

POETRY.

For the Royal Gazette.

To those who have assisted the Bible Society in Miramichi:

Dear female friends, I wish to write
Kind thanks to you, who still unite,
And lend your efforts to a plan,
That is the boast and pride of man,
To send the gracious words of love,
That came to man from worlds above,
To those who live in Satan's chains,
Where dire and dim destruction reigns—
To distant India's burning climes
Where literal burnings swell its crimes:
For thousand widows burnt alive
Are every year, tho' many strive
To shun that death which nature hates,
Yet tyrant custom ne'er abates
One small iota of her claims,
Till all her votaries soon she drains
Of health, of life, of soul, of peace,
'Tis then and only then she'll cease—
She places daggers in the hand
Of some poor tribes, and makes a band
Of murderous parents, who see good
That they should kill their female brood.
Nay, what does custom teach this land
Of freedom, boasted on each hand?
This free America can show
Her slaves in thousands; while their woe
No pity finds—toils, no applause,
But more heaped on by divers laws,
That strict forbid the Gospel grace
To illuminate the negro's face!
'Tis custom too, in this free state
That sanctions swearing at such rate,
Intoxication, every ill
That spring from man's corrupted will.
Continue then to lend your mite
To aid a cause you're sure is right,
And never, never wearied grow
In this good work, till all may know,
If so inclined, a Saviour's love—
A Saviour's message from above.
And ye who have not ought to spare
Tho' rich in will—remember—prayer
Is far more precious than the gold
Or silver bright of earthly mould:
O then with earnest prayer entreat,
Before the great high mercy seat,
That God his blessing would bestow
On this our labour here below,
For gifts of richest jewels rare,
Are nothing worth, while wanting prayer.
Ye helpers of the other sex
Whose aid we've felt—whose power protects,
We thank you much—your bounty shews
You feel some pain for heathen's woes.
And now the day approaches fast,
That Heaven declares shall be the last,
When those who aid and those who hate
This cause of God, shall know their fate:
Then, may all such as give and would
Their prayers or gold or "riches good,"
To further Jesus' kingdom here,
At great Jehovah's right appear,
And meet in triumph round his throne,
Shouting thy Holy will be done
A MEMBER OF THE BIBLE SOCIETY.

SONG.—"Tune Molly Astore."

One evening as I wandered forth,
And carelessly did stray,
Along the river's banks to pass,
Some tedious hours away;
My thoughts on fancy's pinions borne,
Across the ocean stole,
And all the scenes of youthful days
Were present to my soul.

The glens, the fields, the meadows green,
The bowers and shady grove,
Where oft I breathed in Sally's ear,
The tale of artless love,
Were so by fancy's power recalled,
My heart did throbb full sore;
And sighing to myself I said,
To me they are no more.

In vain to me the blooming flowers,
Shall deck their parent spring;
In vain to me the little birds,
Their cheerful notes shall sing:
While absent from each scene I love,
And her whom I adore,
For me all climes and seasons now
Alike, have joys no more.

While musing thus, ye pow'rs, I said,
Grant me but one request;
My Sally take, into your care,
And make her truly blest;
Tho' I may never see her more,
As life itself she's dear,
And for myself I nothing ask,
I have no hope—no fear.
