NEWSPAPERS.

The charms of newspaper reading to the intelligent farmer, who values the instruction of himself and his family, constitute the relish of the week, and furnish abundance for profitable reflection and conversation. If he is a patriot he cannot be insensible to the welfare of his country. If he is a philanthropist, he feels a concern for his fellow men, however distant. If he is a father, he loses no opportunity to instruct his children; and cannot but view "the passing tidings of the times" as a most essential part of their education. Though distant from the metropolis—though secluded from society, he can know all that is necessary to be known of the pomp and bustle of city life.

By a close attention to the diversified columns of newspapers, we are enabled to "catch the manners living as they rise." In one column may be seen the march of armies, and fate of nations; and in another the humble advertisement of the humblest dealer. All may find instruction, amusement, or interest, from the hoary sage to the lisping school boy.

Every subscriber to a newspaper should carefully preserve them in regular files, for the benefit of his posterity. After the lapse of forty or fifty years, to look over these, and examine the important occurrences of former days, will give a clearer view than can be found in any history. The best account of our revolutionary war can be obtained in this way; and no doubt the rising generation will in future times anxiously look to newspapers for all the particulars of the recent war which has conferred such high honours on our countrymen.

It is erroneous to suppose that newspapers are less valuable during peace than in times of war. It is true that those who delight in recitals of bloody scenes and ruined towns, will find less to gratify that barbarous appetite; but all who wish for improvement, or delight in sentiment, will find an increased value from the attention paid to science, arts, agriculture, history, biography, morality, religion, humour, poetry, &c.

The man who can't find time to read one newspaper during the week, must be truly a slave to ignorance or poverty. The truth is, however, that it is an excuse for indolence and parsimony; and thus whole families are deprived of information on those points which afford one half the conversation of society. They are content to borrow ideas from their more intelligent or more cunning neighbour; thus in the language of the poet, "to vegetate and die."

It is hoped, however, that such are few. Our political welfare so essentially depends on a general diffusion of intelligence, and we have so many examples in the old world of an ignorant people being the slaves of superstition and tyranny, that our young republic should lose no opportunity to establish itself on the only permanent foundation.—[Ed. Col.]
