

The town of Mundlah was taken by storm April 26, on which occasion 500 of the enemy were killed. On the 23d a thousand women and unarmed peasantry were permitted to leave the fort. No military occurrences of any consequence are related in these papers.

There are accounts from Ceylon to April 4. The disturbances in the interior of that Island continued, and there are some details of unimportant affairs between them and the British troops. The spirit of the Insurgents is said to be considerably damped. A regiment of troops had just arrived at Colombo from Madras. The following paragraphs are extracted from the Calcutta papers:—

Calcutta, May 3.—The American ship Palladium, lately arrived, was boarded off Newfoundland by an insurgent privateer, named the China, mounting 16 guns, and with a crew of 150 men. The privateer's men took charge of the vessel and plundered her of eight hundred dollars and all the watches, quadrants, &c. on board; broke into all the chests in the cabin, and took whatever they wanted. She was then released, and ordered to proceed. The privateer had been cruising two months, and her crew appeared a mixture of all nations.

Within the last fortnight upwards of 20 lacs of rupees have been imported into Calcutta. During the last week the specie brought by the American ships Oscar, Caledonia, Palladium and Orient, amounts to nearly 5 lacs of dollars, besides a sum little short of 1,80,000 more on the Hoogly, from Manilla.

DISCOVERY SHIPS.

Some doubts having been expressed as to the truth of the reports of the Discovery Ships not having found a passage to the northward practicable, we can now state, that this is placed beyond a doubt, by a letter from Capt. Nairn, of the whale fishing ship Princess of Wales. Capt. Nairn writes, of date the 7th ult. that on the 1st of June, in lat. 80, 2, he spoke the Discovery Ships, and was informed, that the highest latitude they had reached was 80, 22; that he then went on board with his log-book, and learned, that they could find no passage farther to the northward on the west side of Spitzbergen. He adds, that the officers gratefully acknowledged his attention, the Princess of Wales being the first ship they had seen, and offered, in the most handsome manner, to supply him with any thing he might want; and that, when last seen, the ships were steering to S. W.

BATTLE OF AGINCOURT.

It was sometime ago mentioned, that some of the Army of occupation had been employing themselves in searching for reliques on the field on which the famous battle of Agincourt was fought on the 25th of October, in the year 1415. We are very happy to learn that their labours have been crowned with success far beyond their expectation, and the number of gold pieces already found amounts to upwards of sixty. One of these which is in the possession of his Grace the Duke of Gordon, is in the highest state of preservation. On one side are the arms of France, with the following inscription:—Karolus Dei Gratia, Francorum rex; and on the reverse, P C vincit, P C regnat, P C Imperat, P C—meaning per Christum or Crucem. The gentlemen engaged in this research discovered the spot where the nobles who fell on that fatal day were buried; and besides the coin above mentioned, various other reliques have been got; many fragments of iron, and among them several arrow heads, one of them in the most perfect state of preservation, two lance-heads, one six, the other eight inches long, and a spur. Several rings have also been found, some of gold, and from their diminutive size are supposed to have been pledges given to the Knights by their fair dames, on departing to the wars. One ring is enamelled, and on the outside bears, in old characters, the words Pleine amitie and inside a flower like a rose, with bell after it, possibly intended as an enigma, for a lady's name, Rosalie. One brass ring was found filled with clay, and a finger bone sticking in it; the wearer did not expect it to remain there for upwards of 400 years. Buckles and other insignia of the fray have likewise been collected. The gentlemen, previous to beginning their researches, secured the right by purchase, else it is shrewdly suspected their operation would have been impeded long since by the French Government. London paper.

SURGERY.

PARIS, JUNE 1.

"Dear Sir—I now transmit to you several late journals and medical publications, in which much interesting matter is offered for philosophical inquiry. The sudden change of the colour of the skin from white to black, in the person of Mary Gaillard, is truly astonishing, and invites new conjectures and controversies. The reporter of the case to the faculty of medicine, has attempted to explain this phenomenon, from a disease of the liver, and from bile; but I think that neither have any thing to do with it. I have seen the woman before she died, and it is a fact that her change of colour took place in the night after she was informed of the tragical death of her children. It is also true that she continued eighteen months in the same colour, and until she died; but she was observed to grow paler half an hour only before her body was opened. I hope you will not leave the subject without further inquiry. Whoever could satisfactorily account for this strange metamorphosis would probably explain or disclose the true cause of the black colour of the African race.

You will not be less astonished by the operation for cancer, as performed by Richerand. The sufferer, who was a surgeon himself, had several times submitted to the entire extirpation of a cancer in the left breast, also to several applications of fire and caustic; but it always shot out anew, and put forth more horrid excrescences and offensive discharges. No chance could be left against an impending and cruel death, but from the excision of two ribs, and the pleura underneath being found much diseased, it was also cut off on a quadrilateral space of eight inches square. What terrible consequences were now to be remedied, of hæmorrhage from the intercostal arteries, and of suffocation by the air rushing into the lungs, any man almost can be aware of; but they were all admirably and successfully provided for. On the twenty-seventh day after the operation, the patient was perfectly cured, retaining a leathery plate on the scar, being yet tender.

Richerand exults now for having proved to the world, that, for very important purposes, the cavity of the thorax may be opened by excision of the ribs and of the pleura; in case of a great lesion of a lobe of the lungs, a part might be cut off; an hydropericardium might be operated upon as an hydrocele.

It was discovered by this operation, that the heart and pericardium are absolutely insensible, the last being so transparent as to shew all the motions of the former; that, like the mirror of the eye, it becomes opaque only by death.

Remaining, dear Sir, yours truly, &c.

To Felix Pascallis, M. D. Corresponding Member of the Society and Faculty of Medicine in Paris, &c."

CAUTION.

WHEREAS J. LEDBETTER is in possession of two Notes of Hand, amounting to about Ninety-seven Pounds, granted to him by me, in the year one thousand eight hundred and fifteen, the amount of which, I have since paid him, on his promising to send the Notes to me, which was at that time at some miles distance from the place where the money was demanded and paid—which promise he never performed. I am now informed that he has absconded from the Country; and for fear he may attempt to defraud, by selling the Notes, I take this public method of forbidding any person from purchasing the said Notes of Hand, as I will not pay them a second time.
