THE CHRISTIAN MESSENGER.

he says, "stop the sale and discountenance that tissue of misrepresentation and falsehood 'The Great Iron Wheel.'" Our readers are our witnesses that we have not, we believe, ever mentioned this work, certainly not with approbation. It is an attack on Methodism and represents that System in a light calculated to produce any but pleasant feelings in its members, particularly in its ministersrepresenting it as a system of priestcraft and tyranny, scarcely less than that of the Roman Catholic Church. If we had held up this work as one desirable for our friends to possess, or read, we might merit the tirade of that their efforts to destroy this blot on their abuse he has published in the Provincial free country should be observed, no less than Wesleyan, and which according to the rule the existence of the blot itself. "Severitas" lays down, the Editor of that as Spurgeon ! he says:

"We have seen imitative persons, who in striving to copy the excellencies of those above them, have mistaken their foibles for their virtues, and thus rendered themselves ridiculons. So we have thought of the editor of the Christian Messenger. He tries to imitate and exhibit the greatness of Spurgeon, but unhappily he mistakes pathize with our brethren and sisters in Christ his foibles and imperfections for his excellencies, and thus renders both the subjects of worse than ridicule, since they are enricaturing and misrepresenting an unoffending body of christians, whom they are bound, by the great commandment, to love as themselves."

Now, this is too bad Mr. Severitas. There may be some who aspire after such talents as find the following in one of our New York them. You will then know what they are. They are Spurgeon's but of this surely we are not chargeable. Would that we might do but a tithe of the good he has done, and is doing, we should be quite willing to incur the displeasure of five thousand such as "Severitas." We fear he has not the merit of copying anything even so good as Spurgeon's foibles.

We have no desire to cherish any but the most kindly feelings towards our Wesleyan friends. When we have had occasion to refer to that article by not onetenth; a three or four column body, their sentiments and practices, we have one by nobody whatever, except the wearied done so with a desire to cultivate a Christian editor and his proofreader, and the few who may spirit, at the same time that we sustain the have a personal or very special concern in the principles we hold, and on which we differ article. from them. We shall not charge the Editor of the Wesleyan with endorsing all that is said by this writer, as we are aware that his task is not a very easy one with some such turbulent spirits as are in that body, and possibly also in some others. "Severitas," if we mistake not, has on other occasions made attacks on his own brethren, as well as on members of the Baptist Denomination; and although he has been removed to other localities, with the hope that he would improve, yet he still appears to be ill at ease, and unable to restrain his propensity. He waxes quite warm towards the close. A brief quotation will be sufficient to shew the animus of the writer, and perhaps enough to indicate who it is that covets this name and character. He remarks: " 'The Baptists can never persecute" indeed ! Is not Mr. Spurgeon a true Baptist ? Is not the author of the Great Iron Wheel? Is not the editor of the C. Messenger? May we not say of all these. " Every day they wrest my words;" and do they not "imagine mischief in their hearts, sharpen their tongues against us. Would they not say of our beloved Zion, which God has so greatly honoured, " Raze it, raze it, even to the foundation thereof," could some of the leading minds of the Bapist denomination have their way. Methodism with its hated peculiarities. its " perfection," and its " Baby Sprinkling," would not exist another day in the world! Down with it! down with it! "I do not believe that any of your (Methodist) pretenders to perfection are any better than good maniacs superior bedlamites : that is all I believe about them !" so says Spurgeon ; and the editor of the C. Messenger endorses and prolongs the war-cry, which in effect is, Down with Methodism !!

Davis' Pain Killer.

No medicine is more prompt in its action in cases of Cholera, Cholera Morbus, &c., than Perry Davis' Pain Killer. It is the acknowledged antidote which seldom fails if applied in its early symptoms. No family should be without a bottle of it always on hand. The stain on linen from the use of the Pain Killer is easily removed by washing it in alcohol. Davis' Pain Killer seems particularly efficacious in cholera morbus, bowel complaints, and other diseases to which the natives of Burmah, from their unwholesome style of living, are peculiarly exposed. It is a valuable antidote to the poison of Centipedes, Scorpions, Hornets, &cc.

The following highly complimentary notice of the of a distinguished American Journalist :---

HOW STARTLING ARE THE RAVAGES OF DISEASE!-How small a proportion of mankind live in perpetual health and die of old age! Disease, the insidious burg; Maria, Lenoir. St Pierre, Miq; Clara, McLearn, destroyer of our race, ever steals upon the anchorage Shelburne ; Elizabeth Ellen, Embre Strait of Canso ; of life, to cut it from its moorings. Ceaselessly it gnaws at the vitals of existence, like a worm in the bud, which, undisturbed, must bring it to decay. With these melancholy facts in view, can we overestimate the importance of such labors as look to the discomfiture of such labors as look to the discomfiture and Practical Ethics, by Joseph Haven, of our common enemy? Knowing that we cannot, we feel warranted in extolling to our readers the enterprise of our distinguished fellow-citizens, Dr. J. C Ayer & Co. Few, if any, individual interests in the State are This subject has been ably treated by many larger than this, and surely none compares with it in riters of the first celebrity. It has, however the vast extent of its operations and the immense importance of them to the well-being of multitudes of men. Their life-long labor has been to devise means connexion with other matters The author of of cure for the prevailing disorders of the American this volume has sought to confine himself to a people, and their endeavors are known to have the scientific view of the subject. It will, we doubt co-operation of the best medical intelligence and skill not, be received as a valuable contribution to the this age affords. That they have done much for the cure of disease, no fair-minded man will deny; and that the laudable aim of their ambition is to accomplish still more in this work of philanthropy, is justly an object of pride to us, their fellow-townsmen, as well Secondly, Practical Ethics-1. duties to self, as of congratulation with the suffering sick all around The preparations of J. And yet he says, "We think we have not spoken with undue severity." Well perhaps not. We have no desire to say a word to our friend by way of reply, but will leave him in the hands of his own brethren. If the Abstract of Meteorological Observations readers of our contemporary are satisfied with such savory repasts we shall not complain, but shall do our best to shew them a more excellent way.

writers of the first celebrity. It has, however been taken up by most of them, more or less in Science of morals.

It is treated under two Divisions. First, Theoretical Ethics-the doctrine of Right. 2. to society, 3. to the family, 4. to the State, us, and all over the world. 5. to God. Each of these are considered under several sections.

The style of the writer is easy and flowing, giving to the subject attractions which many suppose it does not itself possess. The book is well got up as all the publications are from the same firm.

BRITISH NOVELISTS AND THEIR STYLES, by David Masson, M.A., Professor in University College London, and author of "The Life and Times of Milton." Gould & Lincoln, Boston.

This is an able critique on English fiction and its writers. Its progress is traced from the earliest days, down to the present time, with its host of authors of that character. More space is given to Sir Walter Scott than to any other single author. The writers of each age are classified. Only the names of some are brought forth whilst others have their works described. It is somewhat curious that in 1820 only 26 volumes of novels were in the British Museum Library. Their present number is about 3000.
