RUSSIAN EMPIRE.

Petersburg, Dec. 28.—According to the statement just published by the Synod (which, however, includes only the Greek Church) the number of the births, &c. in the Russian Empire, in the year 1819 was as follows:—

Births.—Males	796,426
Females	725,708
Total	1,522,134
Being 90,686 more than in the 1818.
Deaths.—Males	467,668
Females	451,441
Total	919,109
Dying 44,102 more than in the year 1818.

The number of births exceeds that of the deaths by 603,025. Among the deaths were 233,697 males under five years of age. It is worthy of remark, that if we except the first ten years of infancy, the greatest mortality takes place at the age of 60 to 65 years, for in these years there died 17,745 males—that is, the 26th or 27th part of the whole.

Among the deaths of the male sex (the age of the females is not stated) there were 18,741 above 80; 5,754 above 90; 1,894 above 100; 324 above 105; 179 above 110; 90 above 115; 56 above 120; 23 above 125; 13 above 130; and two the extraordinary age of between 140 and 150.

Thoughts concerning Education.

I therefore advise you not to fence carefully against the cold of this our climate. There are those in England, who wear the same cloaths winter and Summer without any inconvenience, or more sense, of cold than others. If the mother will needs have an allowance for frost and snow, for fear of harm, and the father for fear of censure, be sure let not his winter-cloathing be warm: and amongst other things, remember, that when nature has so well covered his head with hair, and strengthen'd it with a year or two's age, that he can run about by day without a cap, by night a child should also lie without one; nothing more exposes to headachs, colds, catarrhs, coughs, and several other diseases, than keeping the head warm. I have said he here, because the principal aim of my discourse is, how a young man should be bro't up from his infancy, which, in all things will not suit the education of daughters; though where the difference of sex requires different treatment, 'twill be no hard matter to distinguish.

I also advise his feet to be wash'd every day in cold water, and to have his shoes so thin, that they might leak and let in water. I fear, I shall have the mistress and maids too against me. One will think it too filthy, and the other perhaps too much pains, to make clean his stockings. But yet truth will have it, that his health is much more worth, then all such considerations, and ten times as much more. And he that considers how mischievous and mortal a thing taking wet in the feet is, to those who have been bred nicely, will wish he had with the poor people's children, gone bare-foot, who, by that means, come to be so reconcil'd by custom to wet in their feet, that they take no more cold or harm by it, than if they were wet in their hands. And what is it, I pray, that makes this great difference between the hands and the feet in others, but only custom? I doubt not, but if a man from his cradle had been always us'd to go barefoot, whilst his hands wer'd constantly wrapt up in warm mittens, and cover'd with handshoes, as the Dutch call gloves; I doubt not, I say, but such a custom would make taking wet in his hands as dangerous to him, as now taking wet in their feet is to a great many others. To prevent this, have his shoes made so as to leak water, and his feet wash'd constantly every day in cold water. It is recommendable for its cleanliness; but that which I aim at in it is health; and therefore I limit it not precisely to any time of the day. I have known it us'd every night with very good success, and that all the winter, without the omitting it so much as one night in extreme cold weather; when thick ice cover'd the water, the child bathed his legs and feet in it, though he was of an age not big enough to rub and wipe them himself; and when he began this custom was pulling and very tender. But the great end being to harden those parts, by a frequent and familiar use of cold water, and thereby to prevent the mischiefs that usually attend accidental taking wet in the feet in those who are bred otherwise, I think it may be left to the prudence and convenience of the parents, to chuse either night or morning. The time I deem indifferent, so the thing be effectually done. The health and hardiness procur'd by it, would be a good purchase at a much dearer rate. To which, if I add, the preventing of corns, that to some men would be a very valuable consideration. But begin first in the spring with luke warm, and so colder and colder every time, till in a few days you come to perfectly cold water, and then continue it so winter and summer. For it is to be observed in this, as in all other alterations from our ordinary way of living, the changes must be made by gentle and insensible degrees; and so we may bring our bodies to any thing, without pain, and without danger.

GEORGE BAIN, Whitesmith, has removed to that house belonging to Capt. Kenah, East side of York Street, where any orders in his line will be punctually attended to.
