THE HISTORY OF GYGES'S RING, BEING A PRALUDE TO THE SECRETS OF MASONRY.

Addressed to the Ladies.

LADIES, you may have heard of GYGES'S Ring,
Of which Historians write, and Poets sing; Form'd by a Lydian Sage, with potent spell:
This Ring, its wearer makes invisible.
After his death it often chang'd its master, At length fate destin'd it to Zoroaster:
By his successors carefully possess'd, Long did the Magi flourish in the East.
Till Ammon's son with Thais thither came,
And fired Persopolis to please the dame.
Beneath its ruins long the treasure lay, Till by an Arab robber brought to day: Unconscious of the prize, he trudg'd along,
And sold it to a Bramin—for a song Thence in Bengal, through various hands it pass'd, Next to a kinsman of my own at last.
He dying, gave it me, its virtues rare Unfolded, and soon felt a joyful heir.
To pass where'er I pleas'd, unseen and free, O! what a feast for CURIOSITY!
No more shall Masonry, I cry'd, conceal Its mysteries, all its secrets I'll reveal.
No more the fair shall languish, I'll explain, What they all wish to know, but wish in vain;
I said, and clasp'd the ring upon my finger, Away I went in haste, I did not linger.
At a fat brother's back, close as his shirt, I followed, and with him my entry made.
The brethren all were met, a social board, I saw, unterrified, the guardian sword.
I saw! I saw! and now your ears prepare, For what I saw, I'll publicly declare.
Clear'd was each mental eye, I saw each grace, And each protecting genius of the place.
FRIENDSHIP on wing ethereal flying round, Stretch'd out her arms and bless'd the hallow'd ground.
HUMANITY well pleas'd, there took her stand, Holding her daughter PITY in her hand;
And CHARITY, which soothes the widow's sigh, And wipes the dew-drop from the orphan's eye.
There stood BENEVOLENCE, whose large embrace, Uncircumscrib'd, takes in the human race.
She saw each narrow tie, each private end Indignant; Virtue's universal friend; Scorning each frantic zealot, bigot, tool, She stamp'd on every breast the golden rule.
And though the doors are barr'd gains't you, ye fair, Your darling representative was there.
Sweet MODESTY, amongst the moral lay,
To you her tribute did remembrance pay.
I saw each honest heart with transport flow:
I saw each honest cheek with rapture glow.
Struck with delight, at once reveal'd I stood,
And begg'd admission of the brotherhood.
They kindly heard, and pardon'd my offence, I bann'd Curiosity for Sense.
My magic ring destroy'd, reduced to dust, Thought what was good, and generous, and just.
For Masonry, though hid from prying eyes,
In the broad world admits of no disguise.

RESUSCITATION PREVENTED.

BOULOGNE, JULY 6.

About two o'clock I was informed that a young man and woman had drowned themselves in one of the fosses outside of the Tower walls. With many others I hastened to the spot, where the unhappy pair had been taken out of the water about a quarter of an hour. The young man was French; the young lady's father is an English gentleman, residing in Calais. I proposed that exertions should be made for their resuscitation, as they had been in the water but a quarter of an hour; but I was informed that the Commissary of Police would imprison any one that touched them before he arrived. Another quarter of an hour passed, and no Commissary arrived. Having communicated my ideas of the means generally resorted to in England, I, assisted by two English sailors and a French physician who was entirely ignorant as to the resuscitative powers, commenced the unpleasant ceremony by conveying the young man (who still vomited a little spittle) to a stable near at hand. There he was stripped.
I then ran to a cottage close by, and heating four bricks quite hot, put them to his feet and hands—having given directions in the mean time to rub the belly, and let the body be in such a position that the water could run out of the mouth. Procuring some brandy, his temples were constantly rubbed with it, and his belly with salt and the same liquor, breathing into his mouth, and injecting the body with air by means of a bellows.
After three hours excessive exertion, the nose began to bleed, and the hands became a little warm, the pallid hue had partially left his cheek, and I was in hopes of resuscitating a fellow creature from death. At this moment arrived the Commissary with a physician, who declared him dead. The Commissary ordered the gen'arms to remove him into the tower. I remonstrated, and instanced the numerous cases that have occurred in England, where resuscitation has been accomplished. The Commissary expressed his thanks in a very friendly manner, but whispered me, that as the physician had declared him dead, he dared not allow any thing further to be done. I then tried my powers of rhetoric: with the physician, but all in vain; and I had the mortification of seeing the young man carried away, when it was the opinion of all about that he would revive. The idea was horrifying. The Commissary asked me for my card, which I gave him, and he expressed a wish to see me, in a day or two. The Mayor and Assistant Mayor of St. Pierre have requested me to write to some friend who would have the goodness to ascertain the means adopted by the Humane Society of London for the resuscitation of suspended animation. The indecorous conduct of the physician has induced me to sign, jointly with my fellow laborers, a protestation against his conduct, in causing the body to be moved as dead when it was evident to many that signs of life still existed.

JULY 7.

I have just seen the poor young man interred; the last duties took place last night.
This morning, as soon as the Tower gates were opened, his faithful partner was laid in her last home. This could not be done last night, on account of an immense crowd surrounding the house of her father, whose refusal to allow them to bury was the cause of the rash act. When discovered, they were tied round the waist, vis a vis.—The young man was 19, the young woman 17 years of age.

THE WAY TO HEAVEN.

Sir Richard Steele (who greatly contributed, by his wit and humour, to enliven and diversify those inestimable productions, the Spectator, Tatler, and Guardian) about the year 1706, made a journey to Scotland, in company with several gentlemen of distinction. On their way, near Annan, they observed a flock of sheep, and at a little distance their keeper, stretched on the ground, with a book in his hand. Sir Richard having a little inclination for humour, proposed to his companions to have some sport with the shepherd; on which they all rode up to him, and the knight enquired the title of the book in his hand. The shepherd immediately started on his feet, and told him "And pray what do you learn from this book?" continued Sir Richard, "I learn from it the way to heaven," replied the other.
"Very well," added the knight, "we are all fellow travellers bound to the same place; and it will be very obliging, if you will show us the way thither." "With all my heart," rejoined the countryman, "if you will go with me to vnder-entance." To this proposal, Sir Richard and his company readily assented, and followed their guide to a rising ground from whence they had a view of an antique tower a few miles distant.
The Shepherd then turning to Sir Richard,
"You see Sir," said he, "your under tower; the way you ask for, lies close by it; and that is indeed the only safe and certain road to happiness." Surprised at this strange direction, Sir Richard enquired of him what the tower was called. To which the Shepherd replied "Ain't please your honour, the name of it is—The Tower of Repentance."
