the exalted estimation in which he was held by all ranks in the Province, who had the honor of knowing him personally or by report, during his residence amongst them for the last seven years.—When as a friend in the social circles of his numerous acquaintances, his absence must be severely felt—and when as the correct officer of transcendent talents; who has had the chief merit of bringing a young Regiment to the perfection the 104th Regiment is now arrived at, he must ever be sincerely regretted. I beg leave further to mention as a proof of the Lieut. Colonel's attention to his duty, and as a circumstance that may explain the motives of the affection of every individual of that Corps to him; that he not only knew all the men by name and country, but was actually acquainted with their dispositions and characters—this fact (if I am not misinformed) can be authenticated by the officers of the 104th Regiment. Having entered the army at an early period of life, he entertains a high, perhaps enthusiastic respect for that profession, and his system of discipline (strictly and zealously followed by the whole of the Officers) appeared founded on a conviction that it was easier to lead British Soldiers by attending to their comforts and appealing to their feelings as men of honor, than by terror and an indiscriminate recourse to severe punishments.

As a tribute so justly due to the superior abilities of this Officer, I request Mr. Mott, that you will insert in your very valuable Royal Gazette, the following General Order published by Major-General MARTIN HUNTER, on the event of the departure of Lieut. Col. M'CARTHY.—By so doing you will oblige
Mr. Jacob S. Mott, A FRIEND to MERIT.
King's Printer, St. John.

HEAD-QUARTERS, ST. JOHN, 5th November, 1811.
GENERAL DISTRICT ORDERS.

In justice to Lieut. Colonel CHARLES M'CARTHY, Major-General HUNTER cannot allow him to leave the Province, without expressing the very high opinion he has of him as an officer.—It is principally to his unremitting exertion, and to the zeal of the officers in supporting and carrying into effect his orders and wishes, that the 104th Regiment owes its discipline, interior economy, and effective strength of upwards of nine hundred rank and file.

The Major-General has observed with pleasure that when the Regiment was inspected last September by Major-General BALFOUR there was not one solitary claim, complaint or grievance to be redressed which he believes to be a singular instance in a young Corp recruited to that strength.

A Regiment led into action by such an officer, where even the women and children are so much attached, as those of the 104th Regiment are to Lieutenant Colonel M'CARTHY, will always distinguish themselves: The Major-General has often heard the great and good ABERCROMBY express these sentiments.

Major-General HUNTER has also remarked with peculiar satisfaction that Lieut. Colonel M'CARTHY, by his upright and honorable conduct in carrying on the unpleasant, and always unpopular duty of recruiting has obtained the confidence and esteem of the whole Province, as expressed by the Magistrates of that County where the Regiment was raised, and by the Common Council of the City of St. John, who have voted him the Freedom of their City.

And as a future testimony of his own esteem, the Major-General has requested Lieut. Colonel M'CARTHY to accept of a Sword, confident that in his hands it will always be employed for the good of the service.

By Command,
(Signed) THOMAS HUNTER, Aid-de-Camp.
H. W. HAILES, Brigade Major.

We observed with pleasure that when Lieut. Colonel M'CARTHY went on board the Caledonian in the Garrison barge, he was accompanied by Major DRUMMOND the Commandant of the Garrison, and Capt. HUNTER, Aid-de-Camp to General HUNTER, and rowed by a party of the 104th Regiment in full uniform—on a signal given when the barge left the wharf, the detachment of the 104th Regiment being previously drawn up for the purpose upon the hill in front of the Commandant's quarters, and facing the Caledonian, fired three volleys, as the last compliment and marks of attention and respect to their late beloved Major, which was followed by three heartfelt cheers: the 2d Band of the 104th Regiment playing martial and appropriate Music on the occasion.

DIED] Suddenly, at Fredericton, on the 2d instant, in the 53d year of his age, the Honorable WILLIAM BALFOUR, Major-General on the Staff of the Army in British America, and lately President of His Majesty's Council and Commander in Chief of the Province of New-Brunswick.

He was the fourth son of John Balfour, late of Edinburgh, Esquire, and entered His Majesty's service in the year 1775, at the age of sixteen years, an Ensign, by purchase, in the 57th Regiment, in which he continued till his death, having in the same Regiment passed through the several gradations from the rank of Ensign to that of Lieutenant Colonel, and at every step, excepting the Majority, by purchase.

On receiving his first Commission, he joined the army under the command of Sir William Howe, in America, and was present at the battle of Brooklyn and at the storming of Fort Montgomery. He served afterwards, when Captain of Light Infantry, under the command of Lord Cornwallis, and was taken prisoner at Yorktown in Virginia. After the peace took place, in 1783, his regiment being stationed in Nova-Scotia, he was detached with his company to this part of the country, and commanded in Fort Howe at the time of Governor Carleton's arrival in the newly erected Province of New-Brunswick. In the following year, 1785, he returned to England, and was for some time employed in training recruits for his Regiment. He afterwards served two campaigns on the Continent, and was employed at different times and on various services, in the West-Indies. On the recall of his Regiment, in 1803, to be recruited, he had the honor to form that Corps, which has lately had so distinguished a share in the glory of sustaining the reputation of the British arms in Spain.

Previous to his late arrival here, he had been for some time stationed in the Province of Nova-Scotia, and, on General Hunter's being called there to assume the command on the removal of Sir George Prevost to Quebec, was appointed to take charge of the Province of New-Brunswick. And we are authorised to say that, during the short time of his administration of this Government, he was highly esteemed by such Members of His Majesty's Council as had opportunities of forming an estimate of his character, by whom he was unanimously regarded as a Gentleman of amiable manners in private life, and possessing a very honorable zeal and respectable talents for the public service.

General BALFOUR has left, to lament his loss, three daughters, who had before felt the loss of their mother. Of these the eldest only attended the General on his late removal from Halifax; and though the time of her residence here has been so short, she will be long remembered, as a young lady of a very amiable and respectable character. We are happy to add, that these Orphans, heavy as their loss has been, have yet a home, where they will be cherished and protected, in the family of an uncle, a worthy brother of their late Father.
