

PORTUGAL.

Don Miguel, carried forward by his dreams of ambition, and regardless of the usurper's thorny pillow, has at length thrown off the mask, and assumed the title of King of Portugal; this we learn from the following express received from Paris:—

PARIS, May 10.—A telegraphic despatch from Bayonne, dated May 10, announces—

“That Don Miguel has been proclaimed King, without any opposition, at Combra Aveiro, Setubal, Villafranca, Vianna, and other towns.

“Lisbon is tranquil, and Oporto was very calm on the 28th of April.

“The present intentions are immediately to convoke the three Orders.”

We believe—we are certain—that, in case the Infant should really cause himself to be proclaimed Absolute King, his Majesty's Minister, who is accredited only to the Prince Regent, was immediately to cease his functions.

It appears rather singular that at the very moment when Don Miguel is proclaiming himself King, that the Emperor Don Pedro should have transmitted a Decree, abdicating the Throne of Portugal in favour of his daughter Donna Maria, II., the future wife of Don Miguel.

This act, coming at such a period, renders the affair still more perplexing, for if Don Miguel finds that the Courts of Europe are decidedly hostile to his sole assumption of a power which he could only hold in trust for his wife, he can satisfy their scruples by appearing to act in her name while he really orders things in his own way.—What a prospect for Portugal!

AGRICULTURE.

The following has been obligingly handed to us by an eminent Agriculturist. The Editors of Newspapers are respectfully requested to give it circulation for the information of the public.—Q. Star.

SALINE MANURE.

The following is the mode recommended to be adopted in preparing the Saline Manure.

Let a platform of any kind of Mould or Earth, the richer the better, be formed, about six inches thick, twelve feet wide, and as long as may be necessary for the extent of land to be manured, at one end of this let the first load of lime, fresh from the kiln, be placed about four inches thick, let the lime be then, not only slacked, but moistened, with a solution of rock salt, or any common salt, in water, at the rate of 6 lbs of salt to each barrel of lime, pouring the solution, or pickle, gradually and evenly on the lime, as the latter is found to imbibe it, carefully avoiding to let any of the pickle escape from the lime, as it may thus fail to come within its influence and be thrown away, then spread the lime, placed on the platform near the first, and treated in the same manner, when the platform is thus covered, begin again with a second layer of lime, slack, moisten, and spread, and cover it as the first, until it be also finished, and proceed in the same manner with a third and fourth layer, if the mould be not collected in one place, but deposited in a long row, as then the earth will be more convenient, and equally advantageous. When the whole is covered with earth let the heap be cut down and well mixed, in which state it may be suffered to lie until a short time before it is used, when it should be again turned. The proportion of water in which the salt is dissolved, depends on the state of the earth or mould; if the latter be wet twenty gallons of water impregnated with 6 lbs. of salt, is sufficient for each barrel of lime, if it be dry, half a hogshead of water to that quantity of salt and lime will be necessary. Forty barrels of lime treated in this manner is a full dressing for an acre of potatoes. The quantity of earth we have used was about eighty single horse cart loads to the acre, but if there be much difficulty in collecting it from forty to fifty loads may be sufficient. The compost should be prepared at least two or three months before the time of it, and if the expence be no material objection, one or two additional turnings in the interval would be desirable.

Of the efficacy of this manure for potatoes, we have already had satisfactory evidence. That it will be found of equal value in its operations on the subsequent crops, may be inferred from the durability of the effects of soap ashes, to which in its most essential ingredients it is similar, and that it may be directly applied with advantage to the other tillage crops we also anticipate, from the well known effects of soap ashes in such application, to those farmers who are so situated, as to be debarred from all other adventitious manures except lime, the advantage of being able to supply themselves abundantly with a cheap substitute, and we trust, of superior value to any of them, is incalculable.

Every ton of this saline compost contains 4 stone of muriate of lime and each ten contains one fourth of pure lime, if free from stones, &c.
