MIDDLETOWN, Nov. 27. Extract of a letter from a correspondent at Matanzas, dated Oct. 16.

"You must ere this have heard of the attempt in Havana, to declare this Island independent, and of the arrest of 200 or more persons engaged in the scheme, in that place, and in the adjacent country. Much time having elapsed after taking up the last in that quarter, we were in hopes that they had no correspondents in this part of the island. But in this we were deceived. Many have been found in this place and arrested, within the last two days, some of whom are the first men in our place. Fifteen have already been arrested, and many more are to be. Troops are scouring the country for some gentlemen who have left this place in haste, but have not yet found them. In fact, our town appears to be in a state of anarchy, and all at present with sealed lips, dread the consequences of what they have said on the subject of politics. There is a subscription on foot to arrest those in favour of liberty, and already 50,000 dols. have been subscribed for this purpose. A double patrol walks the streets every night, and the police never was so strict as at present. Strangers residing here, have of late been obliged to obtain a new kind of passport, and those wishing to ride into the country, are liable to be taken up, unless they procure every time a passport for this purpose.

From the National Gazette.

The last number of the Philadelphia Medical Journal, mentions the case of a child aged about twelve months, who was vaccinated in the arm, but no inflammation followed. In about eight or ten days therefrom, the operation was repeated, and the child passed regularly through the disease, the first puncture remaining all the time quiescent. In about six months, however, this puncture inflamed spontaneously; and the physician who was called to see it, that he found on the part a well formed vesicle, "presenting in every way the satisfactory appearance we expect to find about the tenth or eleventh day after the insertion of the vaccine lymph." He adds—"the cicatrices of both pocks now remain, and are equally well defined."

In the same Journal proofs are cited, that the Yellow Fever in Spain is different from that of the West-Indies.

The following notice is taken in the Journal, of a discovery made by Dr. Homer, adjunct professor of anatomy in the University of Pennsylvania:—"Dr. Homer enjoys the rare happiness of having made a discovery in science which was thought to be too well explored to allow an investigator—the slightest hope of such a reward. He has discovered a muscle in the inner angle of the orbit (of the eye) which, till then, had escaped the research of so many anatomists. This muscle leads to a clearer understanding of the beautiful apparatus of vision, and adds another proof of the omniscience of the Great First Cause, who has adapted, in the wonderful contexture of our system, part to part, and each to the whole."

A Scotch Soldier, a pensioner, who said he was 106 years of age, was committed to prison in London for begging in the streets. He said his name was Allan Johnson; that he lisied under the Duke of Argyle, in the service of George II. against Prince Charles; that he was in the "Culloden War," and at the battle of Bunker Hill, where he had three brothers killed. He remarked, that he had no friends and could find but one man in his native town who knew him.

LONDON, Nov. 6. Intelligence has been received in England, that the King of Spain had consented to ratify the convention concluded between Great Britain and Spain in March last, by the Constitutional Government, for indemnifying the losses sustained by British Merchants by captures made by Spanish privateers.

A most tremendous storm was experienced in some parts of England, that was almost ever known. At Gloucester the rain fell in torrents during the day, and in the night the wind from the north and north east raged with awful fury, tearing up immense trees from their roots, and in some instances levelled entire buildings with the ground. In most directions there was a heavy fall of snow, and the hills on the following morning were completely covered. The roads were so much flooded, that travelling was impeded, particularly from Gloucester to Bristol, and in one place the water in the road was five feet deep. Much damage was done in other places, and the water rose so suddenly in several places that considerable numbers of sheep and other animals were carried away. Upon the arrival of the Bristol mail at Worcester, the guard was missing. Two men in a post chaise were immediately despatched for him, and he was found at Lower Stoke, completely insensible, having been overpowered by the severity of the snow storm, and fallen from his seat. He had lain three hours in the road before he was picked up, and his recovery was very doubtful. The storm was very extensive, and the damage done at many places very considerable.

The following are some of the disasters to the shipping by the gale which commenced on the 30th Oct. Capt. Hill, of the Nellie Castle, left Yarmouth Roads in company with 150 sail, which remained in company until the tempest arose, when they were scattered in all directions. Thirty vessels were driven ashore between Grimsby and Terney Haven, an extent of only seven miles. Fifty-nine sail were reported to be on shore on the Lincolnshire coast. Considerable damage had been sustained by vessels in the Humber. Seven sail were ashore between Hunston Light-house and Lynn, on the Norfolk coast. Four vessels sunk near Wainfleet, the crew of one was lost. Two seamen were washed on shore at Wrangle. A vessel had been found on the Long Strand without a soul on board. Two vessels were wrecked at Gedney Grove End. Two lives were lost in a vessel which upset. A brig sunk in the Lynn Roads, two others were on shore. Five persons were lost from a fishing yawl. The brig Hope from Quebec is ashore. One man was drowned from a Scotch sloop. The lives of ten persons were saved by Capt. Manby's mortar and apparatus. A man was drowned from a fishing vessel in coming into the harbor.

We learn from Dover, that a foreign vessel had arrived with the loss of two boats. The Capt. was washed overboard, but caught a rope thrown to him and again reached the ship. A fishing boat in attempting to get into Boulogne, struck the ground and all on board perished.

Accounts from Deal state that a vessel was wrecked on the North Land Head. The Lady Popham was lost on the Margate Sands. A vessel was lost at Plymouth, two at Bristol, two near Fishguard, sixteen are ashore near the Humber, at Lowestoffe, Yarmouth, Wells, Mundesley, Scarborough, Sunderland, Shields, &c.

The Bath Journal says, the late heavy rains caused the Avon to overflow to an unprecedented extent. The water rose higher than in the memorable flood of 1820. The water reached the second story of many houses in the streets near the river. The Dolemeads was covered with an entire sheet of water. The inhabitants were seen in their highest rooms with lights. Many persons were rescued by a ferry boat which was sent to their relief. One man was found up to his shoulders in water in his bed room: in another house a man, his wife, and eight small children, were found nearly drowned. The loss in property is immense.

The Salisbury Journal says that the snow fell so deep between Hindon and Wincanton, that the coaches after being dug out were obliged to be taken on with six horses each. Several persons lost their lives.
