SECRETARY.

NOTICE.

A MEETING is requested at the Provincial Hall, on Saturday next, at noon, to consider the state of the Agriculture of the Province—in the hope that suggestions will be advanced, favorable to the adoption of some scheme for its improvement.

Fredericton, 3d February, 1820.

The General Assembly having been prorogued to this day, His Excellency the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR came to the Council Chamber, and, by Message, commanded the attendance of the House of Assembly—who having attended accordingly, His Excellency directed them to return to the usual place of sitting, and choose a Speaker, and present the Speaker so chosen immediately.

The House attended, and presented WILLIAM BOYFORD, Esquire, as their Speaker—when His Excellency opened the Session with the following SPEECH:—

"Gentlemen of the Council, and Gentlemen of the Assembly,

"It is with the deepest concern I announce that the lamented indisposition of HIS MAJESTY still continues.

"It cannot but be a subject of anxiety and regret, that a spirit utterly hostile to our excellent Constitution, and subversive of all order in society, has so fully manifested itself in various parts of Great Britain; but I trust that the sentiments of veneration for HIS MAJESTY, and decided determination to resist all innovation, expressed in the Addresses of the industrious and more respectable classes of society, to His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT, will dissipate this, I hope, temporary gloom—an event which would afford to none a more lively satisfaction than to the loyal Inhabitants of this Province; and it would give me, Gentlemen, much pleasure to have the honour of conveying to the Throne, from you, their sentiments upon those proceedings, so highly interesting both to HIS MAJESTY and His People.

"As no Country can be independent which is obliged to draw its subsistence from another, it becomes imperative upon Governments to encourage, by all the means in their power, its production within their own territory. I, therefore, recommend the Agriculture of the Province to you, as a primary object of your most serious deliberation.

"I have also to recommend to your attention, the further improvement of the Great Roads of communication, and the propriety of giving aid to the Inhabitants upon the other Public Roads, to improve those parts of them where the Statute labour alone may be found to be inadequate. I cannot quit this subject without observing, that an easy communication from this Province to Canada, is obviously an object of the greatest importance to these Colonies, and also to HIS MAJESTY'S service; and I have no doubt but that you will pay it that attention which its importance so highly merits.

"As the trade carried on upon the great Rivers in this Province has been progressively increasing for some years past, and is now become of great moment, I submit to your consideration the necessity of adopting such measures as may tend to encourage and facilitate it, by the removal of obstructions, the forming of towing paths, and the deepening of the Rivers where it may be necessary.

"The destitute and distressed situation of the Emigrants, on their first arrival, has been such, as to render the benevolence of the Emigrant Societies and that of Individuals, altogether insufficient for their relief; and their poverty and ignorance of the labour of the Country, preventing them from making immediate settlements upon land. I feel it to be my indispensable duty to submit the subject to your humane and considerate interference; confiding in your wisdom to make such provision, and to devise such measures, as may alleviate their present distress, and render them useful members of the community.

"The great increase of trade, navigation, and population, in the Province, within the last few years, having rendered it necessary that the Circuit Courts should be held in the several Counties much more frequently than heretofore, I feel myself imperiously called upon to request your particular attention to the making some permanent provision for the Judges, who may have to discharge those extraordinary and indispensable, but expensive and laborious services.

"Gentlemen of the Assembly,
"The Treasurer's account, with the documents and vouchers which may be necessary for its explanation, and all other papers which may be requisite for your information, shall be laid before you. I have much satisfaction in observing that the Duties were so productive the last year, that the Revenue will be fully sufficient to discharge all demands upon the Treasury.

"Gentlemen of the Council, and Gentlemen of the Assembly,

"I congratulate you upon the flourishing state of the Revenue, which cannot but be highly gratifying, as it will enable the Government in future to make prompt payment to the public creditors; thereby relieving them from the payment of those heavy discounts that for some time past have been exacted; and will also operate beneficially upon all the public services, particularly those which are to be performed upon the Roads.

"The abundant harvests, with which it has pleased Divine Providence to reward the labour of the Husbandman for the last two years, and which have diffused the blessings of plenty throughout the Country, ought to impress us with sentiments of the most unfeigned gratitude and thankfulness.

"Undisturbed by the suggestions of seditious Demagogues, and fully sensible that neither private nor social happiness can be obtained but by the cultivation of the principles of Religion, and a just subordination to lawful authority, I am confident that HIS MAJESTY'S dutiful subjects in this Province, will avail themselves of this season of Peace, to promote its prosperity, by directing their attention and industry to such pursuits as promise to be permanently beneficial."

ADDRESS

In answer to His Excellency the LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR'S SPEECH.
[From the Journal of the 6th inst.]

"To His Excellency Major-General GEORGE STRACEY SMYTH, Lieutenant-Governor and Commander in Chief of the Province of New-Brunswick, &c. &c. &c.

"The Humble Address of the House of Assembly.

"May it please your Excellency,
"The House condole with your Excellency on the continuation of HIS MAJESTY'S lamented indisposition.

"It is with unfeigned sorrow the House are informed that a spirit of disaffection prevails in many parts of Great Britain, and are astonished that men can be so blind to the blessings of our glorious Constitution as to attempt the subversion of it. They trust, however, that the loyalty of the better informed part of the Nation, will speedily check this evil, and avert from the Country the destructive consequences, which at one time were but too much to be apprehended. The House thank your Excellency for the high opinion you express of the loyalty of the Inhabitants of this Province, and for your offer to convey their sentiments to the Throne.

"Fully aware that the encouragement of Agriculture will be attended with the most beneficial effects, by promoting the independence and prosperity of the Province, the House will make suitable provision for that important object.

"The House are sensible that the improvement of the Roads throughout the Province, is of the utmost consequence, and will give the subject their most serious consideration. They will also pay due attention to your Excellency's suggestion relative to the navigation of the great rivers.

"The House concur in opinion with your Excellency, that the Emigrant Societies and the benevolence of Individuals, are inadequate to the relief of the many indigent and uninformed who annually arrive in the Province, and will use their best endeavors to render them permanent and useful members of the community.

"The House are aware that much inconvenience arises from the want of Circuit Courts more frequently in the remote Counties, and will make such provision to remedy the evil as they conceive the nature of the case requires.

"The House thank your Excellency for the communication, that the Treasurer's accounts and all other papers necessary for their information, will be laid before them.

"The flourishing state of the Revenue, is a source of sincere gratification to the House.

"The House feel impressed with sentiments of the most unfeigned gratitude to Divine Providence, for the abundant harvests which have crowned the labor of the Husbandman for the last two seasons.

"Far removed from the suggestions of the seditious, HIS MAJESTY'S dutiful subjects in this Province are fully sensible that their happiness here and hereafter must depend upon the cultivation of the principles of religion, and a just subordination to lawful authority; always bearing in mind the moral precept,—To Fear God, and Honor the King."
