

SELECTED POETRY.

A THOUGHT.

WHY swells with pride the heaving breast Or throbs with dreams of glory high, When low in earth it soon must rest,
And still in deep oblivion lie!

And the gay eye which dances now In easy though lessness around, Must soon be still—and cold—and low;
And the dull tomb its light must bound.

Yes—the dark grave must tell the world Where heav'nly genius sought repose; Where Fate its keenest shaft hath hurld, Whose secret course no mortal knows.

We seek the spot where cypress weeps O'er one whose gen'rous soul we lov'd; Affection o'er our mem'ry keeps Her sway, although that soul's remov'd.

And we will weep at virtue's shrine,
Will dew the grave of worth with tears:
Yet thro' death's gloom some star shall shine To soothe the soul, and calm our fears.

Capt. Ashmole's Epitaph, written by himself.

In life's hard bustle o'er the troubled seas, Through many a storm and many a prosperous breeze,

Thro' summer's heat and winter's chilling blast,
From torrid to the frigid zone I've past, Through sickly climes where each contagious breath,

Spread's desolation by untimely death.
One hundred voyages, through unnumbered toils,

I've sailed at least five hundred thousand miles;

Been taken, sunk, and oft times cast away, Yet weathered all in this close port to lay, Where a dead calm my wearied bark doth find,

Oblig'd to anchor for the want of wind, Here undisturbed at rest I shall remain; Till the last trump calls up all hands again;
And what new perils I shall then go through,
No human reason ever yet could shew;
But the same Power that leads through earth and sea,

Will doubtless led me through eternity.

An Original Anecdote.—Two gentlemen, members of Congress, one from Connecticut the other from Kentucky, were travelling in company when they chanced to espy a drove of mules, going to market—says the Yankee to the Kentuckian—"do you know what animals those are?"—"Indeed I do," replied the latter—"they surely must be some of your constituents." "No doubt" rejoined the Yankee, "and I suppose they are travelling to Kentucky, to be employed as schoolmasters."

Winyaw Intelligence.

Two Quakers in Vermont had a dispute; they wished to fight but it was against their principles—they grasped one another; one threw, and set on the back of the other, and squeezing his head in the sand, said "on thy belly shalt thou crawl, and dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life." The other soon gained the victory, and when he had attained the same position, said, it is written, "The seed of the woman shall bruise the serpent's head."

A Clergyman, some time since, rather hurried while reading the funeral service over a corpse, when he came to the words "this our brother," &c. forgot whether the deceased had been man or woman. Turning, therefore, to one of the mourners, who happened to be an Hibernian, he asked him, "Is this a brother or a sister?" "By St.
Patrick, neither one or the other," replied Pat, "it was only an acquaintance."

A SELECTION.

O my soul! how hast thou danced along the beaten road of thoughtless and sinful custom, and instead of nobly daring to incur the charge of singularity, by resisting the torrent of licentiousness and "abominable deeds," which are continually bearing away to destruction their thousands & tens of thousands, hast thou not been instrumental to the increase of that destructive torrent! ponder these things—with grief and godly sorrow ponder on them, till thy heart shall melt with the glow of contrition; and tears of genuine repentance shall flow from thy weeping eyes. Let the time past, in which thou "hast served divers lusts and vanities," more than suffice thee; and now resolve that by the help of God, thou wilt deny ungodliness and every worldly lust, and live in future as becomes a pilgrim and a stranger on earth.

Be sober; be vigilant; arrest the fleeting moments of present and future time; start up alarmed at the host of enemies which encamp about thee and within thee, and be upon thy guard at every point. Wage irreconcilable war with all thy spiritual foes; give them no quarter; fight the good fight, & resolute play the man. Whatever thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might.
Redeem or buy back thy mis-spent time, by redoubling thy diligence in the improvement of the present, and every future moment.
Concentre all thy powers, and improve all thy opportunities to the glory of God and the best interests of man.—Thus, as moments, days, and months revolve, mark and improve their rapid flight; then wilt thou, hereafter, be enabled to call them to remembrance, and to look forward with the reviving and joyous hope, through divine mercy, of a glorious immortality. And when summoned to depart hence to be here no more, thou mayest without a sigh, bid farewell to this ever varying and deceptive scene of things! rise on the wings of faith and love to the Fountain of all light, and joy and bliss! forever to inherit that kingdom, where seasons shall revolve no more; but days and months, and years, be lost in the boundless extent of ETERNITY'S duration.
