

A German Journal says, that the late King of Saxony has left to the Princess Augusta, his only unmarried daughter, a fortune of 18 millions of dollars from his own private property.

The Viceroy of Egypt, long known as a Cotton Grower, has lately become a Whole sale Manufacturer. He employs 18,000 weavers, freights many vessels, and has factories in Leghorn, Florence, and various cities of Sicily. He is one of the most extraordinary men of this extraordinary age of self-created great men, having risen to his present elevation from a private mameluke.

The French who are at Vienna, have received orders to quit that city in 3 days, if they cannot guarantee, by the testimony of three houses, that their business renders their further stay in the capital necessary.
