By the Hon. WARD CHIPMAN, one of the Justices of His Majesty's Supreme Court of Judicature for the Province of New-Brunswick.

To all to whom it may concern, Greeting: WHEREAS it having been sufficiently attested before me, on the part of Joshua Hughson, of the City of Saint John, Merchant, that William Dougall, late of the City of Saint John, Mariner, is justly indebted to the said Joshua Hughson, in the sum of five hundred and ten pounds, over and above all discounts, and also proved to my satisfaction that the said William Dougall, departed from the Province after the said debt was contracted, and has not resided within the Province for the term of six months preceding this date: Pursuant to the Act of the General Assembly in such case made and provided, I have directed all the Estate as well real as personal within this Province, of the said William Dougall, to be seized and attached, and that unless the said William Dougall, do return and discharge the said debt or debts within six months from the publication hereof, all the Estate as well real as personal of the said William Dougall, within this Province, will be sold for the payment and satisfaction of the Creditors of the said William Dougall.

SKETCHES OF SCENERY, MANNERS, CUSTOMS &c. IN SPAIN.

The afternoon is wearing away, and I am desirous you should be on the top of Saint Ann's before the setting of the sun. We are already in the out skirts of the village. What beautiful enclosures of fruit and kitchen herbs are met with on either hand, and what superb villas are scattered up and down in every direction? Do you observe the hedges on the sides of the road? They are made of the large American aloe; a plant that is said to bloom once only in a century. But this is incorrect—the period is quite uncertain and various, but not so long. As these hedges are very old, we shall doubtless find some of the plants in bloom—I have rarely passed here at this season, without seeing several. What thick massy leaves and strong prickles do they present—nothing can be finer for hedges. But see, yonder are two or three putting forth their pale, straw-coloured blossoms, while others are yet shooting up their long slender stalk. The natives assert, and it is believed with truth, that as soon as the plant flowers it dies. Aft emblem of human hopes and happiness, which always appear loveliest and brightest when about being lost for ever; and present but a moment of bloom and fruition after an age of vegetation and inanity!

We are at the foot of the hill.—Its ascent will be somewhat fatiguing, but as the sun is on the opposite side, we shall be incommoded by his beams. The side, we are ascending is thickly clothed with gardens & orchards, which being now wrapped in shade, present an agreeable relief to the eye, while the gentle evening breeze wafts from them a most delightful fragrance. What a picturesque and charming view does the old, half ruined chapel on the summit, with its columns and projecting porch present, when through these vistas of trees and shrubbery. We are on the little plain which crowns the top and on which the chapel is situated. Let us take a seat at the foot of one of these pillars and rest us after the fatigue of the ascent.

What a magnificent prospect presents itself from this elevated spot! In front, towards the west, you have the boundless Atlantic with a horizon unbroken, except here and there by a white sail, at such a distance as to present but a mere speck of the vision—nearer to, are others which appear sailing almost under us and looking to the naked eye like small boats; but with the aid of this glass are magnified into large ships; you may see the very people on their decks. Still nearer, you perceive the outline of the coast with its numerous indentations, sandy beach and high projecting cliffs, with here and there an old dilapidated tower, the relic of former ages when these coasts were infested by the Algerine and Moorish rovers. Towards the right, you clearly discern the walls and white turrets of Cadiz, with her castles and light house, and can trace the narrow strip of sand which connects her with the Isla. Beyond, you see the noble bay expanding before the city, and can just descry the hulls and masts of some of the large ships of war. Still beyond you discover the coast of Rota with its old castle and beautiful villas and vineyards—the city of St. Mary's, the Gouding, meandering thro' the beautiful plains of Xeres—the high hill of Buenavista and the extensive and venerable convent of Carthusians so romantically placed at their base. Farther towards the right you perceive the pines and glided cupoias of the Isla, and almost under us, although at several miles distance, the insulated and sea washed castle of Santi Petri. Beyond, and over the Isla, you may discern the beautiful town of Port Royal, with the Santi Petri winding by, and opposite, the immense store-houses, docks and bulk of the Caracas, while above the whole tower the grotesque heights of the cabeza del Moray Moor's head. Opposite to us, on the east, we have the gentle swelling, but lofty eminence of Medina, with its town so beautifully placed on the summit, and declivity; and between almost under our feet, the delightful vale of Chiclana, with its handsome village, clear stream, verdant enclosures, and noble avenues of trees. On our left we have for a considerable distance, the ocean and the entrance to the straits of Gibraltar, with vessels of various descriptions and all sizes, making their way thither; some close under the land and others just visible at the edge of the horizon. Still farther to the left, you can follow the coast almost to its southern extremity, and it is said that in very clear weather the high mountains, of Africa may be discerned from this spot.

Do you see yonder project, which appears like a long blue cloud reposing upon the level surface of the ocean? It is cape TRAFALGAR, off which was fought the most memorable battle and destructive naval
