SWITZERLAND.

The difficulty which had arisen between France and Switzerland on the refugees is now, it is asserted, satisfactorily concluded. The Swiss Government has so far fallen into the views of their mighty neighbours that about forty-one foreigners, French and Italian, are to be either expelled or assigned a fixed residence at a distance from the French frontier. England has, of course, been selected by the parties thus expelled as their future residence, no less than twelve of them, all Frenchmen, having dit-on taken their departure already for the hospitable shores of Albion.

Then a platform was hurriedly erected in the open ground where the sale had been first attempted. Within a few minutes after the sale of the pigs the platform was surrounded by an immense crowd of eager spectators, who in jokes and satire pronounced their opinion upon the exhibition which had just concluded. A regular public meeting then took place, and Mr. Rees. delivered a speech. He said, "He had lost his black pigs--(cheers)-they were pigs of an orthodox breed-(renewed cheers and laughter).
