

"The road was full of all sorts of people; but whenever we met the Diligence, I began to converse in a loud voice in English, and I remarked that my hat which was mounted with a white plume, and which, Lavalette held in his hand, attracted the notice of the passengers, and withdrew their attention from us."

"Lavalette has such marked features, and his person is so well known to all the post-masters, that the greatest care was necessary. At La Chapelle, where we changed horses, we experienced a moment's alarm at the sight of four gendarmes who hovered about us. But Hutchinson on being questioned by them, relieved us from their importunities by replying that we were going to choose cantonments for a division of the English army. We were obliged to pass close to other gendarmes who had with them bills containing the description of Lavalette, and here I ought to remark that these bills had been distributed to almost every individual in France. On approaching Compeigne I observed some grey hairs projecting from under the brown wig worn by Lavalette. Fortunately I had scissors with me, and I performed the part of his friseur on the road."

On entering Compeigne we found the sergeant mentioned by Captain Fraval, who conducted us through the town to a quarter extremely well chosen, for we were not incommoded by spectators in the streets. None saw us enter except the soldiers and the English servants who attended us. While we waited for Ellister with the carriage, Mr. F. presented us with refreshments. Finally, towards night, as had been agreed upon, Ellister arrived with the carriage, which had left Paris by the barrier of St. Denis, and was followed to La Chapelle by two gendarmes. I caused the lamps to be lighted, as well to shew us our road as to make it appear that we were under no apprehensions; and having taken leave of our friends, we set out, well armed and prepared to make resistance, if we experienced any obstacle. We were much questioned at the stations for the relays, but we experienced no delay till we reached Cambray, where we lost three hours at the gates, owing to the fault of the English guard, who having no orders for calling the gate-keeper, was not to be induced to do so, notwithstanding all we could say to him—a negligence which has already been attended with inconvenience to the government, and which might have been fatal to us. In passing through Valenciennes we were strictly examined three times over, and our passports sent to the commandant. We underwent another examination at some distance from that garrison, and this was the last. We did not stop, except at Mons, where we dined, and made arrangements for the future journey of Lavalette. I wrote several letters to facilitate the means by which he might reach his destination, and having provided every thing that appeared best for his health and comfort, I took leave of him, and returned to Paris yesterday evening by the route of Maubuge, Soissons, and la Porte St. Martin, after an absence of 60 hours."
