

"The boy is sixteen years of age, and is small and young looking of his age. He seems incapable of understanding properly the awful position in which he is placed."

"They are all chained in different rooms in the gaol. What struck us most when we saw them on Monday, was the apparent want of feeling exhibited by them. It was difficult to believe that you saw the men who had within a few days committed so fearful a crime. Whether it is that their hearts continue utterly callous, or that they can conceal their feelings, it is certain that a stranger would not point them out as the murderers."

"Out-door reports say that all three admit their guilt, and talk freely of the circumstances. Breen had hired with McKenzie as a farm labourer, and told his family were to be out on Saturday. When the three went to the place, Breen leaving his axe at the lower house went up to McKenzie's, and told him that his family were coming, and he wished him to come down, open the house, and help him to move a stove out of the passage; that McKenzie was thus decoyed to the lower house, and when there was struck with the axe, knocked down, and killed. Breen alledges, it is said, that his heart failed him when the time came, and that it was Slavin who hit McKenzie with the axe on the chest.—Slavin says that it was Breen who committed all the murders. Having rifled McKenzie's pockets, they went up to his house. Mrs. McKenzie was sitting by the fire with a child in her lap. She was quickly despatched by a few blows of the axe. Then the children, who took the alarm and attempted to run away, were followed and all killed, after which the safe was rifled, the house plundered, and both houses set on fire. The boy, it is said, states that he was moved by the cries of the little girl. The fire was still burning brightly when they got to Slavin's house."

"In planning the murder the men showed consummate skill. After the murder, they showed themselves consummate fools, as if infatuated, remained near the scene of their guilt."

"Rumours of highway robberies, arsons, murders, &c., are now quite ripe. On Sunday it was currently reported that a doctor had been robbed of his watch and a gold piece near the Suspension Bridge on Saturday night; and that near the Valley Church a Bank President prevented an attack by pretending to draw a pistol."

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—A serious accident occurred on Saturday at the Hammond River Bridge, or rather the Viaduct in course of construction by Messrs. Small & Crossby in that vicinity. The boiler for the machine used for pumping the water, exploded, and the engineer, (Mr. Collins, of New York,) was severely injured—one of his legs was broken, and his face severely cut as if done by an axe. Mr. Crossby was thrown into a pit and the boiler passed over his head, a most miraculous escape from immediate death. Several workmen near by likewise narrowly escaped. The boiler was thrown about eighty feet one way and the machinery forty feet another.

The Miramichi Times gives an account of a melancholy suicide at Chatham, on the 24th ult.

A Mrs. Bride went round and paid several little bills, suckled her infant, 7 or 8 months old, kissed it and laid it in the cradle, and then took her eldest daughter, a little girl, to a neighbouring wood, where she deliberately hung herself by her handkerchief to tree. She threatened, if her daughter told any one of it and they took her down before she was dead, she would be avenged on her. She then sent her home. It appears she contrived to fasten the handkerchief so as to require her to spring out, and on doing so broke her neck, and caused instant death. The Coroner's Inquest failed to discover any cause for the act. Verdict,—Suicide, caused by Temporary Insanity.

The New York Journal of Commerce gives a melancholy view of that city and its prospects. In referring to the depression of trade, it remarks: The mechanics, labourers, and operatives as a class, are a hard-working, thrifty, respectable people, whose only capital is their skill, industry, and steady habits. Their ambition is a modest one—it is simply to get a subsistence for themselves and families. In the best of times most of them live from hand to mouth, and few contrive to lay up anything for such evil days as are now upon them. They can get no work; they are too honest to steal; they are too proud to beg; a hard winter is before them, with a poor show of relief.

In New York, since the crisis came on, the cloaking houses in the city, have discharged about 1600 girls. A little over two weeks ago the Clock-Makers Association could hardly supply the demand for labour. The Bookbinders have discharged about 700, the sewing-machine manufacturers about 214; the clothiers about 550, and other manufacturing establishments (miscellaneous) about 1900. There is no way of estimating the number of female servants who have been discharged in consequence of the sudden retrenchment which most families are obliged to make in their household expenses, but it must be very large. Adding this to the number of operatives, we have a host of women now out of work in that great city of temptations.

The iron-workers, cigar-makers, and many other classes are also suffering.

The intelligence offices are thronged with female applicants—but few of whom succeed in obtaining situations. At an office in the Bowery some 250 girls are in attendance daily, offering 50 cents for a place. No less than 600 young women were waiting for employment one day this week in Nassau street. Few of these secure places, for the demand is at a terrible distance below the supply. Girls who received $7 a month a few weeks ago, will now gladly take $4 or $5. Many of the unsuccessful have already become a charge to the public.

The Mormons are indulging in violent denunciations of the troops which are approaching Salt Lake. They are resolved to die rather than to admit them into their territory.

Thirty thousand slaves were sold and removed out of Virginia last year.

A Cure for Asthma.—There are many well attested cases of cures of this distressing complaint by the use of the Wild Cherry, as combined by Dr. Wistar, in his famous Cough Balsam which medicine has achieved a world wide reputation.

A rich man.—Many suppose Perry Davis to be very wealthy from the immense sales of the Pain Killer, but his benevolence equals his income. He is acquiring a reputation more valuable than gold.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

I deem it a duty I owe to society, especially to the afflicted, to offer this testimonial in favor of that estimable medicine—"Perry Davis' Pain Killer." When passing through Galena, some two weeks ago, I purchased at your agency a 25 cent bottle. I was then suffering from a severely bruised hand; I applied it in the store, and was astonished at the almost instantaneous relief. Before I left the store the inflammation was removed, and in less than an hour the pain ceased. In two days my hand was well as ever. Finding it to be really a remedy, I determined to try its effects as a curative for the Piles, to which I have been a martyr for years.—After five dressings, my piles were among the things that had been; I am now entirely free from them, and in as good health as ever I was in my life.

I have recommended the Pain Killer to others, and always with good effect. Several of the captains of the upper river boats carry with them a constant supply, and consider it one of the most valuable medicines ever discovered.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD-CHERRY.

From Ex-Alderman PERKINS.

BOSTON, Feb. 3, 1853.

Dr. S. W. FOWLE, Dear Sir.—For several days I had been suffering from the effects of a severe cold, accompanied by a very sore throat and sick headache, which completely incapacitated me for business. I had taken but a small portion of a single bottle of this Balsam, when I experienced immediate relief. My nose was broken up at once, and my lungs entirely relieved from the pressure which had become so painful. I attribute this entirely to the good effects of your Wild Cherry, as I took no other medicine whatever. I cordially recommend it to all my friends.

Respectfully yours,

SAM'L. S. PERKINS.
