

POETS' CORNER,

ODE ON LIBERTY.

FROM MR. G. DYER'S POEMS.

HAIL! more refulgent than the morning star, Parent of bliss! for whom the nation sighs, Thee, Liberty! I woo, and seem from far, To mark the brightness of thy raptur'd eye; While not to me unseemly streams thy vest, Thy locks wild dancing to the frolic wind; And borne on flying feet, thy scorn'd to rest, Save where meek Truth near thee a seat may find. Soother of human life, blest Liberty! Still range thro' Nature's walks, and I will range with thee.

Say, dost thou love to climb the mountain's brow, Or haunt meand'ring stream, or laughing plain? Be mine with thee up mountain heights to go, Or wake by river's brink the pastoral strain, Or tripping light the flowery meads along, A simple swain, mid herds and virgin gay, Pour forth to thee my merry evening song, Unwearied with the raptures of the day: And, when close lock'd in Sleep's soft arms I lie, Still flattering dreams shall wake the midnight ecstasy.

Or dost thou rather chuse to wear the veil Of mild philosophy, and walk, unseen, Serenely grave, along the cloister pale, Or grove, or glen, or on the shaven green? Oh! still be mine to tend me on thy way, Like thee to feel, to glow with all thy flame, Gentle and clear, as the sun's smiling ray At dawn, yet warm as his meridian beam. When wondering nations feel the piercing rays, And think they view their God, and kindle into praise.

For me, when I grow thoughtless, and thy name Forget, should I wax cold, nor feel thy power, Then too may fancy sleep, and, lost to shame, Ne'er may I look beyond the passing hour; May beauty never smile upon my strain, May I be curs'd, to live some tyrant's tool, Whistle to his mean likings, and my gain Be this, to hear ambition call me fool; Begin and end at Folly's calls my lays, Bread the world's sneer, and truckle for its praise.

RUSSIAN IMPERIAL UKASE.

[The following Ukase of the Emperor Alexander will be reperused with great interest at the present moment; when he is preparing to put down a second time the Old "oppressor of the Nations."]

[TRANSLATION.]

Beloved Subjects!—A year is elapsed since we were called upon to return Thanks to God for delivering our realms from the hands of cruel and powerful enemies. Scarcely is the present year expired, and already our victorious banners are erected on the banks of the Rhine. Europe, which was armed against us, is now voluntarily marching with us! All the nations which lie between Russia and France follow our example; and, having united their arms with ours, turn them against the oppressor of the nations.

So great a change upon earth could only have been effected by the special power of God. The destiny of Nations and States rises and falls by the power of his almighty arm. Who is powerful without him? Who is strong and stable, unless by his will? Let us turn to him with our whole heart and mind. Let us not be proud of our own deeds. Let us never imagine that we are more than weak mortals. What, are we? So long as the hand of God is with us, we are in possession of wisdom and might: but without him we are nothing. Let all the praise of man, therefore, be silenced before him. Let each of us present the sacrifice of praise to him to whom it is due. Our true glory and honor is humility before him. We are convinced that each of our faithful subjects always feels this, and especially after so much divine goodness has been poured out upon us. Animated, therefore, by these sentiments of humility and zeal, we ordain on the present occasion, that throughout our whole empire, every Temple of God be opened; that in every church solemn thanksgiving be presented on bended knees, to the Maker and Disposer of all things; and that all present tears of the warmest gratitude to him for the unspeakable mercy shown us,—By the power of his almighty arm he hath drawn us out of great deeps, and placed us on the pinnacle of glory:—What shall we render to him but tears of gratitude and joy! ALEXANDER. Given at the H. Q. Carlsruhe, December 6, (O. S.) 1813.
