

offices improved by the British Consul; the Phoenix Insurance Company; the Aqueduct Corporation; Messrs. Handy and Gibbs, Insurance Brokers; Messrs. John Maxton, Stephen Brown, William Leverett, and Ralph Huntington, Exchange Brokers; Wm. P. Whiting, Esq. Attorney at Law; Messrs. Thomas B. Wales, and Joseph Lee, merchants. Other parts were occupied by Mr. Whitmarsh, woollen draper and tailor; Mr. Pritchard, grocer, and Mr. Sampson, hair dresser.

Our danger, and that of several in our neighbourhood, did not end with the extinguishment of the flames. The whole insulated from wall of the ruin, 90 feet high by 80 wide, with its marble columns, and chimneys, appeared to stand tottering over our heads, and threatening in its fall to overwhelm our building—it was impossible to induce the workmen to continue in them. But for this perilous situation, we should not have been under the necessity of omitting a publication until this day. As from the kind, efficient and collected aid of our fellow-citizens, associates and workmen, every article of our establishment and stock was removed and returned, without much damage. We have not words to express our gratitude for their kindness. On Wednesday, the Selectmen, with praise-worthy alacrity, employed Messrs. McClenning and Marsh, two ingenious and active mechanics, to level the walls of the ruin, and directed it to be surrounded by peace officers to prevent persons from running into danger. In the course of Wednesday and Thursday, the high and massive columns were levelled, with the greatest skill and adroitness, and without the least damage to the neighbourhood, or to the thousands of spectators, who were witnesses of this sublime "wreck of matter."

The severity of the loss has fallen on Mr. Barnum, whose misfortunes is commiserated by the whole community. It is said the furniture he had in the house cost 16,000 dollars, and his stores of liquors and provisions, but little short of 8,000. Much of furniture, and a small part of the liquors, were saved.

No lives were lost, though great hazards were run. On Wednesday, a promising lad, of about ten years old, fell into a keg of hot beer among the ruins, and was so scalded, that he died in the afternoon.

The citizens had not retired from the above scene, before a new alarm of fire was given, in Charlestown, where a rope-walk, situated near the Navy-Yard, was consumed. Vast numbers sat off, crying, "they have helped us, let us haste to help them." The alarms from other parts were unfounded.

It is fact, that the upper parts of the front wall of the Exchange, from the pressure of the heat in it, was projected a foot or more into Congress street, but when the pressure ceased, resumed its perpendicular direction.

The engines from all the neighbouring towns came to our assistance.

The Exchange Coffee-House, and additions, cost nearly 600,000 dollars.—Sent.

HALIFAX, NOVEMBER 16.

The Trade between the United States and this Port, goes on briskly, and is, we are gratified to learn, considered mutually advantageous. Certain it is, a very pleasing change appears to have taken place in this Town: there is more bustle and activity to be witnessed about our wharves now, than has been seen for several years. The rapid sale of Rum, Sugar, Molasses, &c. has given quite a spur to the West India Trade, and the prices of the principal articles of American Produce are such, as not only to admit, but to encourage the exportation of them to our Sister Colonies, and shipments of considerable magnitude have been made, and are making. Indeed, if the present system is continued, no want of Provisions will be experienced by our West India Islands—Halifax and St. John, N.B. will prove Store-Houses, in which all the most material products of the United States will be found, and from which Supplies, in any quantities, can be derived. Their vessels will, at all times, find a ready barter for their cargoes here, and effect sales and purchases upon as good, if not better terms, than they could in the United States.

Fears are entertained by some persons that, in the Commercial Treaty about to be entered into with the United States, England will abandon her Colonial Policy and permit American Vessels to enter her West-India Ports—those fears are surely without foundation—the adoption of such a measure would be as great an act of folly as Great-Britain could commit. Her Islands would then cease to be of benefit to her: Americans would supply them, and take their produce—and the Merchants in her North American Colonies would be obliged to abandon the only trade worth carrying on, and seek some other Country more propitious to their commercial views.—Journal.

CHILLICOTHE, OHIO. (410 miles from Washington.)

OCT. 8.

On Sunday the 20th ult. a battalion of the 11th regiment 300 strong, embarked at Belle Fontaine to ascend the Missouri river to the mouth of the Yellow Stone. The expedition is commanded by Lieutenant Col. Talbot Chambers. It is intended that the expedition shall encamp during the winter at the mouth of the Kansas, and continuing its voyage in the spring, shall reach its point of destination in the course of next summer.

The Yellow Stone enters the Missouri in lat. 42° degrees north; and in longitude 27° degrees west from Washington city. The intended post will be at its mouth. The United States will then have a military establishment one thousand eight hundred miles west of the Mississippi, and nearly one hundred miles further north than the city of Quebec.—The officers carry with them the seeds and grains which are expected to thrive in that climate. That the post may have within itself some resource against the failure of the contractors. Wheat, rye, barley and oats, are expected to do well there.—They attain perfection even at the earl of Selkirk's establishment on the Lake Assiniboia, three degrees further north. The Mandan corn will find itself in its own climate at the mouth of the Yellow Stone. In fact all the grains and vegetables which flourish at Quebec or Montreal may be expected to be raised there, as the climate in this interior region of the North American continent is known to be near TEN DEGREES MILDER than in the SAME PARALLEL on the ATLANTIC COAST.—Enquirer.

LONDON, SEPT. 19.

It is perfectly ludicrous in some of the Public Journals, Ministerial as well as others, to affect to know what are to be the subjects of deliberation in the ensuing Congress of the Sovereigns at Aix la-Chapelle. If the world were absurd enough to believe those Journals, it would have little reason to admire the wisdom and prudence of those Sovereigns, or rather of their Ministers, if they could suffer the topics to transpire which are to engage their discussion. But, indeed, the several editors express themselves with as much confidence, particularly on the disputes between Spain and her Colonies, as if they were desired and encouraged by the Sovereigns in general to so sound the opinions of mankind before the meeting takes place, in order that they might know how best to adapt their proceeding to the wishes and expectations of the world at large!!!

SEPT. 21.

There has been a rumour, which The Morning Chronicle styles "an absurd speculation," implying that "Lord Cochrane, in his steam vessel has it in view to hover off the Island of St. Helena, and send a boat ashore, to bring off and deliver Bonaparte." We considered this rumour as too ridiculous for notice, as we are persuaded that the Governor of the Island is too vigilant in discharging the important trust committed to him, for the possibility of such an escape to take place. But when we find that The Morning Chronicle discourages the notion, and endeavours to prove, that if Bonaparte were again let loose, his Faction is too insignificant to render him such support as would give him "the chance of becoming formidable," we confess that we think the rumour will at least justify suspicion. Such an enterprising attempt is not very inconsistent with the character of Lord Cochrane, who, if he could possibly succeed, would perhaps consider the action as one of the most glorious achievements that the world had ever witnessed. As to the insignificance of Bonaparte's admirers, we do not agree with The Morning Chronicle. The Jacobin principles have taken a deep root among vast numbers of the lower orders of people in every Country, and the hope of profiting by the disturbances of all might lead to new revolutions, and who likely to become formidable as "the Child and Champion of Jacobinism," if he were once more at liberty to gratify his revenge as well as ambition. However, as we have said, we rely too much on the vigilance of Sir Hudson Lowe, and the other Authorities at St. Helena, to entertain any apprehension that if Lord Cochrane were to attempt so desperate an enterprise, there would be any danger of its being attended with success.

SEPT. 22.

We have the pleasure of presenting to our readers the following authentic information respecting the Northern Expedition, in addition to the interesting intelligence which we before submitted to them exclusively.

The Bon Accord of Aberdeen has brought dispatches from the North-West Expedition—the last in all probability that will be received this year. In a private letter from Captain Ross dated 1st August in lat. 75° 48', long. 61° 30', W. he says, "I have but a few moments to tell you, that we have now every prospect of success—the ice is clearing away fast, and the wind is at N.E. Our variation observed on the ice, 88° 13'. We have killed a whale, and laid in a stock of blubber for our winter's fuel."

SEPT. 23.

STRASBURGH, SEPT. 14.

Although the Allied Troops have everywhere returned to their cantonments after the review of the left wing of the Army of Occupation, the Generals, Officers, and soldiers nevertheless, all of them expect to return to their respective countries before the commencement of the winter. It is said that preparations for their departure have already been made, though the exact period of it is not yet determined upon.

Respecting the future destination of the troops of the left wing, there are different opinions; some persons suppose that these troops will take positions on the right bank of the Rhine, whilst others assert that they will return home.
