

FREDERICTON, (N. B.)

30TH OCTOBER, 1821.

P.S. to the Gazette.

Commissioners for Roads.

GRIFFIN CORY--For the Road leading from the Grand Lake to the Washade-moak Lake.

JOHN SEACORD--From Long Creek to the Mill Stream.

The Treaty of Ghent.--We learn, says the Boston Patriot, that there is a disagreement between the English and American Commissioners, under this Treaty, for determining the Eastern Boundary of the United States. It therefore becomes their duty to report their proceedings to their own governments, who, according to the treaty under these circumstances, are to call upon some friendly sovereign, as an umpire. The territory in dispute, contains about five millions of acres, a part of which is good land. It is situated at the north west angle of Nova Scotia, and at the north east angle of the United States, and has within its limits the head waters of the Saint John and other important rivers. There is a French settlement on or near this disputed territory, at a considerable distance from any other settlement, which has been visited only by hunters and surveyors. It is said to be in a very flourishing condition; its situation removing it alike from the temptations and vices of the world.

The settlement which is here so slightly noticed by the Americans, lies in a N.W. direction from Fredericton, at the distance of about 135 miles. They, no doubt, are well aware of its value to this Province; for notwithstanding its situation, allowing it to be visited only by "hunters and surveyors," the inhabitants of this place have received from it in one season, upwards of one thousand bushels of grain and flour; and we understand it has been so well searched after by a hunting party, sent by the Governor of Maine, that a census of the inhabitants in the remote settlement of Madawaska, was taken last season, and is now considered as within the jurisdiction of that State.

MARRIED] At Woodstock, on the 13th inst. by the Rev. Mr. Diblee, Mr. Benjamin Smith, to Miss Christiana A. M'Indoe, both of that Parish.

DIED] At Quebec, on the 1st ultimo, after a short illness, Miss MARY MOUNTAIN, sister to the Lord Bishop of that place.

SAINT JOHN, Oct. 24.

We are sorry to say that we had, during the last week, two alarms of Fire, both of which originated in a great measure from negligence. The former took place in an unfinished building in Brussels-street, belonging to Mr. S. D. Sayward, from the carelessness of his apprentices, having left a quantity of shavings too near the fire, during their absence from the house. The injury done was considerable. The latter was from the defect of a hearth in a small building in Nelson-street, belonging to Mr. Wm. Whelpley, which was discovered about 11 o'clock on Saturday night. From the contiguity of this building to some Cooper's shops, and the great quantity of lumber in that neighbourhood, the alarm was very considerable. By pulling down the premises, the fire was extinguished, and that valuable section of our City probably saved from total destruction. In both cases the alacrity of the firemen and inhabitants was beyond all praise.

MARRIED] In Trinity Church, this morning, between the hours of 11 and 12, by the Rev. R. Willis, Mr. James M'Donald, Merchant, of the Parish of St. George's, Charlotte County, to Elizabeth, eldest daughter of James O. Betts, Esq. of this City.

DIED] On Thursday morning, after a long and tedious illness, Mr. Francis Traver, aged 68 years.

Last evening, in this City, Mrs. Maria Waters, aged 31 years, wife of Mr. William Waters, butcher.

This morning, after a short but very severe illness, much regretted by her friends and acquaintance, in the 39th year of her age, Mrs. Mary, widow of Lewis Burns, Esquire.

At St. Andrews, on the 10th inst. after a long and distressing illness, which he bore with fortitude and resignation, Lieutenant John Macaul, of the Royal Navy, aged 65.

HALIFAX, Oct. 22.

PIRACY.--Capt. Coulson, late of the brig Alligator, of this port, was a passenger in the schooner Hunter, from New-York. He states that he left Jamaica on the 18th August; that on the 24th, he discovered two small schooners at anchor near Cape Antonio, one of which soon after got under weigh, and by the aid of sweeps, came up with the Alligator in a short time, and sent her boat on board with 14 or 15 men, all Spaniards, armed with blunderbusses, cutlasses, &c. who drove the master down to the cabin, and the crew forward, ordered the mate to the helm, and obliged him to run the brig towards the shore, where she was anchored near the schooners. The Pirates then commenced plundering the vessel, and made her crew unbend the light sails, which, with all the spare canvas, rigging, and every article of wearing apparel worth taking, they put on board of one of the schooners--after getting the stores, &c. on deck, and searching the cabin and state rooms, they ordered the master on deck, and suspecting there was money on board, demanded to know where it was placed. Captain C. refused to satisfy them, and the Pirates then beat him severely with cutlasses, and afterwards suspended him by a rope round his neck down the hatchway, and kept him in that dreadful situation until he had nearly expired, and on his reviving a little they again beat him most unmercifully with their swords. As soon as the money was removed to the schooner, Capt. C. was directed to get his vessel under weigh and proceed on his voyage, which he immediately did. The next morning, however, the Alligator struck on the N.W. side of the Colerados, and in a short time bilged--the crew then took to the long-boat and shaped their course for the Havana, from which place they were distant about 160 miles. On the 25th, they saw a large brig moored inshore, about 20 leagues to the eastward of Cape Antonio--she had an awning spread over her deck, and a boat partly hoisted alongside--supposed her a store ship in possession of the Pirates. On Sunday the 26th while pulling alongshore, they passed very near to the schooners that had plundered the Alligator, and which fired several shots at them, but they escaped by getting inside of a reef. On the 28th, after being four days in the boat, and suffering great hardships, they left in with the French brig Narcissa, Capt. Rascar, who received them on board--there they experienced the greatest kindness, and in a few days were landed at the Havana. Captain Coulson further informs us, that the boat which brought the Pirates on board of the Alligator, had the word "Greenock" painted on her stern.

A private soldier of the 64th Regt has been sentenced by a General Court Martial to be shot to death, for Desertion, and Robbery of Quarter Master Robertson, of the same corps.--It is not known when he will suffer.--(S.)

We understand that Lawrence Griffin, who was found guilty of the Murder of Henry Engelson, will suffer the awful sentence of the Law on Wednesday next.--(Journal.)
