UNDREDS of awful dyspeptic cases have been brought on by loading the stomach with medicines intended to heal the lungs. How absurd is this mode of treatment; and yet it is a fact that the doctors advo-cate it. In all cases of lung and bronchial disease, the organs affected should be healed without the remedies becoming weakened or useless by traveling the stomach and intestines. THE ALLIES have made great blunders in the Crimea, but not greater than are every day made by doctors, who, to dislodge the enemy Consumption from the lungs, throw immense quantities of ammunition in the shape of powders and pills into the stomach.
