

SUMMER

Has inexpressible charms, and gives us daily proofs of the infinite beneficence of our Creator. It is the happy season in which God pours out the treasures of his blessings in the greatest abundance on every living creature. Nature, after having revived us with the pleasures of spring, is continually employed, all the summer, in providing for us every thing to please our senses, to make our subsistence easy, to satisfy our wants and awaken in our hearts just sentiments of gratitude. Before our eyes there grows, by virtue of the secret laws of nature, an innumerable quantity of fruit in the fields and gardens; fruits which after having pleased the sight, may be gathered and preserved for our food. The flowers afford the most agreeable variety, to our senses; we admire their rich dress, and the inexhaustible fertility of nature in the multiplicity of their species. What variety and beauty also in the plants, from the humble moss to the stately oak! Let us climb the highest mountain, seek the cool shade of the woods or descend into the valley, we shall every where find new beauties; a multitude of objects strike our eyes at once, all different from each other; but each in itself has charms enough to fix our attention. There we see innumerable flowers, here living creatures of different kinds.

If we lift up our eyes, they are delighted with the blue sky; if we cast them on the ground, they are refreshed by the beautiful verdure with which it is clothed. Our ear is charmed with the cheerful notes of the winged songster; the variety and simplicity of their melody fills the soul with the sweetest sensations. The murmuring of the brooks, and the silver waves of a fine flowing river, also please the ear and the eye. It is to indulge our taste that the strawberries and other pleasant fruit ripen; while at the same time they cool the blood. Our barns and granaries are filled with the new productions of the fields and gardens, which afford us the most wholesome, agreeable food. The smell is struck with the sweet perfume that exhales on every side. In a word a thousand pleasing objects affect the sense, and raise our sensibility. Numerous flocks feed on the profusion of bountiful nature, to procure us pleasant and wholesome milk and nourishing meat. Abundant rains moisten the ground, and open to us new sources of blessings. Tufted trees and groves afford us a delightful shade. All that we see and hear, all that taste and smell can convey, increases our pleasures, and contributes to our happiness. But the creation is a still greater and more enchanting object for the mind than for the senses. In points, which the latter cannot reach, the mind discovers beauty, harmony, variety and new pleasures. — Sturm.
