

we give our readers, as we have it, from public report.

On Saturday the 10th instant, two brothers, with their families, consisting of their wives (who were sisters, and four small children, started from Henderson's Harbor up the lake in a small open boat, with their effects, purposing to remove to the Genesee country. We are credibly informed, that at the time they left Henderson's Harbor, the gannet of their craft was but a very few inches above water. They were warned of their danger, and entreated not to hazard their lives by going in so small a boat, on a lake so subject to sudden flaws--yet it appears the Messrs. Whites were determined to proceed, let the consequence be what it might--they went--and the only tidings we have from these untimely adventurers, are, that their four children, and the boat in which they sailed, have been picked up on the lake. Without doubt, these two entire families, together with the mother of the Messrs. Whites, and a boy committed to their charge, supposed to have been formerly from Utica, amounting in all to 10 souls, have been precipitately hurried from time into eternity.

QUEBEC, MAY 27. CASE OF HYDROPHOBIA.

Madame Bruneau, wife of Mr. Bruneau, of the Ordnance Department, had her arm violently lacerated by the bite of a cat, about the commencement of November last. The animal fastened upon her with such ferocity, that it would not loosen its hold until some of its bones were broken--it was immediately killed.--The laceration was washed with brine, and dressed with some domestic remedy, such as the family had been in the habit of applying to wounds and sores--it continued open for several weeks, and healed at last with much difficulty. About the beginning of May, the scars became inflamed, and very itchy, attended with a sort of pinching pain, which extended in the direction of the lymphatics to the Axilla, and side of the neck. On the morning of the 12th, when attempting to take a little cordial for the relief of a pain in the stomach, she found herself seized with an indescribable feeling of horror, and constriction of the throat, as the liquid approached her mouth: attributing this to the smell of the cordial, she tried a little tea, and afterwards, some water; but the same feeling was excited, the instant she looked at either of these. Her husband being employed in the Ordnance, sent for a Medical Officer of that Department, who immediately attended, and after much enquiry obtained the history above related of the case.--Care was taken in putting the necessary questions to the husband, that the patient should not hear them, in order that she might have no suspicion of the real nature of the disease; she, however, overheard some observations that were made about the cat, and immediately exclaimed--Ce n'est pas cela car mon enfant a été mordu dans le même temps que moi. The case being considered an important one, was reported to the Inspector of Hospitals, and permission was obtained from the family to call in an eminent physician, who, upon seeing the case, did not hesitate to coincide in opinion with the Ordnance Medical Officer, that it was a distinct case of hydrophobia. This opinion was on the following morning further confirmed by that of the Inspector of Hospitals, and the surgeon to the Forces.--Notice was given of the case to all the medical gentlemen in town who could be found. The progress of the disease was so rapid, as to afford but little time for medical treatment. Copious bleeding having been latterly recommended from high authority, was put in practice, but with evident disadvantage--large doses of mercurial purgatives (indicated by the state of her bowels) were administered with some degree of temporary relief--antispasmodics were then attempted to be given, but the power of deglutition was so soon lost, that very little was taken--(about three grains of the extract of Hyocysamus.) The same sense of horror, and spasmodic constriction of the throat, &c. were excited by looking at a mirror, or any other substance having a polished reflecting surface. On the morning of the 13th, these sensations came on spontaneously, and very frequently followed by violent convulsions, the moment any liquid was brought in sight--the power of swallowing solids now began to diminish, and by ten o'clock not even the saliva could be got down, but issued abundantly out of the mouth, in a viscid and stringy state. From this moment, the convulsions continued incessantly, until two P. M. when she died. The body became perfectly putrid in a few hours after her decease.

NEW-JERSEY.

Morriston, May 12.

Last Monday two men were strangled to death at Hope in this County. The circumstances were as follow:--one of them named Jackson went into a large cistern, in order to clean it out, that had been filled with cider last fall, but which had, during the winter, been drawn out and distilled.--Jackson finding his strength failing, called for assistance. Mr. John Huling sprang into the cistern to help him, who soon feeling himself very unwell, endeavoured to get out, and walked up a ladder placed in the cistern for that purpose; but by the time he got his head above the cistern, his strength was exhausted, and he fell to the bottom with Mr. Jackson, both of whom were suffocated in a few minutes.--The cistern was empty, excepting the dregs of the cider.
