"I'LL LEAVE MY CARD."

The present may with much propriety, be styled the age of heartlessness. Empty ceremony and heartless formality have usurped the place of friendly attentions and social intercourse. Modern politeness is exactly opposed to sincerity. There seems to be a tacit understanding between man and man, woman and woman, to deceive and be deceived; and he who plays off these counterfeit tricks the most adroitly, is the most polished and polite.

Walking the other day with a friend, or with one who makes friendly pretensions—"If you will excuse me a moment," said he, "I will call on Mr. Clericut; he is out of town, I believe; I shall over, take you with a few steps." So saying he took from his pocket a card-case—knocked at the door—made the accustomed inquiry, and handed his card to the servant. "Cancelled at a lucky moment," said he, when he had overtaken me—"I always observe great punctuality in returning civilities of my friends. "But why," did you call on Mr. C. when you knew he was not at home, "Oh!" exclaimed he, "it answers every purpose of a visit, and is far less trouble: he is vastly tedious; but I was in debt to him on the score of civilities."—This paper currency, I find, is in general circulation! the sterling coin of real friendship has become scarce, now and then we meet with a few antiquated pieces, but they are pretty much out of date.—"Mama," said the Misses Stylishes, "we shall go out this morning, and make calls, the day is fine, and ladies will generally be out; the Misses Oldfades are on a journey to the White Hills; Miss Mantrim returns soon from Newburyport, and Miss Trimaker is staying in Boston." "You can leave my cards," said the mother, with matronly honesty, "at Mr. Homedred's and Mrs. Starch-up's if they happen not to be at home, the servant will not notice the mistake.

Now I am strongly opposed to all this from moral considerations. The young are instructed in dissimulation and insincerity; servants are taught to reconnoitre at the porch window and prevaricate. The human character is sufficiently bad, it much needs amendment. Let the circle of one's friends be small if he chooses; but let it be hearty and genuine with those who profess to be united in the silken bands of friendship. All this cold ceremony is downright mockery of all that is open, fair and honorable—it is disgraceful in the human character—more stuff—empty chaff—lighter than the paper that is made the vehicle of their deceit, without its purity.

The widow Tripit flitted by my window;—a sprightly knock, summoned the servant to the door—"I am not at home this morning, Susan." "I am honest and consistent, you see. I will not spare my wife, although I expect a curtain lecture if she detects my scribbling. The servant entered with a card.—"I thought, my dear, you were not on the most intimate terms with the widow T. since the disclosure of Maria Blab?" "We are not, my dear, said she, "but we leave our cards," handing me the one just received. "By my ledger," said I, "it blushes." "You are satirical, my dear, it is rosepaper." "Very appropriate paper," said I, "it ought to be in more general use [taking up Doctor Chargewell's bill, which I had just paid] with professional men, as well as professional women.

This card leaving custom, confined to its legitimate use, to obviate the carelessness, or forgetfulness of servants, is certainly very proper and convenient, but when made the instrument of idle ceremony, and deceitful professions, it is certainly reprehensible, and may be classed with the follies and crimes of the age.

The winter in Kamschatka has been exceedingly severe, attended with deep falls of Snow.

Rumours mention the Infant, Don Miguel, is about to marry the Princess Maria Christina, sister of her Royal Highness the Duchess of Berry.

His Majesty's Govt. have received advices from Dr. Oudney, Major Denham and Lieut. Clapperton, who were sent on an expedition to Bornou, the capital of a great kingdom in the interior of Africa, communicating the gratifying intelligence of the safe arrival there of the party in February last, and that they had made important discoveries. They had coasted along a fresh water lake named Izad, 220 English miles in length, which they supposed received the Niger and emptied into the Nile. They supposed themselves to be 1000 miles south of Mourzouk, and to have arrived within 800 of the coast of Guinea.

The decree of amnesty from Ferdiuand was shortly expected to be promulgated. Rumour says that it will contain the following exceptions: 1. The officers of the Isle of Leon of the rank of Capt. and above. 2. The persons who signed the deposition of the King at Seville. 3. All the Municipalities who proclaimed the Constitution before they were authorised so to do by the King. 4. The members of the minority of the Cortes, who at Cadiz, voted against the liberty of his Majesty. It is expected that there will soon be another decree, making various exceptions and regulations as to those who composed the constitutional army.

Various reports are in circulation respecting another Revolution at Lisbon. Some assert it is brought about by the King, who has ordered the Queen and several others into confinement; but we observed no date of sufficient authority to warrant us in forming any opinion whatever upon this subject.

The 77th Regiment, has marched to Cork for embarkation for Jamaica.

From the London Courier of Jan. 12.

We mentioned a few days since that French troops had been embarked at Brest for the West-Indies, and that our ambassador at the French Court had received explanations on the subject. We hope he will also be in a situation to furnish satisfactory explanation to his government of the maritime armaments which have been preparing without noise in the same port. Capt. Spence, arrived at Davenport from Brest, whence he
