

St. John Agricultural and Emigrant Society. We regret that our limits did not permit us to insert the Report entire.

An old Maxim is, buy the truth and sell it not, but I had rather Editors would occasionally sell a little truth than be too fond of publishing falsehoods, for altho' truth may not be so pleasing, it is of more value.

The average number of labourers on the Deep Cut is about eight hundred, out of which, only three persons have died since the first of May last, as can be substantiated from the time books of the Deep Cut, in which every person's name is enrolled that has done a days work.

Editors who will favor me with the above insertion, and one of their papers containing a bill of publishing, shall shortly receive the amount of the same. OLIVER PHELPS, Contractor for the Deep Cut, Welland Canal, Deep Cut, August 25, 1827.
