(Last Gazette contains an order of the Prince Regent in Council, suspending the ballot and enrollment for the Local Militia for the space of one year from and after the 27th June current.)

JUNE 21.

THE QUEEN.—Sir Henry Halford came to town yesterday afternoon, from attending the King at Windsor, and in addition to the daily attendance of Sir T. Milman, Sir Henry Halford visited Her Majesty, and the report during yesterday was—"The Queen continues much better."

The Gazette of Wednesday contains a proclamation dissolving the Parliament, "begun and holden on the 24th day of Nov. in the 53d year of his Majesty's reign, and continued by several prorogations to the 27th day of Jan. 1818, and from thence until the 10th of June." The writs for the new Parliament are to be returned on the 1st of August.

Another Proclamation was also issued for the election of the Sixteen Peers of Scotland, to take place at Holyrood House, on Friday the 14th July.

After the meeting at the Crown and Anchor, on Thursday, had broke up, a number of electors retired, and after some consideration it was agreed that Sir Francis Burdett and the Hon. Douglas Kinnaird, the banker of Pall-Mall, were fit and proper persons to represent the city of Westminster.

Thursday, at two o'clock, the Sheriffs attended at Guildhall to read the writ and make proclamation for their election of four citizens to serve in Parliament for the city of London. The day for proceeding to the election is Tuesday next.—There are already seven candidates.

A Mr. Wilson, a respectable merchant, has added his name as candidate for the city of London.

Sir Samuel Romilly, at the request of a number of the electors, has consented to become candidate to represent the city of Westminster.

Captain Murray Maxwell, of the Royal Navy, has declared himself a candidate for Westminster.

Amongst the subscriptions now running for carrying on the contest for Cobbold, at the ensuing election for Coventry, a Mr. Bryant has subscribed one thousand pounds for defraying part of the expense.

Field Marshal Prince Baudouin de Tilly died on the 21st ult. about a league from Basterburg—his constitution was shattered by the fatigues of war, and the severe wounds he had received.

THE HARVEST.—So propitious has the weather been late that several hundred acres of hay have already been cut in the neighbourhood of Truro, and different parts of the county of Cornwall. In the Eastern counties great quantities have been stacked. The crops are very large and prime. It affords us the most infinite satisfaction in speaking of this leafy and delightful season, which has brought with it such a profusion of beauties. Every thing around us is most luxuriant, and the accounts from different parts of the kingdom are favourable and happy.

Some private accounts from Paris state, that the Ultra-Royalists in France, have appealed to the Allied Powers against the present Ministry, and the system pursued by them, representing the danger that must result to the existing settlement, should the Army of Occupation be withdrawn, while the King comes in their hands, and is directed by their council. This is indeed an extraordinary measure. It is an admission on the part of the Royalists themselves, that the Bourbon authority is not likely to outlive the withdrawing of its foreign supports. It is clear, however, that the King is of opinion that he cannot stay upon this Ultra-Royalism, however evident it may be in these particular individuals.

BORDEAUX, May 28.—Letters from Spain inform us that four large privateers have been sent from Cape St. Vincent, of which two were Corvettes of 36 guns, under the flag of Buenos Ayres.

Three vessels sailed from Leith for America last week, with 500 passengers each.

PORTSMOUTH, June 7.—At seven o'clock on Friday morning the signal was made for the squadron to move, from the Tonquin, 80, Rear-Admiral Sir Benjamin Hallowell, Captain Tailour, which was promptly obeyed by the Superb, 74, Captain Ekin; Vengeur, 74, Capt. Alexander Spencer, 74, Capt. Broughton; Northumberland, 74, Capt. Walker; Rambler, 74, Captain Boyce; and the Prometheus, Lee, Dwarz, and Grecian. The Bulwark, 74, and Liverpool frigate, have been prevented from joining the squadron by the want of men. The destined cruise is said to be for exercise in the bay of Biscay, and thence to Madeira; whence the squadron, which has only three months' provision on board, may be expected back in seven or eight weeks.

JUNE 16.

French Papers have been received since our last to the 22nd inst. They notice the celebration of the marriage of the Duke of Kent to the Princess of Leiningen on the equinox with which occurrence we have already been made acquainted.

Letters from Bucharest, in Wallachia, dated the 17th of May, state, that an earthquake has destroyed the great and flourishing city of Philippopolis, in Romania. The Population of that city amounted to 30,000 souls. It is stated to have been entirely swallowed up in the subterraneous abyss, and that a trace of it is sought in vain; but the exact date of this disastrous event, is not mentioned; and, therefore, we doubt the truth of it. A body of 6000 Prussians have passed through Frankfort, on their way to the left bank of the Rhine. A part of these troops, it is said, are to do duty at Aix-la-Chapelle, during the sitting of the ensuing Congress. Prior to the meeting of this Congress, conference, it is said, will take place at Carlsbad, in Bohemia, between several of the Ministers of the principal Powers. The Emperor of Russia was expected to reach Odessa on the 10th of last month.

THE QUEEN.—Yesterday, the report of Her Majesty was, the Queen had had a good night and continued better.

We are sorry to announce the death of the Right Hon. John Miles Addington, of a mortification in his stomach, on Thursday night. He had been indisposed for some time, but it was not apprehended till Wednesday last that his dissolution was so speedy. An express was then sent off to his brother, Lord Viscount Sidmouth, who set off immediately, but did not arrive before the fatal event had taken place.

PHILADELPHIA, JULY 14.

Operation of the American Navigation Act, opposed by the British Free Port Act.

By an Act of Parliament, or Order in Council, British vessels only are allowed to carry on the trade between the United States and the British West Indies, although that intercourse is essential to the existence of the latter, and not indispensable to this country. The American Navigation Act, passed the last Session of Congress, was intended to counteract the British monopolizing policy, by prohibiting all intercourse between their Islands and the United States, after the 20th of September next, unless American vessels were permitted to enjoy an equal share thereof. Great Britain, however, seems determined to persevere in excluding American vessels from her colonies, on any terms whatever, and with a view of countering and neutralizing the operation of our Navigation Law, has adopted the plan of establishing Free Ports in Nova-Scotia and Bermuda, where American and British vessels can carry on a free trade, and return with West India produce to Bermuda and Halifax, there to be reshipped to the United States in the vessels of our nation. By this scheme, she will retain the monopoly of the carrying trade between the British West Indies and the United States, and entirely defeat our late act of Congress. She will moreover enjoy an equal share of trade between our ports and Bermuda, which being free and of easy access, will become places of deposit for smuggling British goods into the United States, thereby corrupting our citizens, and injuring the revenue.

Notwithstanding the obvious tendency of this Free Port system to evade our Navigation Act, it is perceived with regret, that Mr. Anderson, Comptroller of the Treasury, in his recent answer to the enquiries of the British Consul General, upon this subject, sanctions and confirms the Free Port intercourse, which, if allowed by Congress to take root, will become in time more prejudicial to our interests than the evil which they have attempted to correct. For what were Helgoland, Gibraltar, Malta, the Republic of the Seven Isles, and even Sicily, (during the late European war,) but mere depots for carrying on a contraband trade with the neighbouring shores. This system so well understood, and so perseveringly pursued at all times by Great Britain, has been a fruitful source of corruption to those nations whose territories lay open to her Colonial Establishments, and of immense illicit gains to herself. Nothing short of a total prohibition of all intercourse with the British Free Ports, unless in articles of the growth and produce of the respective places between which British and American vessels communicate, or in other words, the rigid enforcement of the principles and spirit of the British Navigation Act, will secure us from the mischievous effects of a lame and imperfect measure, well intended, but easily evaded, and turned to our own prejudice.

Commerce of the United States with Great Britain. There have lately been published the Acts of the British Parliament, by which the Island of Bermuda and the town of Halifax in Nova-Scotia, are made Free Ports of trade. It appears to us that the British Government will secure the necessary supplies to their West India colonies, under the operation of those laws, notwithstanding the American navigation Act, as it is called, which goes into effect on the 1st of October next. According to the constitution, which the Congress of the United States has put upon the Act of Congress,—the ports of the Island of Bermuda, and so also the port of Halifax, are open to all our vessels, according to the laws of navigation and trade, a British vessel whose cargo was actually laden, or whose voyage first commenced at those ports, may enter and discharge her cargo in a port of the United States, provided that the same vessel had not transported the same cargo from one of the ports of the British Empire, closed to American vessels.

British vessels may carry on a traffic to Bermuda and Halifax, and their cargoes re-loaded in other vessels, and so to be admitted to an entry in our ports. The only inconvenience which the British merchant will sustain is the expence of unloading and re-shipping in another vessel. But the United States in their turn will be able to export the various productions of their soil to Halifax or Bermuda, and take from thence English Manufactures, or the produce of the English West India Islands, which may have been brought in English vessels to those ports. The vessels which can afford to sail at the lowest rate, will therefore succeed best. The commerce is so far placed upon a reciprocal footing. The expence of the goods in passage, will probably operate nearly equally on both nations—and build up the ports of Bermuda and Halifax at the charge of the United States, and of the other English colonies.
