British military officers, about a tenth of the the natives has been more widely extended than the Turkish Government have decided upon officers of the Bengal army. Great as is this you believe in England, and nothing but prompt number, the marvel is that, amid such terrific measures, supported by a powerful English scenes, it has been so small. We are very the enemy .- The rest of the thirteen hundred grateful to him." consist of civil servants of the East India Company, assistants in Government offices, bankers, traders, agents, and ladies. The number also includes four chaplains, and ten male missionaries with their wives. Of the latter ten, two, belonging to the Propagation Society, fell at Cawnpore, and three at Delhi; four of the American Presbyterian Mission, at Futtehghur; and one of the Established Church of Scotland, at Scalkote, in the Punjaub. The destruction of mission property in the north west has been immense. At upwards of twenty stations there has been much devastation, and at some of them total ruin. The mission bungalow residences, the schools, the churches or chapels, the libraries and stores of books, have been completely destroyed. The extensive printing-presses of the American mission at Allahabad, and of the Church of England Missionary Society at Agra, with the founts of types, and Bible, and tract, and school-book depositories-the accumulated results of the knowledge, experience, and toil of many a devoted spirit for many years,-have all disappeared. In pecuniary value alone, the aggregate of mission property thus wantonly and wickedly demolished and swept away cannot, at the lowest estimate, he reckoned under seventy thousand pounds. To prevent all misconception with reference to missionaries, it ought to be emphatically noted, that nowhere has any special enmity or hostility been manifested towards them by the mutineers. Far from it. Such of them as fell in the way of the rebels were simply dealt with precisely in the same way as all other Europeans were dealt with. They belonged to the governing class, and, as such, must be destroyed, to make way for the re-establishment of the old native Mahommedan dynasty.-The same actuating motive led to the destruction of native Christians, and all others who were friendly, or supposed to be friendly, to the British Government.-In this way it is known that many of the natives of Bengal, who, from their superior English education, were employed in Government offices in the north-west, and were believed to be bullocks which draw his cannon become frantic, favourable to the continuance of our rule, were made to suffer severely both in life and pro- in confusion. ROUTE OF THE INDIAN TELEGRAMS .- As the question is often put to us, how is the telegram conveyed from India to England, why is it that it does not come to us instantaneously, and how is it that we are dependant on foreign telegraphs for its conveyance; let us repeat, or rather restate in another form, that at present the Indian news after steaming up the Red Sea from India and crossing the Isthmus of Suez: is made up by our consul at Alexandria on its arrival from Suez, (no telegraph report being as yet sent across the Isthmus, although we believe there is a partial line running from Cairol) The summary of the news so made up at Alexandria is forwarded to Malta, and thence (till the cable already made be laid down between Cagliari and Malta) by Government steamer to Cagliari. Handed into the telegraph office there it is forwarded to Spezzia and thence to Turin. Thence there are two telegraphic foutes, one via Switzerland, the Rhine provinces, Belgium, and through the submarine cable from Ostend to London; the other via France to Paris, and thence (through the submarine cable) from Calais to London. A third route may also be employed -viz., from the Rhine provinces to Amsterdam, and thence via the Electric and International Telegraph Company's submarine wires from Holland to London. A line has been proposed to connect Alexandria, Malta, Gibraher, with England direct, but in is now two inches long." the present state of the money market any further great extension of long submarine lines is not at all probable. At present, therefore, as will be seen, in telegraph communication, England is quite dependant on continental Powers. The Builder.

GENERAL HAVELOCK is a small man, with grey hair, and lively energetic manner .- What we. he does, he does at once : there is no indecision, no fumbling-he forms his column into shape in a second, and had he only cavalry and horse artillery, I think he would drive his men through a stone wall ; but I have seen those confounded rushing at the drivers and scattering all around
