INCREASING IMPORTANCE OF CANADA, NOVA-SCOTIA, AND NEW BRUNSWICK.

Lower Canada now contains a population of nearly half a million of souls, and affords a militia of 70,000 able bodied men. Upper Canada contains a population of about 160,000 souls, and has 43,000 men enrolled and embodied as militia; and though this colony is yet in its infancy, the fertility of the soil, the comparative mildness of its climate, and the luxuriance of its vegetation, must unquestionably render it ere long, a province of the greatest value. The population of New Brunswick is stated at 70,000; the militia, 11,000. Nova Scotia contains 86,000 inhabitants, and has 12,000 very respectable militia. On account of the harbor and dock-yard of Halifax, this province is rapidly improving, and being the nearest and readiest point of communication with Great Britain, is of the utmost importance. Prince Edward's Island, near its coast, has a population of about 24,000 souls, and 4,000 embodied militia. Thus, the five colonies of Upper and Lower Canada, New-Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Prince Edward's Island, have an armed force of able-bodied militia, amounting to no less than 147,000 men. The sea coast of Canada is equal in extent to that of the United States, and of a description very superior to it for the formation of a navy, and the support of a maritime population. Commencing at the noble bay of Passamaquoddy and its islands, where the American line now terminates, we find the inhabitants mostly, sea fearing people. The town of St. Andrew's is rapidly rising into mercantile importance, and is resorted to by numbers of European fishing and coasting vessels. Hard by is the town of St. John, at the mouth of the fine river of the same name, down which timber is floated in such quantities as to engage many hundred vessels in exporting it to Great Britain, and bringing back those supplies of British goods which the wants of a rapidly increasing population annually demand. Ship building is also carried on in the river to a great extent. The colonies of New-Brunswick and Nova-Scotia, whose shores surrounded the bay of Fun-
