

THE CAPE COD BARD'S ADDRESS TO A DANDY.

ARGUMENT. The Bard beginneth with a pious ejaculation, and expresseth his surprise at a pair of trowsers—talketh extravagantly of a coat and a ruffle—falleth to guessing—maketh apt comparisons—praiseth the voice of the dandy, and encourageth him by assurances that he is not like any of the works of creation, and argueth, that he may thence reasonably expect an apotheosis.

Lord bless, us what trowsers! six stripes at the side
Of each leg—and the bottoms so prettily wide!
How convenient the straps that so draw in the belly;
Till back bone and ribs are near squeez'd to a jelly.

What a sweet little coat—though so low in the neck,
And so lengthy the tails—they would each hold a peck;
What a shirt—in good faith, were you hook'd in a scuffle,
Your limbs you might save by your rampart or ruffle.

And then your cravat, round the gullet so tight,
I should guess—or should hope—it might strangle you quite;
Though 'tis said, while no dandy was ever a wizard,
Yet if wanting in pluck—he has plenty of gizzard!

Like a crow on a pole sets your sweet little hat
On your body so laced, and so slim and so flat;
Indeed it's so prim—and so nicely you fix it,
If looks like the barber's pan, won by Don Quixote.

But, lastly your voice—O how melting its sound,
By its melody charming all hearers around,
So affectedly soft, and so tenderly witty,
He must be a blockhead—who dont think you pretty.

Go on, my dear nondescript—mind not the boys,
Whose exclaim of "See Dandy!"—your feeling annoys;
Indeed were you worshipp'd—sure pardon were given,
For nothing you look like—in sea, earth, or heaven!

CAPE COD BARD.

Gluttony.—On Friday last, a fellow named Tabbs, well known in Whitechapel, undertook for a wager, to devour 4 lbs. of rump steaks, two three-penny loaves, and a pot of beer, in the space of twenty minutes. The scene took place at the three Goats Heads public house, in Whitechapel. He did it two minutes within the given time.

Sale of a Wife. The Doncaster paper says, on the last market day at Retford, a considerable degree of curiosity was excited by a rumour that a female was to be sold by auction!—About 11 o'clock the dealer in human flesh, made his appearance at the market-stone, attended by his wife, a good looking young woman of 20, where the captive fair one was offered for sale, with all the et ceteras of dress then decorating her person, when she was purchased for 2s. 6d. with an umbrella, value 7s. The name of the husband is William Jackson, of Work-sop, that of the buyer James Drake, of Sutton-cum-lound, and the maiden-name of the wife, Charlotte Watkinson, of "Tickhill God bless her."

Perpetual Motion.—Mr. Spencer, the inventor of the constant motion by means of magnetism, has placed one of his clocks, which was driven by the unceasing action of magnets, in one of the apartments of the Observatory on the Carlton Hill. It was deposited on the morning of Monday the 14th December and the key placed in the hands of Sir George Mackenzie, Bart. vice president of the Astronomical Institution. Mr. Spencer was induced to take this step, in consequence of the assertions of several individuals, that the motion was kept up by some cause different from magnetism.

SPANISH OATH.

The following is a curious specimen of the laconic manner in which state business was despatched among the Spartans (translated from the Latin):—"We that are as good as you do constitute you our king, and if you defend our liberties we will defend you; if not, not."

A Jolly Radical reeling through Leeds in a state of intoxication, attracted particular notice from the appropriate inscription in the front of his hat:—"Reformation or Ruination."
