

Corfu. The Turks, on their entrance, found Parga a desert; and the only signal that marked their reception, was the smoke of the funeral pyre, in which its late inhabitants had consumed the bones of their forefathers.—The unfortunate Emigrants are now principally at Corfu, waiting, as houseless wanderers, the distribution of the miserable pittance of £48 per head, obtained for them by their protectors which is to be called a compensation for the loss of their property, their native soil, and social existence. Thus has closed this memorable negotiation in a scene of calamity which the most lively imagination could not have anticipated; but which, until some new enormities shall have effaced the recollection of it, will rouse against the Councils and Counsellors of this empire the antipathy and indignation of mankind."

A Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery was held at the City Hall, for this City and County, during the past week, at which His Honor Judge CHAPMAN presided.—When Joseph Barrett was convicted of Grand Larceny, and sentenced to be whipped.—At the same Court, John Corry was convicted of an attempt to commit a crime against nature, and was this day sentenced to Six Months imprisonment, to pay a fine of £10, and to stand in the Pillory one hour To-Morrow, the 23d instant, between the hours of 11 and 3 o'clock.—City Gazette, Sept. 22.

EMIGRANTS.

AT a MEETING, holden at the Jerusalem Coffee-House on Saturday evening last, in behalf of Emigrants, after examining the destitute state of the Welch families and the amount already obtained for their relief, it was resolved, that those persons who have not yet contributed to assist them, should be waited on with the subscription list and solicited to contribute, for that purpose.

28th September, 1819.

It must be evident to every reflecting person, that it is of the utmost consequence to get as many of the destitute families, at present among us, as possible on their land before winter, for if they remain in town there will not be employment for them; and as they would not be left to perish outright, a subsistence, however miserable, must be afforded them, either by individual charity or at the expence of the parish. The Overseers of the Poor have their hands full already, the present rates are paid with extreme reluctance, and no friend to the country can wish to have the number of unproductive persons augmented. House room, too, would be difficult to procure—few persons, however willing to assist the distressed, would like to admit families whose habits are so different from their own, into their houses. It is evident, then, that it would cost more to furnish the poorest shelter and fuel (to say nothing about food, for less of which will serve when children are kept warm) for a family in town, than it would to feed them in the woods, where they would have plenty of fuel and be kept warm. The consumption of wood also would there be a great advantage, as it would clear sufficient ground to raise potatoes for the next year; it would not only be keeping their families comfortable through the winter, but promote the means of future subsistence.—This is not all, but by remaining in town their habits and morals may be affected; the want of a steady occupation and encouragement, might destroy industry, give them a distaste to the steady life of a husbandman, and lead them into idleness and knavery, or what is worse, drunkenness.

To prevent those evils—to assist and stimulate industry—to procure shelter and food for the destitute—to strengthen the arm of government—and to add to the real strength and prosperity of the Province, by assisting and settling a number of families of good morals, of sober and industrious habits, and whose sole occupation must be husbandry:—these are the motives which the friends of the emigrants have in view, which they are endeavouring (though under many discouragements) to accomplish, and in which they hope to succeed; and they feel confident that those motives require but to be known to ensure them the support of a large portion of the community.

To the Free and Independent Electors of York County.

GENTLEMEN,

The period is near at hand when you are to shew your prudent discrimination in the choice of persons to represent your County in the Legislative Assembly of the Province. You are called upon by His Majesty's Writ to elect four of the most able and discreet persons of your community duly qualified for that purpose. In the discharge of so important a duty, and to accomplish so desirable an end, let every Elector weigh the merits and characters of the several persons offering themselves as Candidates on the occasion; examine minutely their individual qualifications, not in point of property, but of talent and unshaken integrity. It is a common cause in which we are all interested, and should engage with energy to preserve our best and most important right—that of the Elective Franchise. No Freeman, having the interest of the Country at heart, ought to remain silent or inactive: he who withholds his vote on such an awful occasion, is as great an enemy to the cause of Freedom as he who, through interested motives, basely bestows it upon an insignificant or insufficient Member.

The People of this County have a blessed prospect before them in the event of some of the present Candidates succeeding to their Representation; but "it is a consummation devoutly to be wished," that their ambitious views may be frustrated by the Electors of York who would still preserve the character of free and independent. Riches and Commerce are not to be found but in the regions of Freedom, where the properties of the People are preserved to them by wise and wholesome Laws; and if ignorant illiterate men are to form the assembly which gives birth to these Laws, the consequence may be easily anticipated—if the foundation be rotten, what can be expected of the superstructure. The putting forward such men to represent your County whose insufficiency to maintain argument will preclude the possibility of debate, whereby all fair discussion will be suppressed, and the deliberations of the House dwindle into silent votes, would redound to your eternal disgrace, when the present occasion affords you an opportunity boldly to assert your rights as Freeman, in the selection of the Persons who shall dictate the Laws by which your Liberties and Properties are to be preserved to you.

I am, Gentlemen, Your obedient Servant, AN ELECTOR.
