THE FAITHFUL FRIEND.

My father left ten thousand pounds,
And will'd it all to me;
My friends, like sun-flies flock'd around,
As kind as kind could be.

This sent a buck, and that a hare,
And some the Lord knows what;
In short, I thought I could declare
No man such friends had got.

They ate my meat, they drank my wine,
In truth, so kind were they,
That be the weather wet or fine,
They'd dine with me next day.

They came—and like the circling year,
The circling glass went round;
Till something whisper'd in my ear,
"Ah, poor ten thousand pound!"

"Pshaw! stuff!" cried I "I'll hear it not;
"Besides, such friends are mine,
"That what they have will be my lot,
"So push about the wine!"

The glasses rung, the jest prevail'd,
'Twas summer every day!
'Till like a flower by blight assail'd,
My thousands dropt away.

Alas! and so my friends dropt off,
Like rose-leaves from the stem;
My fallen state but met their scoff,
And I no more saw them!"

One friend, one honest friend remain'd,
When all the locusts flew,
One that ne'er shrunk, nor friendship feign'd,
My faithful DOG! 'twas you!

Remedy for curing Consumption, or Cough, (translated from a foreign paper)—
Mix together in an earthen pot two quarts of strong ale, one quart of white honey, two ounces of the leaves of pulmonaria officinales, or lungwort, cut small, and two handfuls of wheat bran; cover the pot, and boil this composition till reduced to one half; while boiling it may be stirred a few times, observing, however, not to let it remain too long uncovered. After being well strained through some fine linen, pour the liquid part into a bottle, and put it in a cellar or any other place where it can be kept cool. The patient may drink of it as often as his strength will permit, without bringing on giddiness, say about a wine glass every hour through the day. It is recommended as mild, cheap, and curing to a certainty.

An Infallible Cure for Corns on the Toes or Feet.

Take a piece of dressed buckskin; shape it to the part afflicted, shave it thin on the edges; in the centre, cut a hole, as near as possible to the shape and size of the corn; should one thickness not be sufficient, stitch several together, so as to prevent the corn from being touched by the shoe or boot. Fortified in this way, the tighter the shoes are, the better, as the leather at every step compresses the corn all round, and causes it to start upwards, and in a short time, it will drop out.—Whilst under the operation, wash the part occasionally, and when dry, drop a little sweet oil on the corn. If the corn is on the foot, make the leather broad, slip the stocking over it, and you need no bandage: but if on a toe, it must be tied with a woollen or cotton thread, so as to keep it steady.

An unheard of Atrocity.—Letters from Angouleme contain the following account of an horrible outrage committed near Confolers:—A young couple, who were on the point of being married, went together to invite their relations to the nuptials. The girl was mounted on her lover's horse, followed by him on foot. On their arrival at a village where the young man wanted to see some persons, he left his destined bride to wait his return in the road. Immediately afterwards three ruffians arrived, who after grossly insulting the young girl, obliged her to alight from the horse, stripped her naked, committed outrages on her person, which decency will not permit us to relate, and threatened to murder her; they then killed the horse, cut open his belly, took out the entrails, and in their place put the unfortunate young woman, sewed up the animal's skin, and made off. Some children who were passing by afterwards heard cries issuing from the bowels of the horse, and immediately ran in great fright to tell their parents that the devil was in a dead horse lying on the road. In the mean time the young man arrived and heard the groans of his expiring mistress. She was dragged thus of the horrid situation where the villains had placed her, transported to the nearest barn, where every attention was paid to her. The police set directly about pursuing the horrid monsters who had committed an offence new in the annals of crime, and were fortunate enough to arrest them. They were recognized by the young woman upon confrontation. The unfortunate victim could not survive the outrages which had been perpetrated upon her, and expired five days afterwards.

NEW-BRUNSWICK AUXILIARY BIBLE SOCIETY.

On Monday evening the Committee of the New-Brunswick Auxiliary Bible Society met at Mr. CODY'S.—It having been stated, that Bibles and Testaments to the amount of one half of the Remittance made to the Parent Institution had been received, the Committee resolved,
1st. That any Subscriber in want of Bibles and Testaments, shall receive them from the Society at two thirds Currency of the Sterling cost, to the amount of one half of his subscription.
2d. That if the value of what he wants exceed the half of his subscription at the rate above stated, he must pay the excess at the rate of full Sterling cost.
3d. That Non-Subscribers pay the full Sterling cost.
4th. That Strangers who may apply for Bibles or Testaments gratis, or at reduced prices, must be well recommended to the President by one of the Committee.
Though it is now a year since the Society was established, the Committee have thought proper to defer the Annual Meeting till they receive the current year's Report of the Parent Institution.
