

"The opening of the Princess's body for embalming has just taken place by Sir Evered Home, Sir David Dundas, Surgeons to the King, and Mr. Neville, of Esher, Surgeon to the Princess Charlotte and Prince Leopold; Mr. Brandt of Arlington-street, the Apothecary to the King, was also present."

"Claremont, Saturday Morning, 9 o'clock. Mr. Marsh, of the Lord Chamberlain's office, has been here to make arrangements for the funeral. Messrs. France & Banting, of Pall-Mall, Lecon, the Cabinet Makers to the Queen, and also the Princess Charlotte and Prince Leopold, are appointed the undertakers, and to conduct the whole arrangements of the mournful occasion."

"The time of the funeral is not even mentioned."

The Queen was apprized of the melancholy catastrophe on Thursday; and the communication affected her Majesty so much, that we regret to hear, she has ever since remained confined to her room, seriously indisposed. The effect upon the Princess and the Duke of Clarence was also most distressing. The Royal Duke received the dreadful communication while partaking of the festivities in honour of Her Majesty in that city. He instantly in sorrowful silence rose and left the room; and the Marquis of Camden having, with feelings of anguish that almost deprived him of the power of utterance, made known the lamentable cause of the retirement of the Royal Duke, the company instantly dispersed, overwhelmed in grief.

GENERAL MOURNING.

The Deputy Earl Marshal's Order for a general mourning for her late Royal Highness the Princess Charlotte Augusta, daughter of His Royal Highness the Prince Regent, and consort of His Serene Highness the Prince Leopold of Saxe Coburg.

These are to give public notice--That it is expected, that upon the present most melancholy occasion of the death of Her Royal Highness the Princess Charlotte Augusta, daughter of His Royal Highness the Prince Regent, and Consort of His Serene Highness the Prince Leopold of Saxe Coburg, all persons do put themselves into decent mourning--the mourning to begin on Sunday next, the 9th inst.

(Signed)

H. H. Molyneux Howard, D. E. M. Nov. 7, 1817.

Orders for the Court going into mourning on Sunday next, the 9th inst. for Her late Royal Highness the Princess Charlotte Augusta, daughter of His Royal Highness the Prince Regent, and Consort of His Serene Highness the Prince Leopold of Saxe Coburg, viz:--

"Undress; dark Norwich Crape.

"The gentlemen to wear black cloth without buttons on the sleeves or pockets, plain muslin or long lawn cravats and weepers, shamoy shoes and gloves, crape hat-bands, and black swords and buckles.

"Undress; dark grey frocks."

From the London Courier of Nov. 7. Her Royal Highness, we repeat, remained sensible to the moment of her death. About five minutes before her death, she said to the Medical Attendants, "is there any danger?" They replied, that they requested Her Royal Highness to compose herself. She breathed a gentle sigh, and expired.

And thus in the enjoyment of health and beauty--at the early age of 22, was snatched away from this world this most accomplished Princess. Who that beholds Chalon's admirable full length likeness of her, in which she seems "so full of life and splendour and joy," can avoid feeling the acutest regret at the suddenness and manner of her death. She was neither too tall nor too short, about the middle size, inclining rather to the en bon point, but not so much as to impair the symmetry of her form. Her complexion was beautifully fair--her arms delicately rounded, and her head finely placed. There was a mingled sweetness and dignity in her look, a full intelligent eye; and when she was engaged in conversation, particularly in familiar conversation, much liveliness in the expression of her countenance.

The resemblance to Her Illustrious Father was striking. To these accomplishments of person Her Royal Highness added the most valuable qualities of the mind and heart. She had read much, and with discimination, particularly since her marriage. One of her most pleasing occupations was to accompany Her Illustrious Consort in his study of the English language, in which he was so diligent. He has been able to read our best writers upon history and jurisprudence. She was of religious habits, and a strict observer of the Sabbath, as well as her Husband, who regularly read to her, after the Church Service, one of our best English Sermons. She was a most affectionate child, and as a wife was a model for her sex. She looked up to her Husband with the most perfect affection and respect; and he deserved it all. His influence over Her was unbounded, though the exercise of it was of the gentlest kind--the lenis dominatio.

SECRETARY'S OFFICE, FREDERICTON, 26th January, 1818.

BY direction of His Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor, Public Notice is hereby given, that upon the present most melancholy occasion of the death of Her Royal Highness the Princess CHARLOTTE AUGUSTA, daughter of His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT, and Consort of His Serene Highness the PRINCE LEOPOLD of Saxe Cobourg, all His Majesty's Loyal Subjects in this Province are expected to put themselves into decent mourning--The mourning to commence on Sunday next.

WM. F. ODELL.

His Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor came, this day, to the Council Chamber, and opened the Session of the General Assembly by the following Speech to both Houses:--

Gentlemen of the Council and Gentlemen of the Assembly,

THE principal objects which, at present, I have to recommend to your deliberation (after the requisite provisions for the ordinary public services) are to secure the public credit, and give a due effect to all such grants and appropriations as have been or may be legally made and enacted; to revise our temporary Acts, with a view to any practicable amendments, and to make perpetual such of them as experience may have ascertained to be of useful operation.

Such other particulars of minor importance as may appear to require your attention, shall, in the course of the Session, be communicated by Message.

Gentlemen of the Assembly,

The Treasurer's Accounts, and such other documents as may be requisite for your information, shall, without loss of time, be laid before you. From these the necessity of your particular attention to the state of the Treasury will be apparent.

Gentlemen of the Council, and Gentlemen of the Assembly,

The glorious termination of the late eventful war, attended, in its course and in its result, with circumstances to which the annals of history afford no parallel, is now a subject of universal congratulation; but to every British subject, especially, it is a theme of high and laudable exultation. We cannot but feel our joy, on this great occasion, mingled with the deepest emotions of gratitude to that merciful Providence, by which His MAJESTY'S Arms, and the Counsels of his Government, have been crowned with such unexampled success; and by which Great-Britain has been placed at the head of Christian nations. Her invincible perseverance in opposing, by her single arm for a time, the torrent of desolation which had overwhelmed a great part of Europe, was, at length, seconded, with adequate energy, by those Allies who, by her glorious example, had been brought into a field, forever memorable, where tyranny and usurpation were finally laid prostrate, and Peace was restored to the world. Nor have the triumphs of Britain been less conspicuous in the display of her moral and religious character--she has led the Powers of Europe to decree the abolition of the Slave Trade, and she has given a salutary chastisement to one of those African states which had too long suffered to enslave every Captive that fell into their hands.

Britain has also led the way in an enterprise of incalculable importance, the diffusion of the Holy Scriptures, in their various languages, to the remotest nations.

Briefly to advert to this inexhaustible topic could not fail to be suggested, as fit and reasonable on the present occasion,--the reflections which it must excite in every loyal breast, will give fresh animation to the zeal and public spirit of the Legislature of New-Brunswick.

In our immediate local concerns, I have to congratulate with you on the final decision of the Commissioners respecting the Islands in our neighbourhood. Moose Island, with two other Islets, to us of no consideration, are ceded to the United States; and the very important Island of Grand-Manan is definitively secured to this Province. I look forward to consequences, of no small utility, which may be confidently expected from the new military settlement on the line of Communication with Canada, by the disbanded Soldiers of the Regiments raised in this Province--and I presume that you will also find reason to anticipate peculiar benefits resulting from the foundations which have here been laid for extending and improving the education of the rising generation.

On this occasion I should not speak of myself, did I not feel anxious to express to you how highly I appreciate the appointment it has pleased His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT, to confer on me in this Province, not only as implying a gracious approbation of my past conduct here, but also as affording me further opportunities of endeavouring to contribute to the prosperity of a Colony in which the measures heretofore suggested by me have uniformly met with the most flattering consideration and cordial support.

To His Excellency Major-General GEORGE STRACEY SYMTH, Lieut. Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Province of New-Brunswick, &c. &c. &c.

The Humble Address of the House of Assembly.

May it please your Excellency,

The House will immediately take into their most serious consideration the objects recommended by your Excellency, and trust they shall be able to adopt such measures as to secure the public credit, and give due effect to their appropriations. They will also pay strict attention to such subjects as may be communicated to them by Message, from your Excellency, during their present Session.

The House will without delay attend to the inspection of the Treasurer's Accounts, and such other Documents as may, by your Excellency's direction, be laid before them.

The House reciprocate with your Excellency in the happy termination of the late War, through the whole course of which, the British nation covered itself with glory, and at its close, in the memorable Field alluded to by your Excellency, aided by her brave Allies, gave a death-blow to tyranny and usurpation; and they behold Her, with equal pride and exultation in her present peaceful state, diffusing Gospel-Light and Liberty throughout the World.

The House thank your Excellency for the important communication relative to the Islands in this neighbourhood, and they trust that your Excellency's expectations will be realized in the advantages to be derived from the Military settlements on the line of communication with Canada.

The Education of the rising generation is, in the opinion of the House, of primary importance, and they anticipate, with peculiar satisfaction, the most beneficial results from the foundations laid for that purpose.

The unsettled state of the Administration of this Province has long been a subject of universal regret, and the House view the appointment of your Excellency, to your present exalted station, not only as a mark of the confidence reposed in your Excellency, by His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT, but as a certain pledge of the future prosperity of this important Colony.

To which His Excellency was pleased to make the following reply:--

Gentlemen of the Assembly,

I thank you for this Address, and feel fully confident of the most cordial support in the prosecution of all such measures as may promise prosperity to the Province."

FREDERICTON, JANUARY 24, 1818.

His Majesty's Council, this day, presented their Address in answer to His Excellency's Speech, as follows:--

To His Excellency Major-General GEORGE STRACEY SYMTH, Lieutenant-Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Province of New-Brunswick, &c. &c. &c.

The Humble Address of His Majesty's Council in General Assembly.

SIR, We beg leave to present to your Excellency our thanks for your Speech at the opening of the present Session. We shall with due zeal and diligence give our attention to the objects which your Excellency has recommended to our deliberation; and shall be happy to concur in all such measures as may be conducive to the public prosperity.

We deeply participate in the sentiments so justly and feelingly expressed by your Excellency on the glorious termination of the late war, and in warm emotions of gratitude to that merciful Providence, to which Great-Britain and the World are so highly indebted on this great and ever-memorable occasion. We also feel the justice and importance of your Excellency's observation respecting the moral and religious character of Great-Britain, now so conspicuously displayed in the highly interesting measures enumerated by your Excellency.

We receive with pleasure your Excellency's congratulation on the final decision of the question respecting the Islands in our neighbourhood.

We join in your Excellency's anticipation of beneficial consequences to result from the new Military settlement on the line of Communication with Canada; and from the foundations which have here been laid for extending and improving the education of the rising generation.

We are duly sensible of what we owe in return for the obliging terms in which you mention the appointment it has pleased His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT to confer on your Excellency in this Province; and we shall be ambitious, on all occasions, to contribute to the success of your endeavours to promote the prosperity of the Colony thus committed to your Excellency's administration.

To which His Excellency was pleased to return the following answer:--

Gentlemen,

I thank you for this Address, and have the fullest confidence in your cordial support to all such measures as may tend to the honor and prosperity of the Province.
