

FROM THE "HEBREW MELODIES," BY LORD BYRON.

SHE WALKS IN BEAUTY.

SHE WALKS IN BEAUTY, like the night,
Of cloudless climes and starry skies;
And all that's best of dark and bright
Meet in her aspect and her eyes;
Thus mellow'd to that tender light
Which heaven to gaudy day denies.

One shade the more, one ray the less,
Had half impair'd the nameless grace
Which waves in every raven tress,
Or softly lightens o'er her face;
Where thoughts serenely sweet express
How pure, how dear their dwelling place.

And on that cheek, and o'er that brow,
So soft, so calm, yet eloquent,
The smiles that win, the tints that glow,
But tell of days in goodness spent,
A mind at peace with all below,
A heart whose love is innocent!

SAID A SMILE TO A TEAR.

SAID a smile to a tear,
On the cheek of my dear,
And beam'd like the sun in spring weather,
In sooth, lovely tear,
It strange must appear,
That we should be both here together.

I came from the heart,
A soft balm to impart,
To yonder sad daughter of grief:
And I, said the smile,
That heart now beguile,
Since you gave the poor mourner relief.

Oh then, said the tear,
Sweet smile, it is clear,
We are twins, and soft pity our mother:
And how lovely that face
Which together we grace,
For the woe and the bliss of another!

A Receipt for a Lady's dress.

Your earrings be attention,
encircled by the pearls of refinement--the diamonds of your necklace be truth, and the chain christianity--your bosom-pin charity, ornamented with the pearls of gentleness--your finger rings be affection, set round with the diamonds of industry--your girdle be simplicity, with tassals of good humor--let your thicker garb be virtue, and your drapery politeness--let your shoes be wisdom, secured by the buckles of perseverance.

From the Democratic Press.

On reading yesterday in your paper a paragraph about mendicity in England, the following truly shocking case occurred to my mind which happened not long ago in one of the populous cities in Europe.

Mr. F. M. observing for several days successively, on passing the corner of a certain street in Amsterdam a beggar woman telling a lamentable story of her distress, holding at the same time a small blind child to view, whose distressing screams every time attracted his notice, and awakened his most tender pity; at last become suspicious from the continued screams of the child assisted by two of his friends, he went one day to the spot and induced the woman to go with them to a neighboring house where they forcibly examined the child. What a sight! It was blind of one eye and the other was tied up with a number of bandages, on removing the last bandage, half of an English walnut shell with a small hole on the top presented itself, under it they found a Spider of the most poisonous kind. The eye lids were forced and kept assunder, so that the eye ball was completely exposed to the painful and poisonous attack of the Spider!!! The woman was immediately secured; she confessed that the other eye had been destroyed in the same horrible manner, that the child was her own; and that she had thus tortured it and destroyed its sight for the purpose of exciting the pity of the public more effectually!!! The woman was delivered over to justice and the child sent to the hospital.

An ignorant fellow maintained in company that the sun did not go round the world; how then, said one present, does it happen that it sets at west, and rises again at east, unless he passes under the globe? Why, replied he, the sun returns the same way that he came; but the reason why you don't observe it, is, "That he goes back in the dark."
